SECRETARY DENBY RESIGNS AFTER TALK WITH COOLIDGE

TWO HOLDUP MEN WHO KILLED KIMMEL CONFESS AT INQUEST

John Rou and John Wiesner, Austrian Laborers, Held Without Bond After They Tell Coroner's Jury of Attempted Robbery and Shooting.

COMPANION HAD IMPLICATED THEM

Shots Were Fired When Victim Resisted, Prisoners Testify—Men Had Been Drinking Together During the Afternoon.

A man had been murdered by robbers in Chain of Rocks Park, his woman companion rendered speechless by a bullet wound in the mouth, and his automobile driven to a point several miles from the scene where it was abandoned by the slayers.

This happened Friday night. Within 24 hours police had three marked suspects under arrest. Last night one prisoner confessed he had driven the other two to the murder scene. And today, the murderers themselves confessed, at a Coroner's inquest, just 63 hours after the shots were fired.

It was not a good case, in the beginning. Only the wounded woman's scribbled notes with meager information and less complete descriptions. But detectives cleared it up in record time.

John Rou, 27 years old, and John Weisner, 24 years old, both Austrian laborers who reside at Prospect Hill, St. Louis County, are held without bond at direction of a Coroner's jury to whom they blurted out admissions of murder this morning.

John Gardner, 24 years old, who lives in the same settlement, is also held without bond, his confession implicating him as accessory before and after the fact.

Story of the Shooting.

The three prisoners told how they had seen the automobile in which Robert L. Kimmel and Miss Melba Hill were seated on Carr Lane Drive in the Park. How Rou and Weisner had got out of Gardner's coupe, weapons in hand. "We'll stick up that guy," Rou said. Gardner drove away. Rou and Weisner "put the pistols" on the couple in the car, ordered them to get out, and threatened Kimmel. Then Kimmel grabbed Rou's automatic, there was a struggle, and shots.

There were no clews when police arrived at the scene of the murder. Only a dead man, with six bullet wounds in his body. Miss Hill had been rushed to city hospital, where she managed to write a vague account about two young men who appeared to be Italians, who had asked, "Got any booze?" and had shot when Kimmel started to do something—she wasn't sure just what.

An Essex coach automobile was discovered abandoned on the St. Cyr road near a Burlington railroad trestle and in the vicinity of the Missouri Portland Cement plant in St. Louis County. It was Kimmel's car. Out in the rain all night. Cement dust over everything. No chance for finger prints.

Detectives' Theory.

Detectives of the homicide squad, looking over the slender clews gathered, decided that here was something tangible. If clever criminals had murdered Kimmel and shot Miss Hill, they would not abandon an automobile used in the crime near their homes. But if irresponsible young men, fired with drink and in need of a little cash, had fled the scene in this car, likely as not they would think first of hiding at home.

The police put in practice the method of elimination, used almost entirely by those who hunt men in real life and not between book covers. Miss Hill had said the men were foreigners. Prospect Hill, near the cement plant, largely is a foreign community. So young men in Prospect Hill, who

JUDGE IS SLAIN IN COURT BY MAN WHO KILLS SELF

W. M. Morning Shot Through Heart When He Asks Defendant in Suit if He Wants a Lawyer.

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., Feb. 18.—William M. Morning, 56 years old, veteran District Judge, was shot and killed early today in his courtroom by Wallace G. Wallick, who in turn shot and killed himself. The Judge was shot through the heart.

Wallick shot at C. F. Rein, attorney for his wife, Mathilda Wallick, who was suing him for separate maintenance, and at his wife. Judge Morning walked from his bench after he had been shot, and was assisted to his room adjoining the court, where he died in a few minutes.

Wallick, 50 years of age, was a well digger, and lived in Belmont, a suburb of Lincoln.

"Do you want an attorney?" Judge Morning asked the defendant when his case was called this morning.

"No man can make me pay," Wallick cried and pulled out his revolver. He fired four shots, at his wife, at her attorney, at the Judge and then at himself. The last two took effect. Judge Morning's head dropped to one side, but he braced himself and walked down from his chair.

W. P. G. HARDING TO CONTROL THE FINANCES OF HUNGARY

Former Head of Federal Reserve Board Accepts Position Under League of Nations.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Feb. 18.—W. P. G. Harding, former governor of the United States Federal Reserve Board, has been unofficially selected as high commissioner of the League of Nations to Hungary for control of finances under the league's loan plan. He has informed the league that he will accept if officially designated.

It was said in league circles that the selection of Harding had been approved by all the interested parties.

BANK IS DENIED REHEARING

Supreme Court Rules on Request of First National.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The Supreme Court today denied the motion of the First National Bank in St. Louis for a rehearing in the branch bank case recently decided.

The Court had sustained the Missouri State courts in holding that national banks are subject to State law in such matters as the establishment of branches. The Federal Government joined the bank in urging a rehearing, contending that if present Federal statutes do not preclude states from exercising control over national banks, the Supreme Court should definitely say so and enable Congress to amend the laws so as to carry out its purposes.

PARIS, Feb. 18.—The length of skirts worn by fashionable women this spring will depend somewhat upon personal preference, judging from styles exhibited at the opening of the racing season at Longchamp yesterday.

Some of the models who paraded in the cold breezes wore skirts falling only three or four inches below the knees, while others were about the same distance from the ground.

M'ADOO BOOSTERS FROM 44 STATES DECIDE HE MUST STAY IN RACE

Speakers at Chicago Conference, on Roll Call of States, Declare That Oil Disclosures Have Not Hurt Him and Republicans Alone Fight Him.

REED DENOUNCED FOR DRAGGING HIM IN

Homer Cummings Says Forces of Liberalism Are Gathered About McAdoo to Free Nation From Special Privilege.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—William Gibbs McAdoo will remain in the Democratic presidential nomination race if he abides by the decision of his supporters from 44 states in the Union, made here today. Unanimous approval of all those attending the conference was voiced from the floor before the meeting recessed this afternoon to reconvene later to receive committee reports.

Cummings Sounds Keynote.

The keynote speech of the conference was delivered by Homer Cummings of Connecticut, former chairman of the Democratic National Commitee.

The conference was called, Mr. Cummings said, "not only to discern the fortunes of an individual but to consider the fate of the cause of liberalism."

"Those who control the Republican party," he continue, "in a desperate attempt to divert attention from their own dereliction, are striving to implicate Democrats in the disgraceful disclosures in the Teapot Dome scandal.

"Not one Democratic official and not one person mentioned in connection with the Democratic presidential nomination has been touched by the revelations.

"A special attempt has been made to discredit Mr. McAdoo, but it is known and admitted everywhere that Mr. McAdoo had no connection, directly or indirectly with these scandals.

"The mere statement of the situation reveals the absurdity of the suggestion that there has been any impairment of his strength as a candidate.

"The forces of liberalism have gathered around McAdoo to continue the struggle which began in 1913 to free American institutions from the thralldom of special privilege."

Thunders of "no" answered Cummings' question, "Shall we desert the field to the forces of reaction?"

W. W. Howes of South Dakota, chairman of the South Dakota Central Committee, was elected permanent chairman.

State Leaders Are Heard.

At the roll vcall of the States, each speaker was allowed two minutes to report the sentiment of his State, and no sentiment against the McAdoo candidacy was expressed.

Madison P. Jones, speaking for California, which sent eight delegates said that to California, McAdoo was more available today that he was two weeks ago.

Morrison Shafroth of Colorado, which State sent 11 delegates said: "Colorado stands four-square for McAdoo. My observation has been that the only people who think he is not now available are the ones who have always opposed him."

William L. O'Connell, speaking for the Illinois delegation said: "His friends have never wavered."

Emmett N. White, for Indiana said the oil lease scandal "has helped him."

Iowa sent 26 delegates headed by Clyde L. Herring of DesMoines: "He had fought a good fight; he has kept the faith and his course has not come to an end," said Herrings.

C. B. Amidon, Democratic national committeeman of Kansas, said: "McAdoo is not only available, but he is indispensible."

McAdoo's Character Hasn't Been Touched, Says Walsh of Montana

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.

STATE CHAIRMAN THOMAS ARTHUR of Montana, at the McAdoo conference today, read a telegram from Senator Walsh of Montana, which said:

"I am committed to the candidacy of William G. McAdoo, whose character is untouched by any revelations made before the Senate committee investigating the naval oil leases. I should regard any efforts to place another Progressive candidate in the field as serving the interest of the Republican party to divert the public mind from the iniquities of the present administration and as a contribution to the plan of the great interests allied to defeat the former distinguished Secretary of the Treasury. I am most deeply appreciative that you or any other citizen should deem me worthy of the elevation to the presidency and I thank you and those associated with you most cordially, but am unable to give countenance to any movement to that end."

FRANCS DECLINE TO NEW LOW RECORD

Drop 12 Points to 4.25 Cents in the New York Market.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—French francs today dropped to a new record low level at 4.25 cents, a decline of 12 points from Saturday's closing price. The fall was apparently based on the difficulties of the French Government in forwarding its fiscal program.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—French francs today slumped to a record of 100 francs 25 centimes to the pound, carrying with it the Belgian franc to 116 francs 75 centimes, and sympathetically affecting Italian and Norwegian exchange. Dollar exchange dropped slightly at 4.29.

French Finance Minister Charges Exportation of Capital.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 18.—Forty complaints have been filed by the Minister of Finance with the public prosecutor charging the exportation or complicity in exportation of capital. The action has caused a sensation in financial circles.

The charges are supposed to be connected with heavy dealings in foreign shares such as Royal Dutch, Mexican Eagle and other petroleum stocks, Rio Tinto and De Bers mines and other mining stocks, which have formed the greater part of speculation on the Paris bourse since 1918.

The Minister of Finance attributes the weakness of the franc in part to such dealings. The exodus of capital through this means which is prohibited by a law passed in 1918, is largely, it is said, through the use of airplanes to bring foreign shares over the frontier. The francs thus exchanged for foreign stocks, added to the immense quantity held by foreign speculators, is one of the determining factors in the depreciation of French money, in the opinion of a high official of the Bank of France.

Messengers Robbed of $12,000.

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 18.—Between $12,000 and $15,000 in cash was stolen from two bank messengers of the Metropolitan National Bank by armed men in front of the Federal Reserve Bank branch in the heart of the business section here today.

SENATE CONFIRMS NOMINATION OF ROBERTS AS OIL CASE COUNSEL

Philadelphian Approved by Vote of 68 to 8, After Half-Hour Discussion, Three Democrats and Farmer-Laborites Opposing Him.

PROSECUTIONS TO BE BEGUN AT ONCE

Injunctions First Will Be Sought Against Further Taking of Oil From the Naval Reserves in California and Wyoming.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Information of such a startling nature concerning the stock market operations of "certain high Government officials has reached the Senate Oil Investigating Committee that it was decided this afternoon to abandon the recess previously agreed on and hold a hearing tomorrow morning to examine a number of New York stock brokers, who have already been subpenaed.

It was intended to hold this hearing late this afternoon, but because of the inability to get the brokers here in time it was postponed until tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Organization of the legal machinery to handle the oil lease suits was completed today by Senate confirmation of Owen J. Roberts of Philadelphia as special counsel.

Roberts will serve with Atlee Pomerene of Ohio, whose nomination was confirmed Saturday. It is expected that legal proceedings to stop further work on the Teapot and California oil reserves will be taken in the very near future, while preparations go forward for separate civil and criminal actions to permanently set the leases aside and punish anyone guilty of wrong doing in their negotiation.

Vote on Roberts, 68 to 8.

The votoe on Roberts was 68 to 8. Both he and Pomerene had been opposed by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, the dominant figure in the oil inquiry, but both Republican and Democratic party leaders voted for confirmation. Those recorded in opposition were Senators Brookhart, Iowa; Frazier, North Dakota, and La Follette, Wisconsin, Republicans; Ashurst, Arizona; Sheppard, Texas; and Wheeler, Montana, Democrats, and Shipstead and Johnson, Minnesota, Farmer-Labor. Senator Walsh was absent.

The debate on the Roberts nomination occupied only a half hour. Senator Pepper, Republican, Pennsylvania, who recommended the appointment to President Coolidge, explained the nominee's qualifications and declared he had no connection whatever with the oil industry.

There were no speeches in opposition, but Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, inquired about a statement made by Roberts a year ago in New York, which, he said, "appeared to criticise the Senate oil committee and to ridicule the idea of the Senate investigating Standard Oil."

"Not by the widest stretch of the imagination," replied Senator Pepper, "can that speech be interpreted as critical of the present inquiry."

Senator Walsh (Dem.), Montana, leader in the inquiry, who opposed confirmation of Pomerene's nomination and has expressed disapproval of Roberts' qualifications for the work, is absent today, having left the city for an unannounced destination. Friends said he would seek rest somewhere in the South and endeavor to rid himself there of a cold which has been giving him some inconvenience.

With the investigating committee in recess the Capitol today has its first rest in weeks from the whirl of sensations that began with the testimony of Archie Roosevelt dealing with relations between Harry F. Sinclair and Albert B. Fall. The committee, in taking

EDWIN DENBY.

EDWIN DENBY was chosen Secretary of the Navy a few days before inauguration day, when the President-elect Harding was at the end of his string of suggestion for the place. The big jolly former Sergeant of Marines took a boyish delight in his new honors, when he went unheralded, without organized political backing, into the Cabinet.

He was graduated in law from the University of Michigan, where he was a football player. Later he went to Congress.

During the Ballinger-Pinchot row he stood by the Secretary of the Interior, and this helped to cause defeat for re-election. In business also his career has been one of ups and downs.

Freight cars destined for Germany have been overturned by bands of Belgians inflamed by stories that the Dutch and Germans are profiteering by the depreciated Belgian franc.

IN QUEST OF TITLED WIFE FOR HER SON, KING FOR DAUGHTER

Queen Marie of Rumania to Look Over Marriageable Nobility.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Queen Marie of Rumania, maker of royal marriages and thrones in the Balkans, is hunting for a titled wife for her youngest son, Nicholas, as well as a kingly husband for her youthful daughter, Ileana. With this idea in mind, Ferdinand and Marie are to visit London and Paris in the spring to look over the marriageable youths and maidens of the nobility.

Meanwhile Queen Marie is making quiet inquiries in Italy regarding the possibility of winning Prince Humbert, heir apparent to the Italian throne, for Ileana, the latter, it is understood, having shown some aversion to a union with King Boris of Bulgaria, whom her mother at first picked for her.

The young and beautiful Princess told her mother she would rather be potential Queen of Italy than actual Queen of Bulgaria. Friends of the Rumanian royal family believe Ileana's marriage to the 20-year-old Italian Crown Prince would make an ideal family and political alliance, as Rumania and Italy are so closely linked in origin, language and ideals.

Queen Marie is known to cherish the idea of having Nicholas marry an Italian Princess. She is said to believe that, with Italy's assistance, she could obtain the vacant Albanian throne for the young couple, as Italy now is the dominant factor in Albanian affairs.

In January the department answered 1000 alarms.

PRESENCE AT HEAD OF NAVY EMBARRASSED PRESIDENT

Roosevelt Holds His Post Temporarily but Question of Daugherty's Resignation Is Discussed at White House and May Be Decided by Cabinet.

NEW DISCLOSURES IN OIL FORECAST

Sensation Expected When E. B. McLean Testifies; Investigators After Facts as to Rumored Oil Speculations.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The question, whether Attorney-General Daugherty should resign or remain in the Cabinet, again has become the subject of serious consideration among officials of the administration. Daugherty's possible resignation was discussed at a White House conference last night between President Coolidge, Daugherty and Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho. Borah was said to have strongly urged the Attorney-General to offer his resignation.

The position of the President has not been fully developed. Yesterday he called in Senator Borah for a further discussion of the question and later they were joined by Daugherty, who was said to have insisted that his record was clear and he should not resign under fire. The Attorney-General was said to have taken the position that the whole question was one that could properly be considered by the Cabinet. It may be taken up at tomorrow's Cabinet meeting.

Secretary Denby's letter of resignation today based his action upon the fear that his continuance in the Cabinet would cause President Coolidge "increasing embarrassment." The letter said that "neither you (the President) nor anyone else at any time has advised me to resign." In reply President Coolidge wrote that he realized Secretary Denby was acting under his "sense of public duty," and expressed deep regret.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The oil scandal gushed out two of its biggest sensations today. Secretary of the Navy Denby, it became known, has resigned from the Cabinet. Almost simultaneously it was learned that the Senate oil investigating committee has received startling information relating to alleged market speculation by Government officials at about the time the Teapot Dome lease was given to Harry F. Sinclair.

Correspondence between Denby and the President, covering the subject of the resignation was being framed this morning to be given to the public in explanation of the Secretary's action. Denby, it is understood, takes the position that his course in the oil leasing transactions was fully justified, but that his continued presence in the Cabinet might be embarrassing to the Government in view of the suits about to be started for the recovery of the oil lands which he helped to lease to the Sinclair and Doheny companies.

The question whether Theodore Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, would stay in that post immediately came to the front. Roosevelt's present intention is to stick. Until a successor to Denby is named and confirmed, he will be the acting head of the naval establishment.

Roosevelt's Part in Case.

Roosevelt's part in the leasing deals has been severely criticised. His testimony before the oil Investigating Committee indicated that he knew but little of what was going on and, like his superior officer, was not familiar with the details of the lease. He has been described in the Senate as the "messenger boy" who took to President Harding for his signature the executive order by which the control of the naval reserves was transferred from the Navy to the Interior Department

Though there has been no suggestion that young Roosevelt erred in any way save through his failure to protest against the secret reversal of the Government's oil-conservation policy, his failure in that respect has been sharply contrasted with the aggressive stand of his father in favor of conservation.

On the other hand, it is noted in his favor that, as soon as he heard of his brother Archie's suspicions of corruption in the Teapot Dome deal, he insisted that Archie go before the investigating committee and tell all he knew. The oil leasing disclosures are commonly believed here to have ruined Theodore Roosevelt's chances to realize his ambition to become Governor of New York.

Denby announced that he would see the newspaper men late today and give out a statement. This is his fifty-fourth birthday. On going to his office today he found it filled with flowers from friends.

The name figuring most prominently in speculation as to Denby's successor is that of Charles B. Warren of Michigan, former Ambassador to Japan, who has lately had under consideration an offer by President Coolidge to make him Ambassador to Mexico. It was Warren who with John Barton Payne negotiated the recent settlement of the Government's difficulties with Mexico that paved the way to Mexican recognition.

Warren was considered for the secretaryship of the navy when President Harding was making up his Cabinet but the place went to Denby at the last minute because of the latter's service in the navy.

Next Dome Explosion.

The next Teapot Dome explosion will probably come with the testimony of Edward B. McLean, Washington newspaper publisher, before the oil committee. Through McLean the committee hopes to get the facts of the oil speculation story that has been floating for weeks on top of the Washington kettle of rumor and gossip.

The committee is said to have come to an agreement with McLean under which he is to impart valuable information. Names of persons high in official life under the Harding administration, it is expected, will be brought into the hearings. Light may be thrown on the persistent rumor that a $1,000,000 slush fund was sent here from New York to reimburse Federal officials who were hit in speculation.

If expectations are realized, the testimony of McLean, who was "close" to the inner circle of the last administration, will go far toward clearing the mystery of the stock market transactions that attended the secret execution of the Teapot lease and will furnish a sensation of the first magnitude.

In the day's crowded developments in the oil scandal, still another stood out as highly significant—the serving of notice by Senator Wheeler of Montana that he would press for action on his resolution calling for an investigation of Attorney-General Daugherty.

The movement for a probe into Daugherty's official acts was given impetus near the end of last week, when a letter from H. Foster Bain, Director of the Bureau of Mines, to former Secretary Fall, indicating that Daugherty had rendered an oral opinion of the oil-leasing policy, was read into the record of the Senate's investigating committee. Daugherty had previously said that he never was consulted about the leases.

Denby's Announcement Followed Conference With Coolidge.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The announcement of Secretary of the Navy Edwin B. Denby's resignation today followed a telephone conversation between the President and Denby, in which the latest aspects of the situation were talked over in the light of information passed on to the White House by Republican leaders in the Senate. Denby will retire from the Cabinet on March 10.

There was nothing to indicate that President Coolidge had given any thought to a successor to Secretary Denby. In some quarters it was said he would be urged to appoint another Michigan man to the place—perhaps either Charles B. Warren, who has been offered the post of Ambassador to Mexico, or former Representative Patrick H. Kelley, who served in Congress as head of the appropriations subcommittee in charge of naval supply bills.

Denby informed President Coolidge that, in view of his connection with the oil leases, he did not desire to further embarrass the administration by remaining a member of it. The President, in a letter accepting the resignation, praised the official record of his retiring Navy Secretary, and said he acceded to the request with regret.

Recently a number of the Secretary's friends also have been consulted by Mr. Coolidge, and they are understood to have advised the President that they fully understood the embarrassment that might result in retaining Denby in the Cabinet while the oil annulment suits were in progress.

Not only is he a party to the oil leases, having affixed his signature along with that of Albert B. Fall, then Secretary of the Interior, but he repeatedly has defended his part in the proceedings and has declared publicly since the present controversy arose that he believed the contracts legal and would be willing to pursue the same course again.

It has been pointed out to the President that it might appear inconsistent to have a member of the administration holding these views remain in office while the administration itself, through its counsel, was moving in the courts to annul the leases on the ground that they were made without authority of law.

The first step in these legal proceedings, injunction suits to prevent further work on the Teapot and California reserves, is expected be taken immediately now that the Senate has completed confirmation of the oil counsel.

Theodore Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, announced after half an hour's conference with President Coolidge today, that he would not resign as the result of the retirement of Secretary Denby. "I have just been to see the President and I am not resigning," Roosevelt said. Roosevelt conferred with President Coolidge after a conference with Denby.

Then he made this statement to newspaper men: "My first reply to your questions is that I did not know about Secretary Denby's reported resignation until 10:30 o'clock this morning. That answers the first question which I presume you would ask me. The second question is whether I am to resign also, and my answer to that is that I have just been to see the President and I am not resigning."

Important Disclosures.

Coincident with the resignation of Secretary Denby, there were predictions among Senators that important disclosures of a new and sensational character were imminent. These predictions revolved for the most part about the inquiry that committee experts are making into the books of various brokerage firms in search of evidence of oil stock speculation by Government officials.

Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, who has taken a hand in the inquiry in the absence from Washington of his colleague, Senator Walsh, declared that Harry Payne Whitney and members of the Benkard brokerage firm in New York undoubtedly would be summoned before the committee as a result of information that has reached the capital. Wheeler asserted that "important information" had been given Senators by Wilton J. Lambert, attorney for Edward B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post. McLean came to Washington from Palm Beach in response to a summons from the committee.

Case of Daugherty.

The retirement of the navy secretary also has revived rumors that the resignation of Attorney-General Daugherty will follow within a few days. A resolution relating to him, and somewhat similar to that adopted some days ago, asking for the resignation of Denby, is pending in the Senate, and its sponsors are pressing for quick action on it.

The resolution, in which the President was advised to ask Secretary Denby to leave the Cabinet, was adopted Feb. 11, with the Republican organization leaders opposing it, but with 10 Republicans voting in its support. The vote was 47 to 34.

Immediately after it was sent to the White House, Mr. Coolidge issued a statement, declaring that such questions lay wholly within the province of the executive, but adding:

"The President is responsible to the people for his conduct relative to the retention or dismissal of public officials. I assume that responsibility, and the people may be assured that, as soon as I can be advised so that I may act with entire justice to all parties concerned and fully protect the public interests, I shall act.

"I do not propose to sacrifice any innocent man for my own welfare, nor do I propose to retain in office any unfit man for my own welfare. I shall try to maintain the functions of the Government unimpaired, to act upon the evidence and the law as I find it, and to deal thoroughly and summarily with every kind of wrongdoing."

Conferences at White House.

Since then many conferences have been held by the President with other officials of his administration, Senate leaders, and personal friends of Denby. Two of those most frequently at the White House have been Secretary Weeks and Charles B. Warren of Michigan, both old personal and political friends of the Navy Secretary.

The decision in favor of a resignation apparently was reached soon after Mr. Coolidge went to his office this morning, but a formal announcement was deferred. E. T. Clark, one of Mr. Coolidge's secretaries, visited Denby's office to consult as to what form the announcement should take. Denby soon afterward left the Navy Department by a private entrance, eluding newspapermen and left word that for the present he would have nothing to say.

First Break in Family.

The secretary's retirement makes the first break in the official family Mr. Coolidge took over intact from the Harding administration. Denby was one of the original members of Mr. Harding's Cabinet, having taken office on March 4, 1921.

This selection brought to that department for the first time in many years a man who knew by personal experience the viewpoint of enlisted men both in the navy and in the marine corps. He had served as gunner's mate aboard the converted cruiser Yosemite during the war with Spain and through all ranks and grades, from private to major in the marine corps during the World War.

Denby also had a background of personal information as to the situation in China and in the Orient generally which he drew from 10 years' employment in the international customs service in China when that service was directed by Sir Robert Hart. The service of Denby began during the time that his father, Charles Denby of Evansville, Ind., was American Minister to Pekin.

Through this personal knowledge of the Chinese customs situation, the navy secretary was able to be helpful to the special committees assembled at the time of the Washington arms conference, which dealt with the Chinese abstracts of the supplementary treaties. His executive functions at the Navy Department were such, however, that the task of directing the deliberations of American naval experts who helped frame the technical clauses of the naval limitation treaty devolved upon Assistant Secretary Roosevelt.

Goes Out on His Birthday.

Denby was born in Evansville, Ind., 54 years ago today. He passed through the public schools of that city. His alma mater, however, is the University of Michigan, from which he graduated with the degree of LL.B. When he entered the Cabinet he was connected with the legal firm of Denby, Kennedy & O'Brien of Detroit and was chief probation officer of the Recorders' Court of Detroit and of the Circuit Court of Wayne County, Mich.

Denby was elected in 1903 to the Michigan House of Representatives. He was chosen to the fifty-ninth Congress as a member of the House from Michigan and served from 1905 to 1911. He later was a member of the Detroit Charter Commission, and when the United States entered the world war in April, 1917, he enlisted as a private in the Marine Corps and was sent to the Marine Corps training camp at Paris Island, S. C. where virtually all of his war service was rendered, the only exception being a trip to France in 1918 as an observer of French methods of training.

Although a provisional major of the Marine corps, reserve division, at the end of the war, he resigned that commission before he became Secretary of the Navy. He carried with him into the Navy Department, however, strong opinions both as a lawyer and as an enlisted men as to disciplinary processes and throughout his term as Secretary devoted much time to the study of the cases of enlisted men found guilty by courts martial, arriving at independence conclusion frequently as to the degree of clemency which should be exercised.

Supported 5-3 Ratio.

An outstanding characteristic displayed by Denby as a member of the Cabinet was his loyalty to the policies of the President. That loyalty was tested to a marked degree when the project for the Washington naval limitation treaties took shape as Denby is known to have concurred in the views of those high officers of the Navy who held that a five-three ratio of naval strength as between the United States and Japan would serve to tie the hands of the Government in the Pacific in the event of any future war emergency there. The Secretary believed firmly, however, in the peac policies of President Harding and at no time permitted any dissenting view he might have on the technical side of the question to interfere with loyal co-operation by his department in the treaty negotiations.

From the beginning of the oil lease inquiry the Secretary maintained that the lease itself, wholly aside from any possible question of corruption that might be involved, was of vast importance to the navy and to the nation. He was convinced that the holding of reserve oil supplies in the underground pools of the naval reserve lands was an impossibility, that the oil was being drained off through operations on surrounding private wells. He appeared several times before the investigating committee, and, although he firmly maintained that the leasing policy was sound, he was unable to answer many questions put to him by members regarding the technical details of the proceedings.

This circumstance led to repeated charges on the Senate floor that the Navy Secretary, although not suspected of any moral wrongdoing, had not proven a sufficiently alert guardian of the vast reserves intrusted to his care.

Kelley Supported Daniels' Policy.

A group of Republicans in the House headed by Representative Madden of Illinois, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, have begun booming former Congressman Patrick H. Kelley of Lansing, Mich., for Denby's place. Kelley was a member of the Naval Affairs Committee of the House and later, when the budget system went into effect, was made chairman of the subcommittee of the Appropriations Committee, which deals with the navy items in the budget.

Kelley ran for the Republican nomination for the Senate in the last campaign but was defeated by the incumbent, Senator Townsend. He made an issue of the seating of Senator Newberry and stumped the State denouncing "Newberryism." While in the House Kelley was recognized as an ardent supporter of the Daniels policy of conservation of the naval oil reserves.

ADMINISTRATION POLITICS DELAYED OUSTER OF DENBY

By DAVID LAWRENCE,
A Special Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1924.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Edwin Denby, unwilling to embarrass the Coolidge administration, yet insistent that his course of action has been without reproach, has withdrawn from the Cabinet as Secretary of the Navy, just as a resolution adopted recently by the United States Senate asked that he should do.

Denby felt from the first that the attack which had been made against him would embarrass the administration because of the fact that this is a campaign year. He was ready to resign earlier, but was persuaded not to do so.

The friends of the administration were of the opinion that to resign immediately upon the passage of the Senate resolution would be to confess guilt and that it would hurt more than help politically. So it was determined that the President should issue his defense of the character and integrity of Denby and that the withdrawal when it was made should be based simply on the differences that have arisen with respect to the execution of the leasing policy.

Denby has contended that the leases he made in conjunction with Secretary Fall were advantageous to the Government. He has believed that an impartial investigation of the facts would vindicate him. On the other hand, the insistence of the Senate that the leases be canceled has forced the executive branch of the Government to go into the courts to request injunctions nullifying the leases made by Fall and Denby. The appointment of special counsel was for that specific object.

Some Other Differences.

Denby now awaits the findings of the special investigation undertaken by counsel. He has a host of friends who believe that when the inquiry is finished he will come out of it fully vindicated. hTe resignation has put a new face on the whole Teapot Dome controversy.

There have been some other differences between the White House and the Secretary of the Navy relative to the proposed expedition of the airship "Shenandoah" to the North Pole. Denby has been enthusiastic for the project while Mr. Coolidge has poured cold water on it with the statement that he didn't feel warranted in going to the expense unless Congress approved it.

Clearly the Coolidge administration has felt the weight of the attack on the Secretary of the Navy and the President's friends have been determined that he should not be injured in the forthcoming campaign by appointments made and actions taken when he was not in office.

Mr. Coolidge has been represented by his intimates as desirous of cleaning house and they hint that from now on he may be counted upon to make other changes which he might otherwise have delayed pending the outcome of the presidential campaign.

Politics of Situation.

The weak spot in the Coolidge armor, politically speaking, has been the retention of Denby as Secretary of the Navy. When the resolution asking for his withdrawal was passed and it appeared as if Mr. Coolidge would retain him, the Democrats were jubilant. They had at last to their own satisfaction brought the President into joint responsibility for some of the phases of the Teapot Dome mixup. Now, however, Denby helps to clear Mr. Coolidge's skirts and enables the President to stand before the country as having taken every step that could be taken by him to assure the protection of the Government's interests in the matter of oil reserve.

The Democrats now will endeavor to prove that the oil mess runs into many Government offices and that the Republican party as a whole must defend itself at the polls next autumn for the acts committed during its tenue of office. If the Republicans can do it they will endeavor to neutralize this by dragging former Democrats of prominence into the controversy. And out of it both parties will suffer and an independent movement, while not likely to succeed at once will gain strength along much the same lines as it did in 1912.

SENATE CONFIRMS ROBERTS NOMINATION AS OIL CASE COUNSEL

recess, decided to hold no further sessions until next Monday.

First Legal Move in Case.

The first move in what has come to be regarded as one of the most important legal battles to which the Federal Government ever has been party will be applications in Wyoming and California for temporary injunctions to stop further extraction of oil from the naval reserves in those States operated by the Sinclair and Doheny interests, respectively.

Prompt action toward this preliminary step in what must necessarily be a long-drawn-out court fight is expected. Counsel has an enormous work ahead in studying the record in the case as developed by the Senate oil commtitee and it is unlikely that the annulment suits and criminal prosecutions will be instituted until this has been completed and some independent investigations made.

The Senate will adopt the House resolution appropriating $100,000 for special counsel. This measure was approved by the House more than two weeks ago and has been reported favorably by the Senate Appropriations Committee.

While the oil committee is in recess accountants of the Federal Trade Commission will continue their work on the books of W. B. Hibbs & Co. and other Washington stock brokerage firms in an effort to ascertain whether there were dealings by public officials in oil stocks of the Sinclair and Doheny companies subsequent to the granting of the leases by Albert B. Fall, as Secretary of the Interior.

Going Into Stock Records.

The committee desires also to go into the records of firms, members of the New York stock exchange, but as yet it has taken no action on the letter of President Cromwell in which he proposed an examination of the records. At that time the board of governors of the exchange adopted a resolution asking the members to submit a transcript of their books for the period determined upon by the Investigating Committee.

E. L. Doheny in a statement made public here last night took issue with Senator Walsh's recent statement to the Senate that the Government was getting only 6 per cent of the oil which his company was taking out of the California reserve. He contended that his company actually has paid 31 per cent of all of the oil extracted.

Bonds to "Hayes" and Message to Fall to Be Checked Up.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—One reason for suspending the Senate oil committee hearings was to enable the committeemen to go over the testimony and check up what has been elucidated and what is missing.

For example, when Wahlberg, Harry F. Sinclair's private secretary, was being examined, Senator Adams, Democrat, Colorado, uncovered a possible lead that has not been developed. Adams was asking the witness about the transactions that had aroused his suspicions and that were responsible for the resignation of Archie Roosevelt and later the secretary himself from the oil man's service.

"What handling of securities did you have ideas about?" asked the Senator. "Some securities that had been loaned by Mr. Sinclair." answered Wahlberg.

Q. To whom? A. To Col. Zevely.

Q. And to whom else? A. Liberty bonds loaned to——(the witness hesitated).

Q. Who? A. Some Liberty bonds loaned to Mr. Hayes, I think.

Later in the testimony the fact was brought out that $25,000 in Liberty bonds was given Zevely, which he in turn testified was loaned to the then Secretary of the Interior, Fall. Nobody went back to the bonds loaned to "Hayes." At the time it was assumed this was somebody in the Sinclair offices.

Now, however, some curiosity as to this name has been engendered and Wahlberg may be called back to explain who it was, and why it was coupled in his mind with the Fall transaction. Or it may be the committee will seek to get the information from Sinclair himself.

Another thing to be looked into further is a curious coincidence of dates with relation to Fall's getting the $100,000 loan and Doheny's getting the lease. On Nov. 28, 1921, Doheny wrote to Fall about the lease of the Elk Hills Reserve, though he gave the impression in his testimony that he had not discussed that matter with the Secretary at that time. Next day, Nov. 29, occurred the discussion of the Cabinet relative to the Pearl Harbor contract, which was precedent to the big California lease, and, according to Admiral Robinson, the decision of the Cabinet was favorable. That night, apparently, Secretary Fall telephoned Doheny for the money and next day, Nov. 30, 1921, Fall sent Doheny his note for $100,000.

There has been a lot of controversy about the Cabinet discussion, which settled the policy that resulted in the leasing of the big oil reserves, but the Admiral produced his notes showing that Secretary Denby had advised him of the discussion and decision. Doheny on the witness stand said he sent his son with the money "the next day or within a couple of days."

The summoning of Edward B. McLean, who was Fall's first alibi for his sudden possession of money, and the adjournment of the committee before the Washington and Cincinnati publisher could testify, has caused comment. It has been revealed that Senator Walsh had information that Fall, during his Florida visit, had been advised by wire out of the investigating committee itself as to the course he should take and that his subsequent statement refusing to testify had the same inspiration. It is possible that McLean, whose guest Fall was at the time, may be asked if he had knowledge of any such communications and if he had been similarly favored.

NINE MISSOURI DEMOCRATS AT M'ADOO CONFERENCE

All Militant in Demand That Former Secretary Stay in Race to Beat Reed in This State.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—As the McAdoo "fate" conference commenced at the Great Northern Hotel here today it was a foredetermined certainty that the former Secretary of the Treasury will be besought to remain as a candidate for the presidency.

The Missouri delegation of nine, six men and three women, is militant in that attitude for the Missourians believe they have more chips in the pot than most states. McAdoo personally holds same attraction for them as the "sword arm of the Wilson administration," but the burden of their song is "beat Reed." McAdoo's withdrawal might help Senator Reed in his fight for control of the Missouri delegation to the Democratic National convention, they say. And that to anti-Reed Democrats would be the climax of catastrophe.

Missourians at Conference.

Among the Missourians here are: Breckinridge Long and Charles M. Hay of St. Louis; W. C. Vancleve, publisher of a newspaper at Moberly; former Representative J. W. Head of Palmyra; G. C. Reynolds of Higbee; Wendell S. Cloud of Kansas City; Mrs. Mrtha Taape of Carthage, delegate at large to the last Democratic National convention; Mrs. J. T. Johnson of Mexico and Miss Rachel Tingle of Butler, members of the Democratic State committee.

They brought along also a bundle of telegrams and letters which they estimate covers about 75 or 80 counties, declaring that Missouri delegates did not feel the steel of the McAdoo availability suffered in the flame of oil disclosures.

Truth of the matter probably is that had former Governor Gardner not fled before the blasts of Reed's entry into the presidential race Missouri interest in McAdoo would have been cursory at least until time of the national convention in June. Reed and anti-Reed Democrats had worked out a safety harmonious coalition, with Gardner for President as the hub and with various other honors within gift of the Democratic State convention evenly apportioned, among leading members of both factions.

But Reed would have none of it. He wanted unquestioned control of the Missouri delegation. He had had no fight since 1922 and the time was ripe for another.

Gardner's coming out speech was ridiculed as one upon which he "could not carry a state." A short time later Gardner got out and Reed within a few days got in. This drew again the battle lines of 1922, Reed men on one side, anti-Reed men on the other. The latter got together as best they could around McAdoo, joining in their desire to beat Reed the little group of original McAdoo men in Missouri.

Solidarity of that group was shaken when the oil disclosures came. For the anti-Reed recruits feared the "availability" of their chosen weapon may have suffered to an extent that might let Reed win at Springfield in April and dominate the Missouri delegation.

A few conferences were held, telegrams were sent out into the country. But it was decided to stand firm. Possibly a few votes might be lost and McAdoo might not be nominated, but at least he would furnish the cudgel with which to hammer Reed into tractability.

Strong for McAdoo.

Were the unexpected to happen here today and McAdoo withdraw from the race the anti-Reed faction in Missouri feel that Reed would be the chief beneficiary. So they are going to do all they can to keep McAdoo in the running. In this mood they are stern against the Missouri Senator and militant for the former Secretary.

"This movement is but another gesture by reactionary Republicans and assistant Republicans to deprive progressive elements of the nation of their only candidate," declared Charles M. Hay. "McAdoo is the only candidate who offers any hope to progressiveness, and Lenroot the Republican, and Reed the assistant Republican are endeavoring to disable his candidacy. But the reaction will be to his strength. Americans will not suffer so unsportsmanlike an attempt to bear fruit."

In the preliminaries of the meeting Breckinridge Long, speaking for the Missouri delegation, asked the conference to permit two speakers, Mrs. Taape, and Hay as against the one to be allowed to the other states. This, Long pleaded, because of "the unwilling part which Missouri played in the perfidious attack which necessitated this conference." It was granted with a yell.

M'ADOO STILL AVAILABLE, HIS BOOSTERS AGREE

A. Reed for his vicious and contemptible action in dragging McAdoo's name into the Teapot Dome scandal.

Howes in addressing the conference, said: "At no time has the United States so felt the need for a man who can handle big problems in a big way. The man to do it is William G. McAdoo."

Thomas Arthur, chairman of the State Democratic Central Committee of Montana, told the conference that "The Democrats of Montana commissioned me to come to Chicago and say to the Democrats of the nation through this conference, that they have great faith in Mr. McAdoo's integrity and ability. * * * Montana is for McAdoo first, last and all the time and our voters are not in a mood to compromise, and will send an instructed delegation to New York for McAdoo."

McAdoo Congratulated.

McAdoo arrived in the city yesterday afternoon and became the center of admirers. Assurances were given to him that at least [illegible] states and probably more than [illegible] would be represented in the conference. He was congratulated upon his unique action in leaving his "availability" "up to the party." That, he was told, was something daring in politics.

Several labor leaders were present, including Martin F. Ryan of the Carmen's Union, and President Sheppard of the Order of Railway Conductors.

REED AND COPELAND, W. R. HEARST'S TICKET

Publisher, in Interview, Names His Choices as Democratic Standard Bearers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 17.—William Randolph Hearst, the publisher, in an interview here yesterday, said he favored a Democratic ticket in the coming presidential campaign made up of Senators Reed of Missouri and Copeland of New York.

"I strongly favor such a ticket as would be made by Senator Reed and Senator Copeland," said Hearst. "Senator Reed is a Jeffersonian Democrat, a man of democratic sympathies and ideals of character.

"It sounds old-fashioned to speak of Jeffersonian democracy today, but we should remember that this country was built to its present greatness on the principles of the old-fashioned founders of the republic.

"And it will be a sad day for the republic when the principles of Jefferson's declaration of independence become so old-fashioned as to be out of date and out of use in our political life.

"The greatest service which Senator Reed has rendered the country was the use of his great ability and power of leadership in preventing the country from being dragged into further European entanglements through the lure of a League of Nations or a world court.

"Senator Copeland is also a genuine Democrat and has sincere popular sympathies.

"Neither of these statesmen is an extreme radical. It would be as unwise to nominate an extreme radical as it would be to nominate an extreme conservative."

SLAYER OF COUNTY RESIDENT WAS A K. K. K. ORGANIZER

Beecher Coleman, Who Shot A. W. Saegesser as Latter Listened on Radio, Solicited Policemen.

HAD LOST JOB WITH VICTIM'S FIRM

Prisoner, Who Gave Self Up After Shooting Saturday Night, Shows Strange Confidence.

Beecher Coleman, murderer of Albert W. Saegesser, whom he killed with a shotgun as Saegesser was listening in on a radio set at his home in Webster Groves Saturday night, was an organizer of the Ku Klux Klan in the St. Louis Police Department in the 10 months that he was on the police force, from April, 1921, to February, 1922.

Coleman was active in attempts to recruit his fellow-policemen as members of the klan. Some of those whom he solicited, but did not persuade, to be come klansmen, got the impression that he was the chife representative of the klan among the patrolmen, but this is not established.

Coleman, who was held for first-degree murder by the verdict of a Coroner's jury at Clayton, shows a strange confidence, considering the deliberate and unprovoked character of his crime. In the inquest yesterday morning, he appeared unconcerned, and smiled at times.

Blamed Victim for Discharge.

In talking with reporters, after his surrender at St. Louis Police Headquarters Saturday night, Coleman said he went to East St. Louis and bought a shotgun, took it to Saegesser's home and killed Saegesser, because the company for which he worked as foreman, on a building job in Ferguson, had dischaged him. Saegesser was an officer of the company, and Coleman blamed him for his discharge in which the seven men working under him on the job were included.

Coleman talked as if the fact of his discharge were an ample justification for murder. "How would you feel if your boss fired you?" he asked one of the men present. The man replied that, however he might feel, he would go out and look for another job rather than commit a crime.

"But think of the other seven fellows," Coleman said in reply to this.

Fired Through Window.

As was related in his confession, Coleman stood by the window of the living room in Saegesser's home, leveled the shotgun at him as Saegesser sat with the radio receiver on his head, and fired both barrels through the window pane. At the time, Saegesser's mother and his 2½-year-old daughter were in the room.

The Post-Dispatch learned today that Coleman obtained his employment with Saegesser's concern through the employment bureau of the Ku Klux Klan, which is in room 710, Century Building.

Flowers Sent to Slayer's Home.

It was also learned that flowers, from klan sources, have been sent both to Saegesser's home at 686 Oakwood avenue, Webster Groves, and to Coleman's home, 1518 Picker street, St. Louis. Saegesser is survived by his wife, his mother and four children. Coleman has a wife and two children.

Coleman was discharged from the police force two years ago on a charge of inefficiency, but he was trying to get back. At the time when he surrendered himself Saturday night, he had in his pocket a notice from the Police Board's secretary, such as is sent to all applicants for police jobs, notifying him when and where to present his application in person.

In the klan, it was learned today, Coleman has been an advocate of action "in the robe," that is, the use of forcible methods against persons of whom the klan disapproves. He was not successful in getting the organization to take such action, as the majority of the organization in St. Louis, and its present official heads here, prefer to use political methods rather than physical violence.

Coleman, when told by a Post-Dispatch reporter today that he was known to be a member of the klan, did not deny his membership, but uttered the customary formula, "I know nothing about the klan." He was asked as to the circumstances of his removal from the police force, and said he was "framed" because, as he believed, of religious prejudice against him. He said he was looking into a building on his beat, which it was his duty to watch, and that a Sergeant reported that he found Coleman in the building asleep and undressed. Coleman said the report was false, but that the Sergeant's word prevailed over his denial.

Confession Only Testimony.

At the inquest, the only testimony was the confession, drawn up at St. Louis Police Headquarters and signed by Coleman. Coleman did not testify in person. Coleman, who was taken to Clayton before daylight yesterday, will be held in jail there for the grand jury. At Prisoner, Who Gave Self Up After Shooting Saturday Night, Shows Strange Confidence.

Beecher Coleman, murderer of Albert W. Saegesser, whom he killed with a shotgun as Saegesser was listening in on a radio set at his home in Webster Groves Saturday night, was an organizer of the Ku Klux Klan in the St. Louis Police Department in the 10 months that he was on the police force, from April, 1921, to February, 1922.

Coleman was active in attempts to recruit his fellow-policemen as members of the klan. Some of those whom he solicited, but did not persuade, to be come klansmen, got the impression that he was the chife representative of the klan among the patrolmen, but this is not established.

Coleman, who was held for first-degree murder by the verdict of a Coroner's jury at Clayton, shows a strange confidence, considering the deliberate and unprovoked character of his crime. In the inquest yesterday morning, he appeared unconcerned, and smiled at times.

Blamed Victim for Discharge.

In talking with reporters, after his surrender at St. Louis Police Headquarters Saturday night, Coleman said he went to East St. Louis and bought a shotgun, took it to Saegesser's home and killed Saegesser, because the company for which he worked as foreman, on a building job in Ferguson, had dischaged him. Saegesser was an officer of the company, and Coleman blamed him for his discharge in which the seven men working under him on the job were included.

Coleman talked as if the fact of his discharge were an ample justification for murder. "How would you feel if your boss fired you?" he asked one of the men present. The man replied that, however he might feel, he would go out and look for another job rather than commit a crime.

"But think of the other seven fellows," Coleman said in reply to this.

Fired Through Window.

As was related in his confession, Coleman stood by the window of the living room in Saegesser's home, leveled the shotgun at him as Saegesser sat with the radio receiver on his head, and fired both barrels through the window pane. At the time, Saegesser's mother and his 2½-year-old daughter were in the room.

The Post-Dispatch learned today that Coleman obtained his employment with Saegesser's concern through the employment bureau of the Ku Klux Klan, which is in room 710, Century Building.

Flowers Sent to Slayer's Home.

It was also learned that flowers, from klan sources, have been sent both to Saegesser's home at 686 Oakwood avenue, Webster Groves, and to Coleman's home, 1518 Picker street, St. Louis. Saegesser is survived by his wife, his mother and four children. Coleman has a wife and two children.

Coleman was discharged from the police force two years ago on a charge of inefficiency, but he was trying to get back. At the time when he surrendered himself Saturday night, he had in his pocket a notice from the Police Board's secretary, such as is sent to all applicants for police jobs, notifying him when and where to present his application in person.

In the klan, it was learned today, Coleman has been an advocate of action "in the robe," that is, the use of forcible methods against persons of whom the klan disapproves. He was not successful in getting the organization to take such action, as the majority of the organization in St. Louis, and its present official heads here, prefer to use political methods rather than physical violence.

Coleman, when told by a Post-Dispatch reporter today that he was known to be a member of the klan, did not deny his membership, but uttered the customary formula, "I know nothing about the klan." He was asked as to the circumstances of his removal from the police force, and said he was "framed" because, as he believed, of religious prejudice against him. He said he was looking into a building on his beat, which it was his duty to watch, and that a Sergeant reported that he found Coleman in the building asleep and undressed. Coleman said the report was false, but that the Sergeant's word prevailed over his denial.

Confession Only Testimony.

At the inquest, the only testimony was the confession, drawn up at St. Louis Police Headquarters and signed by Coleman. Coleman did not testify in person. Coleman, who was taken to Clayton before daylight yesterday, will be held in jail there for the grand jury. At the time of the inquest, three deputy sheriffs and the Chief of Police of Webster Groves with two policemen, guarded the approach to the Coroner's office, but there was no demonstration, and no large gathering.

Saegesser's funeral will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at Hagerty Memorial Methodist Church, Webster Groves.

Saegesser's life was insured for $35,000 and his annual premium payment would have been due today, if he had lived. Saturday morning, he called Robert Newman, of the Missouri State Life Insurance Co., by telephone, and said that he had about decided to let $25,000 of the insurance lapse, and to retain $10,000. He said he found the premiums on the larger amount too heavy a burden. Newman urged him to call at the office and talk it over, and he said he would come in Monday (today).

Doheny Wandered About for Years With Burro, Pick and Shovel Before He Struck Oil and Made Millions

Most Colorful and Engaging Character in the Oil Scandal Peddled Liquid Fuel for a Time.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Of all the characters who have stalked across the boards in the Senate's great Teapot Dome drama, by long odds the most colorful, the most engaging, the most romantic—speaking always in a strictly dramatic sense—is Edward Laurence Doheny of Los Angeles, the openhanded oil magnate who handed Albert B. Fall $100,000 in cash for old time's sake.

Up to the time that he broke into the headlines by virtue of that loan, the career of Doheny, as related by admiring friends, is that of an Oliver Optic hero; indeed, if you are willing wholly to accept the Doheny version of the loan, it is that of an Oliver Optic hero still.

For a quick look at Doheny in this role, let us go to the speech in which the Hon. Lorin A. Handley of California presented Doheny as a candidate for Vice President to the Democratic nominating convention of 1920.

"And California," said the Hon. Handley, after some ringing opening sentences, "has a great patriotic son. * * * You must not forget that the great West is populated by free-minded and independent citizens. (Applause.) And with a great progressive, patriotic Democrat of the West, the West can be brought into line as it was in 1916. And California, therefore, presents her great and distinguished son, born in the State of Wisconsin.

"In poverty he started, a surveyor over the Southwest, a cowboy in Kansas, a prospector over practically every State of the West, a discoverer of the oil fields in Southern California, and from thence he builds himself to the pinnacle of success such as every American citizen loves and admires.

Typical Romance of Improved Opportunity

"The life of this man is a typical romance of American improved opportunity, and we take pride, therefore, in presenting to this convention a man out of the West who can reach the hearts and the souls, not only of the Democrats of the West but of the great free-thinking people of the West. California, the great Golden State, presents Edward L. Doheny for Vice President."

Our hero was born in Fond du Lac, Wis., of Irish ancestry, in 1856, and was graduated from the high school of that place in 1872. It is related—though this fits so perfectly into the picture that it may be apocryphal—that as the valedictorian of his class he delivered an oration on "Success."

Success, in any event, was the goddess that he wooed with never-failing devotion. She was elusive. Not for many years did she yield to his ardor. But when she came to him, she fell into his lap with such complete abandon that he was able, as early as 1916, to compute his holdings in $100,000 units. After the election of that year he was asked by a reporter whether it was true that he had won $500,000 on Wilson. He replied that it was not true; he had won only $300,000 * * * But that's getting ahead of the story.

Eddie Doheny, as he was then, left his native Fond du Lac soon after his graduation from high school without much other capital than his energy, his determination to get up in the world, his Irish drollery, and a pair of bright blue eyes that must have been a great asset if he ever had to ask a housewife for the privilege of sawing some wood in the back yard in return for supper. It is not recorded that he ever did, but he had his ups and downs—mainly downs, till he was about 35 years old.

Surveyer and Then Wandering Prospector

He was a surveyor for about four years, then turned to prospecting and wandered all over the West with a burro, pick and shovel. It was in a New Mexico mining camp about 1885 that he met Albert B. Fall, also a prospector. They endured hardships together, and faced the common danger of an attack on their camp by the Indians. It was thus, at any rate, that Doheny explained the friendship that inspired his loan of $100,000 to Fall. Furthermore, Doheny told the Senate Committee, he and Fall studied law in New Mexico at the same time and practiced law for a while in the same district.

It was about 1890 that Doheny was admitted to the bar. But the law, evidently, did not appeal to his restless spirit; there came, moreover, a period of depression that reduced the value of the diggings out of which, after being many times "broke," he had lately been making some money. He moved on.

E. L. DOHENY.

The year 1892 found him in Southern California, where he formed a partnership with C. A. Canfield. Then came the turn of the tide in his fortunes. He had always been interested in geology; he had studied it back in high school, and as a prospector he had got a thorough practical grasp of the subject.

It was this interest, so his friends say, that made him a millionaire. The story goes that one day in Los Angeles he was attracted by the extreme blackness of some earth with which a passing wagon was loaded. He took a handful home, tested it and found that it contained a large percentage of oil.

Discoverer of Great California Oil Fields.

With his partner, he leased some ground which showed this same black soil, mucked down into it with a small shaft, using picks and shovels and a windlass, and struck oil. Thus Doheny became the discoverer of the great oil fields of Southern California, and set himself on the road to the success of which he had dreamed. That first strike of oil was in the heart of the Los Angeles residence district.

Before he could realize on his find, Doheny had to create a market. Crude oil in those days was not thought of as a fuel, and there were no oil-tank cars in the Southwest to take his oil away for refining. Here is where the Oliver Optic quality in his story is most evident. Having induced a few skeptical people to install oil burners, he made a daily round of their houses with two or three barrels of crude oil in a cart.

He would start out at 2 a. m., unload his fuel and get steam up for his customers. He gradually won converts, and definitely turned the corner toward his goal when he landed the contract to supply a new seven-story building with fuel oil for its new-fangled heating plant.

From that time on, the story is one of expanding success. He got refineries to come to the West coast; bought and operated tank cars; bought out the first drilling rigs from the East and imported skilled drillers to man them; opened up one new field after another. He is credited with having opened up eight oil regions in California. His capital grew fast and he put most of it back into the business.

Outgrowing California, he invaded New Mexico and prospected for oil as he had sought for gold in New Mexico and Colorado. But he was no longer the indigent prospector; whatever he touched seemed to turn to oil. He discovered the Tampico oil fields—the greatest in the world. In September, 1913, he brought in the Casiano gusher with its astonishing flow of 2,000,000 barrels before it could be got under control. The Cerro Azul followed, with 1,500,000 barrels running to waste while it was being harnessed.

In two years Doheny had completely changed the map in that part of Mexico. He built docks and railroads, laid pipe lines, set up huge tanks. And oil became a factor in the relations of the United States and Mexico.

Doheny today is worth upwards of $70,000,000. He is one of the outstanding oil men of the world. From Mexico he has gone into Mesopotamia, where his company has interests in combination with other great American oil concerns. Because he is a factor in the world's oil situation, he is a factor in world politics; for oil and politics, in an international sense, are inextricably mixed together. He was tied to Fall not only by the friendship that began in the rigors of a mining camp, but by their common belief that the heavy hand of the Government should be laid on Mexico, to insure the protection of American interests.

Met Fall in New Mexico Mining Camp in 1885 and They Endured Hardships Together.

When Senator Willis the other day twitted the Democrats with the fact that Doheny had been "lauded to the skies" in a speech nominating him for the vice presidency at San Francisco, Senator Harrison retorted:

"I state it as a fact that Mr. Doheny got very much angered at a speech made by the standard bearer of the Democratic party, Mr. Cox, when he stated that he would never place the Army and Navy behind the oil speculators in Mexico and go to war, and on that statement Mr. Doheny turned against the Democratic party and voted for Mr. Harding."

Doheny's hair and mustache are white—the latter perfectly so—but his eyes are still amazingly bright and his face is ruddy. His manner is brisk, his speech fluent. He describes himself as just an irresponsible, impulsive old prospector, who in the days of his prosperity has not forgotten his less fortunate friends. He could as easily lend $100,000, he told the Senate committee as the average man could lend $25. He did not want the committee to think he was boasting, he added; he was merely seeking to explain the loan to his old friend Fall. He could have lent Fall a million without hurting his business. His manner was frank and ingenuous.

That is as it may be. He lent Fall $100,000 in November, 1921, and a year later he got from Fall a lease out of which he said he expected to make $100,000,000.

He is credited with other benefactions on a large scale. St. Vincent's Church in Los Angeles needed repairs, and the pastor appealed to Doheny. Doheny, being fond of the pastor, told him to build a new church and send him the bills. They are said to have run to $500,000.

Last year he and his wife and two oil associates gave $100,000 to Occidental College, Los Angeles, for training students for leadership in Latin-American affairs. He bought for $25,000 the famous bed of the Empress Carlotta, which had been looted from Chapultepec Castle during a revolution, and after sleeping in it for a while in his Los Angeles home, gave it back to the Mexican Government, "as a gift of friendship," he explained, "for the Mexican people."

Not Unlike a Child's Conception of Old Santa

He contributed to both the Democratic and the Republican campaign funds of 1920. He was the national president of the Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic, and contributed heavily to the Irish cause. After the settlement establishing the Free State, he expressed himesIf as satisfied.

Once, the story goes, a friend on his honeymoon was about to be forced to the wall by sudden financial pressure. The man's lawyer was frantic. He appealed to Doheny, and Doheny promptly advanced $500,000. This money was returned when the bridegroom came back and got his affairs straightened out.

In appearance, Doheny is not unlike a child's conception of Santa Claus, and in some respects, as these stories indicate, he acts the part.

He married the present Mrs. Doheny after the death of his first wife, by whom he had one son, Edward, now a partner in his business. Edward was formerly a Lieutenant in the navy, serving on the ship of Admiral Robison—the officer frequently mentioned in the Senate's discussion of the oil leases as the navy's chief proponent of the oil-leasing policy.

Doheny is one of the "big" men in the commercial life of Los Angeles; he has ranches and farms, to say nothing of his spouting oil wells; he has a yacht and a private car; he has what Los Angeles boasts of as the largest private conservatory in the world, filled with every known specimen of palm.

He also has Fall's note for $100,000, in two pieces.

He told the committee that he didn't have the note with him, when, all the time, as he later said, he had it—or that part of it lacking the signature—right in the little black pocketbook that he waved under the committee's noses.

A diverting character is Doheny.

POLICE HOLD NIGHT'S CRIME TO FOUR ROBBERIES

Three Filling Stations Held Up and One Residence Visited by Buglars in Absence of Occupants.

Three holdups of gasoline filling stations and one burglary in a residence made up the total of criminal activity in St. Louis last night. This marked reduction of crime was regarded by police as a reflection of the current vigorous police policy of arresting all suspicious persons.

Although it was Sunday night, there were 361 arrests, of which only eight were for traffic violations. At headquarters, 308 persons were relaesed on 139 bonds.

The gasoline filling station of 5765 Garfield avenue was held up by three robbers in an automobile, about 6:15 p. m., just as Frank Nitsch, the manager, was closing. The robbers forced him and his wife, Ida, to stand facing the wall, while they rifled the till of $48, and escaped.

The manager of a gasoline station at Sarah street and Forest Park place, Daniel Dunn, had closed the place, when three robbers drove up in an automobile and forced him to reopen. They held lighted matches while Dunn opened the safe and handed over $107. They took $5 from Dunn, $10 from the till and escaped.

Two robbers in an automobile held up the gasoline station at Grand boulevard and Bell avenue, about 7:30 p. m., and forced Harold Ulbright, the manager, to turn over the receipts of $39. As they drove west into Bell avenue, Walter McGuire of 3604 Cozens avenue, gave chase in his automobile. He overtook them in a few blocks, and the robbers jumped from the car and fled. The car had been stolen two hours earlier from C. S. Greenburg of 722 Hamilton avenue, who left it in front of 3458 Washington boulevard.

While the family was absent, early last evening, burglars forced a window of the home of Dr. Arthur Gundlach of 4576 Holly avenue, and obtained $150 in money and jewelry valued at $250.

ROBBERS IN PARK MURDER CONFESS AT THE INQUEST

were unable to satisfactorily account for their whereabouts Friday night, were arrested pending investigation. Among them were Gardner, Rou and Weisner.

Detectives learned from a thorough canvass of the neighborhood that these three had been drinking together Friday afternoon, and that they left Prospect Hill in Gardner's Ford coupe about 7 p. m.

Gardner Confesses.

Gardner and his companions were taken to Police Headquarters and questioned. All denied participation in the murder. Detectives went to the Weisner home and searched a room he and Rou and two other men occupied. They found a .32 caliber revolver, with four empty cartridges, two masks, a hat and cap, muddy shoes. These items were placed before Gardner and he was asked to explain what he knew about them. Breaking down, he confessed.

Today, Gardner's confession was read while Rou and Weisner were present at the inquest. Apparently Rou saw the game was up. When called to testify he told the truth or what police believe is the truth. It had been a stick-up, engineered because he and Weisner had dates with two women that night and had no money.

"I held up the man," Rou said, "while Weisner started the automobile. We had made it up to take that, too. But the man (meaning Kimmel) grabbed my hand and the pistol went off. I don't know whether it shot him or not. Weisner jumped out of the car when he heard the shot and he shot at the man, too. Then the man slumped down and we got in the car and drove away. I don't know which one of us shot the woman. She was standing by the man, as I remember."

Weisner at first was adamant. He would make no statement. But after Rou confessed, Weisner weakened, finally bursting into tears.

He admitted it was his revolver which detectives found in his room. He corroborated Rou's description of the hold-up to the point where the shooting started. There he differed with Rou, asserting that he fired only one shot at Kimmel and that Rou had done most of the shooting. He, too, was hazy as to which had wantonly shot Miss Hill.

Left Revolver With Friend.

After first saying he had thrown his .25-caliber Colt's automatic in the river, Rou later admitted that he had left it with a friend after the murder. The frined, John Reiko, said he threw the weapon into a sewer.

All three prisoners have admitted that they stopped twice to drink in saloons before proceeding to the holdup.

Their bravado evaporated after the shooting and they did not stop to rob Kimmel's body. Driving the Essex to the point of St. Cyr road where it was found, they separated. Weisner rejoined Gardner, who met him as he approached the settlement, and they went to Weisner's room and changed shoes.

Weisner and Gardner, murderer and accomplice, then got into Gardner's coupe and drove downtown in search of women. They finally brought up in a hotel on Market street. A woman was sent up to their room and they boasted to her—she testified at the inquest—"You wouldn't be with us if you knew who we were."

At the inquest Rou, with a sort of bovine mildness, told his story, after once starting, with but few interruptions. Yes, he had shot at Kimmel. They had wanted money to keep their dates with women, and besides Rou thought it would be nice to ride in Kimmel's car. So they took their pistols and went and stuck the man up, and as he showed fight they had to let him have it. That was all.

Weisner Cries on Stand.

Of foreign cast, Rou's face was not one to inspire confidence on a dark night, and Gardner, though more clean cut, was rough, and Weisner, too. The latter, most boyish of the three, cried as he finished testifying, rubbing his eyes with his cap.

Miss Hill underwent an operation at City Hospital Saturday for removal of the bullet which lodged in the back of her mouth. Today surgeons reported she had an excellent chance of recovery. She is a stenographer, 26 years old, who resides with her parents at a hotel at 5545 Cabanne avenue.

Kimmel was 24 years old and resided with his parents at 5260 Terry avenue. He was a Washington University graduate and head of the R. L. Kimmel Storing, Moving & Shipping Co. He met Miss Hill while both were attending the university.

The officers who participated in the solution of the case are Detective Lieutenant Andrew Aylward, Detective Sergeants Dempsey and McCormick, and Detectives Doyle, Roach and Kleppel.

The grand jury will take up the Kimmel murder case Thursday, Circuit Attorney Sidener announced after the inquest. Sidener went over the confessions with Rou, Weisner and Gardner in his office this afternoon. The confessions were written down again in the presence of witnesses.

DOCTOR'S WIFE WROTE WILSON POEM IN 1920

Question of Authorship Raised On Day Mrs. Bender Ended Life.

Mrs. Ernest Sachs of 97 Arundel place, Hillcrest, wife of a physician, was the author of the sonnet entitled "Woodrow Wilson," which appeared in the Post-Dispatch Feb. 6, and which, on the same day, appeared as part of a longer verse-tribute to Wilson contributed to the St. Louis County Watchman-Advocate by Mrs. Frederick M. Bender of Overland Park.

Particular interest has attached to the question of authorship since Mrs. Bender ended her life by asphyxiation Friday afternoon. A St. Louis County paper, published Friday, called attention to the identical character of the two verse contributions and raised the question of plagiarism. It is not known whether Mrs. Bender had read or heard of this charge of plagiarism at the time when she killed herself. Her farwell note to her husband mentioned, as a cause, only an illness from which she had suffered for several years.

Poem Appeared in 1922.

Mrs. Sachs today called the attention of the Post-Dispatch to the fact that her sonnet first appeared in this paper on Jan. 14, 1922. It was signed "Mary Koues Sachs." Mrs. Sachs had written the sonnet after election day, 1920, but she was prompted to send it to the Post-Dispatch, more than a year later, by the fact that a campaign for funds for the Woodrow Wilson memorial was then in progress.

After Woodrow Wilson's death, which occurred Feb. 3, Mrs. Sachs again sent her sonnet to the Post-Dispatch, making two slight changes in the wording. In this new form, the sonnet was printed Feb. 6.

Mrs. Bender's verses had 40 lines, including the 14 lines of Mrs. Sachs' sonnet, and she had separated the first eight lines of the sonnet from the last six, placing three stanzas between them. The two changes in wording which Mrs. Sachs made, in revising her sonnet, were not in the version used by Mrs. Bender, who used the lines as they originally appeared in the Post-Dispatch in 1922. Some changes not made by Mrs. Sachs appeared in the last two lines.

Mrs. Sachs' Explanation

Mrs. Sachs, in calling the attention of the Post-Dispatch to the publication of her sonnet in January, 1922, said:

"I am speaking of this, because otherwise it would appear that both the contributions, which happened to be printed on the same day, Feb. 6, were copied from some other original source. I have no ill feeling in the matter, and I do not believe that Mrs. Bender, in copying my lines printed in January, 1922, had any wrong intent. She wrote for diversion rather than for profit, and she was doubtless sincere in her desire to pay a fitting tribute to Mr. Wilson."

RAY RENARD FREED AFTER THREE DAYS IN HOLDOVER

Ray Renard, Egan gangster and pal of "Eddie" Linehan, was released today, after three days in Central District holdover. Detectives had failed to get any information from him which would throw light on Linehan's murder last week.

Renard walked into the arms of two detectives at Twelfth and Market streets Friday. He declared that he was with Linehan at noon Tuesday but had not seen him thereafter. Linehan's body, riddled with bullets, was found in a ditch alongside Goodfellow avenue near Penrose street early Wednesday.

GANGSTER, ACCUSED, "DOES HIS STUFF"

"You Better Be Mighty Careful," Londe Tells Negro, About to Identify Him.

Isadore Londe's nerve asserted itself today when detectives at Police Headquarters sought to have him identified in connection with a murder and holdup committed nearly two years ago.

The reputed "bad boy" of the notorious Egan gang of criminals and gunmen, when confronted by a negro dining car walter, who had picked his rogues' gallery picture as that of one of the holdup men, shook his finger at the witness and told him he had "better be mighty careful."

The crime with which Londe's name had been linked was daring and inhuman. Two men boarded a northbound Broadway car at Mound street, walked down the aisle to where Henry Ahring, uniformed and armed watchman for the Bremen Bank, was sitting, deliberately shot him through the forehead and then snatched $2000 from the bank messenger, whom Ahring was guarding.

The robbers were so bold that the terrorized car crew and passengers were unable to give a description of them at the time. In their escape they fired several shots at a policeman, who was standing on the corner.

Passenger on Street Car.

Recently the police were informed that one of the passengers who sat near Ahring and the messenger and who got a good look at the robbers, but had never made himself known to the police could be found at work on a dining car running between St. Louis and Jefferson City.

He was found last week and later at Police Headquarters he pointed to the photograph of Londe and said he was positive it was that of one of the robbers. He added he had seen the original of the picture several times since the robbery, and had served him in the dining car on a trip to Jefferson City.

Londe was arrested yesterday and the negro was given an opportunity to identify him in person. The white-rimmed eyes of the witness stared at the prisoner for several minutes. Londe had been told what he was wanted for.

"Better be careful," said the gangster. "You might identify an innocent man."

The negro glanced about and then said he wanted time to think it over. He was told to return to Police Headquarters later.

But it's horrible tasting stuff and every day fewer people are taking it for doctors are prescribing and the people are fast learning that they can get better results with McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets, which Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph Drug Stores, Enderle Drug Co. and druggists all over the country are having a tremendous demand for.

It's a wonderful upbuilding medicine for children, especially after sickness, and sixty tablets only cost 60 cents.

One woman gained 10 pounds in 22 days, and if any skinny man or woman can't put on 5 pounds in 30 days, your druggist will gladly return the purchase price.

Eleventh-Hour Reprieve Granted to Wife-Slayer

Postponement of Cochran's Execution Obtained by His Attorney Who Desires to Perfect Appeal.

An eleventh-hour postponement of the hanging of Walter C. Cochran, Belleville wife murderer, was granted today by Circuit Judge Louis Bernreuter sitting at Nashville where Cochran was scheduled for execution between 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. today.

The postponement, until Feb. 29, was granted on the plea of Cochran's attorney, Charles A. Karch, who asked an opportunity to perfect an appeal to the Illinois Supreme Court. Karch appeared before Judge Bernreuter at 9 a. m. and asked that the execution be suspended. He explained that on Jan. 26, when sentence was passed, he immediately began steps to obtain a copy of the transscript of the trial which was concluded in December, in order that he might prepare a bill of exceptions. Cochran's poverty delayed the purchase of this transcript, he said, but the work of writing the 500-page record of the trial is now in progress. He asked for 20 or 25 days more.

State's Attorney Lindauer of Belleville opposed the extension, but Judge Bernreuter said:

"I believe this man is guilty, but he should have the same rights before the law as the man with funds. My conscience would not be at ease if I failed to give him sufficient time for this work."

Cochran was brought from Belleville jail last night. He slept well last night, his guards said, and this morning sat quietly without any show of inerest, while the attorneys argued over the extension of execution. He showed no emotion when the Judge made his ruling. A scaffold with a fenced enclosure to accommodate about 50 spectators has been erected in the space between Nashville courthouse and the jail. It was built hurriedly on the supposition that Cochran would be hanged today. He will be held in jail here until Feb. 29.

STEAMSHIP MAIL IS DELAYED BY STRIKE

Walkout of British Dockmen Expected to Reach Full Effectiveness Today.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—The dock strike, which was declared Saturday, affecting 120,000 men in the United Kingdom, is expected to reach full effectiveness today, officials of the transport and general workers' union stated.

No hope is based on action of the "blue ticket union," a new and hitherto unrecognized rival of the transport workers' union, which has recommended a "stay-in strike" under which men would continue on duty, but go slow on piecework and refuse to do overtime.

This action is viewed not as embodying any altruistic motive toward the public, but as aimed at injuring the transport union and enforcing recognition of the Blue Tickets by employers, who have hitherto ignored the organization's existence. There is a demand in some quarters that this attitude should be met by the employers immediately locking out the Blues.

There is nothing to confirm reports that Premier Macdonald or the council of the Trades Union congress is likely to intervene today. The newspapers state that the Government, foreseeing the present outcome of the quarrel between dockers and their employers which had been in progress for some weeks, made careful plans to insure a supply of foodstuffs.

In Plymouth the strike involved handling of the American Ambassador's dispatches from Washington by the representative who usually comes to superintend the task, but in this case he had to remove them personally from the liner Nieuw Amsterdam. More than 3000 bags of mail were held up.

FEDERAL PRISONER DIVES THROUGH WINDOW OF TRAIN

Man Being Taken From Springfield, Ill., to Leavenworth Files Handcuffs.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEXICO, Mo., Feb. 18.—Jack Kirby, 35 years old, a Federal prisoner, being taken from Springfield, Ill., to the Leavenworth penitentiary, escaped here early yesterday by diving through the window of a moving Chicago & Alton passenger train after filing the handcuffs which held him to another prisoner.

The train, which had just pulled out of the station, was going about 15 miles an hour. Kirby, one of a large group of prisoners in charge of United States Marshal W. L. Moody, had been searched before and another file found on him. A negro to whom he was chained did not escape.

The fugitive was reported seen several hours later in Rush Hill, Mo. Two Federal guards are assisting authorities in the search for him.

Federal authorities here said they believed Kirby was the James Kirby of Clinton, Ia., who has several times figured in sensational escapes. Arrested in Independence, Kan., in 1921 for jumping his bond in a stolen automobile transportation case at Peoria, Ill., he escaped five days later. Captured in Oklahoma, where he was also wanted as a jewelry robbery suspect, he sawed his way out of the Pawhuska jail and led 10 prisoners in a successful dash for liberty.

Kirby appeared in St. Louis early in 1922, was arrested by United States Deputy Marshal John Tynch, and sent back to Peoria, where he was sentenced to a year and a day in Leavenworth in the auto case. On his release he was taken at once to Oklahoma to face charges there. The escaped Jack Kirby was on his way to Leavenworth to serve eight years for transporting a stolen automobile from Illinois to Missouri.

'DRY ACT CHALLENGE TO U. S.'

Woman Assistant Attorney-General Assails Public's Indifference.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—Public indifference was named as the root of community and national evils by Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant United States Attorney-General, and Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois, at a Washington-Lincoln service of the Sunday Evening Club last night.

"When the eighteenth amendment was passed, most of our citizens, leaned back in their chairs and expected Uncle Sam to see that it was enforced," Mrs. Willebrandt said. "Unless the citizens of this country wake up and see their responsibilities in connection with the enforcement of this law, we will become the laughing stock of the world. The eighteenth amendment is a challenge to the nation and whether you like it or not, the Constitution must be upheld or it will be considered that we have not the backbone to put into action what we have put in writing."

AMERICA TO SEND NO DUNS ON WAR DEBTS

Government's Policy Toward Funding Plans Unchanged After Conference.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The American Government's war debt policy remained unchanged after a conference today of the debt commission.

The commission failed to act on proposals that the debtor governments be reminded again that the United States is awaiting funding proposals.

The commission issued this statement after the meeting:

"The commission is taking all practicable steps to bring about a funding of the entire indebtedness to the United States.

"At the moment certain debtor nations have commissions either in this country or expected here shortly for the purpose of taking up questions relating to the indebtedness, namely Czecho-Slovakia, Esthonia, Poland and Jugo-Slavia.

"These debts, as well as the other debts, together with appropriate proceedings relating thereto, are receiving the constant attention of the commission."

Members favoring a more positive stand by the commission in the meeting renewed their proposals for a circular note to the debtor powers, but the suggestion got no further than a general discussion.

The diplomatic representatives heer of Esthonia and Poland have been in communication with debt commission officials concerning funding negotiations, but those officials declined to say how far the discussion had proceeded. The two ministers have been officially designated by their respective governments to conduct the negotiations, but neither has yet met with the commission as a whole.

DAWES EXPERTS FRAMING REPORT ON REPARATIONS

Commission Back in Paris to Conclude Study of Problem and Prepare Its Recommendations.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 18.—Armed with the most complete statistics concerning Europe's economic condition that have been assembled since the armistice was signed, the committee of experts commenced today the concluding part of their labors, namely, discussion on the construction of their recommendations.

This report will be delivered to the reparation commission under whose auspices the committee has been working, and will endeavor to point out the best method to solve the reparation tangle.

Both committees, the first presided over by Brigadier-General Charles B. Dawes, and the second, headed by Reginald McKenna, former Chancellor of the British exchequer, met for the first time in plenary session since their return from Berlin, where all phases of Germany's economic and financial condition were investigated.

The committee under Gen. Dawes began a general discussion of the Dossiers which have been studied by the committeemen individually since their return and in the afternoon the sub-committee on the question of a German gold bank heard Dr. Schacht, president of the Reichsbank on final details with regard to the constitution of the bank.

An atmosphere of optimism pervades committee circles, notwithstanding the recognized fact that the investigation is entering upon its most delicate stages.

French Anxious for Experts to Publish Their Findings.

(Copyright, 1924.)

PARIS, Feb. 18.—The French, realizing the danger that the franc may sink still lower, are urging that Gen. Charles G. Dawes set an even faster pace for his committee of reparations experts. The French Government is anxious to have the experts publish their plan immediately to reassure French creditors that Germany is going to pay.

"Cannot the experts get their report ready within a few days?" asks the semi-official Temps in an editorial, entitled "Do It Quickly and It Will Do Good."

The experts from Great Britain, Belgium, Italy and France consulted their governments during the last week's recess after leaving Berlin, and now comes the delicate task of framing a report which will take account of the facts as well as political sensibilities.

The experts are expected to declare Germany needs a moratorium, to suggest an international reparations loan which will carry Germany, France and Belgium through the moratorium period, and to point out the advantage of permitting Germans to manage the business of the Ruhr and Rhineland while still permitting French occupation," as a precaution."

Plans for Gold Banks.

If the framing of this report takes a long time, it is expected Herr Schact will be given approval for his proposed gold note bank in Germany. This, however, would be absorbed by the international gold bank outside Germany which the experts expect to establish later.

The report will be addressed to the Reparation Commission and probably made public at the same time. However, the commission will be kept informed of its contents as it is being drafted, so it probably will be able to pronounce on it promptly.

Then it will be transmitted to the various interested governments and there will be an international exchange of ideas. The latest stage is the expected convening of an international conference. France wants all this to happen before the end of March.

$123,458 IN FEES UP IN BLANKE CASE

Trustee Charges of $28,795 and $57,162 Discussed—Case Taken Under Advisement.

Trustee fees and legal fees amounting to $123,458, which the St. Louis Union Trust Co. has charged or seeks to charge against the $1,455,000 estate of Mrs. Mary Jane Blanke, were discussed in Circuit Judge Hartmann's court today, before the claim of Mrs. Ida Loud, Mrs. Blanke's daughter, against the trust company, was taken under advisement.

In the earlier part of the hearing, which ran through last week, Mrs. Loud claimed $173,500 from the trust company on the ground that it sold 1735 shares of stock, belonging to the estate, at a price $100 a share less than could have been obtained for it at the time. The stock was that of the Granby Mining and Milling Co.

The total amount in dispute between Mrs. Loud and the trust company thus appears as $296,958.

Exceptions to Settlement.

Mrs. Blanke's estate, while in the trust company's hands since 1914, increased in value from $805,903 to $1,455,409. The present case results from Mrs. Loud's exceptions to the settlement and accounting made to her by the trust company.

The legal fees discussed today were one of $15,000, paid to the company's attorneys in the original proceedings to set aside the trust on the ground that it was in perpetuity; a fee of $7500 for handling the same matter in the Supreme Court, where the trust was set aside; and a claim of $15,000 for fighting the present exceptions. Trust company's attorneys are Bryan, Williams & Cave.

Trustee Fees.

The trustee fees to which Mrs. Loud takes exception are one of $28,795.02, paid, and one of $57,162.43 claimed by the trust company. Executor's fees of $43,503.28, collected by the trust company before it turned the estate over to itself as trustee, are not disputed by Mrs. Loud.

Several lawyers testified today as to the legal and trustee fees, and their view of the obligations in the case. John M. Godwin, Mrs. Loud's counsel, contended that, as the trust had been declared void, the trust company should receive no fees as trustee and had no right to charge counsel fees against the estate.

GERMAN CARTOONIST FINED FOR OBSCENE PICTURES

Three Art Experts Testify That He Is Great Satirist, but Court Holds Otherwise.

By Radio to the Post-Dispatch and Chicago Daily News.

(Copyright, 1924.)

BERLIN, Feb. 18.—Testimony of three art experts, including Maximilian Harden, failed to save Caricaturist George Gorsz from a fine of 500 marks for publishing and exhibiting obscene pictures. These experts declared Gorsz was one of the most prominent German artists and a great satirist, but the Court held otherwise and imposed the fine and suppressed a portfolio of drawings entitled "Ecce Homo," which impugn the virtue of the so-called normal man.

Gorsz calls a spade a spade with the frankness of a Biblical reformer and portrays the worst details of war misery and social sores.

FUNERAL OF MURDER VICTIMS

Heads of Mrs. Lina Shoup Lincoln and Her Brother Buried.

By the Associated Press.

MT. PULASKI, Ill., Feb. 18.—Funeral services for Mrs. Lina Shoup Lincoln and her brother, Byron Lewis Shoup, both of whom Warren J. Linclon has confessed he killed on Jan. 11, 1923, and whose heads were found set in a concrete block at Aurora, were held here yesterday afternoon from the Christian Church. Throngs attended. Two small coffins, about three feet long were used. Only the heads of the victims have been found.

U. S. COURTS HANDLING 119 DRY CASES DAILY

Attorney-General Says "Maximum Number of Violations May Have Been Reached."

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Figures showing the astounding increase in the number of prohibition cases clogging the Federal courts are contained in a report submitted to President Coolidge by Attorney-General Daugherty.

Daugherty discussed the legal phases of enforcement during the four years the Volstead law has been effective, pointing out that from 2196 cases pending at the close og the fiscal year 1920 the number had increased to 23,052 at the close of the last year. Within the four-year period more than 115,000 criminal cases arising under the prohibition act have been terminated.

"This means," the Attorney-General reported, "that if the courts could have been in session every day during the four years, Sundays and holidays included, it would have been necessary for them to dispose of an average of 80 prohibition cases a day. Actually they did not do this during the early months of enforcement, but during the last fiscal year they went beyond the general average and disposed of cases at the rate of 119 per day.

Percentage of Convictions.

"Of this greater number of cases which have been determined, 80 per cent, or 92,411, have resulted in convictions and have brought in $15,726,593 in fines, or a monthly revenut of $327,641. If divided equally among the convicted ones, it would give each a fine of $170.

"The cases disposed of during the fiscal year ended 1920 amounted to 69 per cent of the cases commenced during that year. During the fiscal year ended 1921, the dispositions amounted to 68 per cent of those commenced and pending; in 1922 they amounted to 63 per cent, and in 1923 they amounted to 65 per cent. In spite of the increase in cases, the percentages have remained practically the same throughout the four years.

"Recent reports are even more encouraging. Instead of the continued increase in pending cases, the latest reports show a slight decrease. On Jan. 1, 1924, there were 22,412 prohibition cases pending on the criminal dockets, or 640 less than were pending on Jan. 30. The largest decrease in one district was reported by the Southern District of New York. On Jan. 30, 1923, that district reported 2147 cases pending, while six months later the number had decreased to 1517.

Work of Enforcement Intensive.

"It may be that that maximum number of violations has already been reached. Whether or not true, will of course be shown by the reports for the coming months. However that may be, the work of enforcement has taken on an intensive, rather than extensive character."

The Attorney-General expressed regret that there had been so many dismissed cases, most of which, he said, were dropped by United States attorneys for want of evidence. The number of dismissals increased greatly during the last six months, he added, because many United States attorneys were seeking to clear their dockets of old cases.

Discussing the efforts to break up rum smuggling, Daugherty said it was hard to understand why there have been no seizures of boats in nine of the judicial districts having water fronts "when rumors of operation in their vicinities are heard frequently." Among these districts in which no boats were seized, the Attorney-General named Northern Illinois (Chicago), Maryland (Baltimore), Southern Alabama (Mobile), and Maine (Portland).

CHARGES RAILROAD OBTAINED $136,118,533 FROM LAND

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. — A claim that the Northern Pacific Railway Co. has received a total of $136,118,533 from the sale of lands from its Government grants, or nearly twice the $70,000,000 cost of constructing the railroad, is set up by the Forest Service as a chief reason why Congress should deny the railroad company the right to take over additional 3,000,000 acres of public lands which it now claims under the original grants.

A resolution directing the Secretary of the Interior to withhold his approval of the adjustment of the Northern Pacific land grants and the issuance of any further patents on them until a congressional inquiry can be made has been introduced in the House. It is sponsored by the Interior and Agricultural departments and will be pressed.

Asserting that the railway company is seeking acreage in the national forests of Montana, Idaho and Washington worth probably $30,000,000, the forest service argues that the Northern Pacific land grants have been fully satisfied.

Final analysis is a question of value

If fine woolens offered only their out-of-the-ordinary appearance in finish, colors and patterns, that would be something. But like all thoroughbreds they show their heritage in their staying power.

If custom tailoring only gratified the eye and the pride through fitting the garments to the individual taste and form—that would be much. But tailoring that is to stand up under wear must be hand tailoring—that is utility. Even so, if this combination of fine woolens and custom tailoring was beyond the reach of the man of moderate means—but it isn't.

DISCOVER BUILDING 6000 YEARS OLD

Explorers Assert Babylonian Temple Is Oldest Structure Standing Above Ground.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 18.—The oldest building in the world still standing above ground has been found by the joint expedition of the British Museum of London, and the University Museum of Philadelphia, at Tel El Obeid, Babylonia, four miles from Ur of the Chaldees, of Biblical fame, Dr. George B. Gordon, director of the University Museum, announced in making public a report from Dr. C. Leonard Woolley, head of joint expedition on the banks of the Euphrates.

The excavation of this building, a temple, has moved the already ancient history of Babylonia back another 1000 years. The building is more than 6000 years old and its history is placed at a period as far removed from King Tutankhamen in the past as the present generation is removed from him in known history.

Dr. Gordon announced that the expedition has unearthed remarkable carvings, one of the choicest finds being a small golden scaraboid bed inscribed with the name of the builder of the temple, King Aannipadda of Ur, who reigned 4500 years before Christ. This is the oldest royal jewel known. Describing the building, Dr. Woolley's report says, in part:

"A broad flight of stone steps led to a platform about 20 feet high on the south corner of which stood the temple proper, its gate tower fronting on the stairway. Its facade set back from the edge of the platform so as to leave a narrow step on which stood a row of statues of bulls, sculptured in the round. These stood some three feet high and were made of thin copper plates beaten up over a wooden core. Their heads were turned out to face the spectators and their horns were of gold.

"Two of these statues have been recovered, though in a bad condition, owing to the crushing of the metal under the enormous weight of the brickwork which had fallen and to the enemy hands which had torn off the golden horns.

"Of the frieze of cattle lying down * * * We now have a dozen examples. Above them was a frieze of a different sort. Figures carved in white shell or limestone were inlaid against a background of black tesserae. The whole inclosed in a copper frame. Of this we have a complete section in perfect condition. Some show bulls advancing in solemn procession. The most interesting, a panel four feet long, has on one side a milking scene, cows and their calves, and men milking the cows into tall jars. * * *

"An important discovery was that of two columns, 10 feet high, encrusted with mosaic work in black paste, red stone and mother o'pearl. Both had been damaged by their fall * * *. It was found possible * * * to preserve these remarkable columns, if not as they stood in the temple, at least as they were after they had once fallen from it."

FRENCH STORES, ANTICIPATING TAX INCREASE, BOOST PRICES

Press and Public Condemn Advances of 10 to 50 Per Cent—Coffee Drinkers Hardest Hit.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 18.—The German merchants' remarkable facility in marking up prices as the mark fell taught the French retailers the tricks of the trade, and the public now is getting a taste of modern methods in the rapid changing of price tags. The newspapers and the public are complaining loudly that many stores already have anticipated Premier Poincare's as yet unvoted 20 per cent increase in taxes and, instead of advancing prices from 2 to 5 per cent, as the economists say is justified, they are shoving up the selling figures from 10 to 50 per cent.

Fortunately, the heaviest of these increases are merely on small items and luxuries, but the hardest blow to the Frenchman has been the higher cost of his periodical aperitif. Coffee, which is easily the most popular drink, has been increased from 4 to 6 sous in the small cafes, and from 15 to 20 sous in the better places.

Tips, likewise, have gone up, so that the time-honored 10 per cent frequently brings a look of disdain from the waiter.

GAIN IN TONNAGE SHOWN BY LOWER RIVER BARGE LINE

Increase of 110,762 Tons Over Amount Hauled Last Year Reported by Manager.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 18.—The Mississippi River branch of the Federal barge line, from New Orleans to St. Louis, during the calendar year 1923, transported 710,431 tons of cargo, W. M. Hough, general freight agent of the line, has announced. This was a gain of 110,762 tons over the preceding year.

The announcement added that January tonnage hauled by the line was 53,000 tons, while in February, despite the shortness of the month, the line would handle from 80,000 to 85,000 tons.

The financial balance sheet for operations during the calendar year had not been completed, Hough stated, but it was expected to show an operating loss after setting aside depreciation. It was explained that early in the year the line had not fully recovered from the effects of the low-water season of 1922.

WOMAN, 96, DIES DAY AFTER AUTO HITS HER

Driver, Held for Coroner, Says He Swerved to Avoid Hitting Another.

Mrs. Eva Novack, 96 years old, of 1628 Carr street, died at city hospital last night from injuries suffered the night before when hit by an automobile at McPherson and Walton avenues.

The driver, Richard W. Grace, 106A South Main street, East St. Louis, was held under bond pending action by the Coroner. He said Mrs. Novack was struck by the rear fender of his automobile after he swerved to avoid striking another woman. Mrs. Novack had started across McPherson avenue, to the street car stop, when she was knocked down.

Mrs. Novack was the first to die before reaching the age of 100 years of three women in direct line of descent. Her son, Michael Novack, 4247 Evans avenue, said today that Mrs. Novack's mother was 100 years old when she died, and her grandmother was 113 years old at her death.

Mrs. Novack was born in Kiev, Russia, and lived there until she was 81 years old, when she came to the United States. Two sons and two daughters survive.

Funeral services will be held at Sherrith Sfard Synagogue, Fifteenth and Wash streets, this afternoon, with burial in Chesed Shal Amath Cemetery.

ROADHOUSE HELD UP BY SEVEN ROBBERS

Seven robbers, each carrying one or two revolvers, and all but one masked with red bandanas, obtained more than $635 in a holdup at Gravois Inn, a roadhouse at 8400 Gravois road, about half a mile beyond the city limits, at 12:30 a. m. today.

Walter Julian, proprietor, who lives upstairs, was preparing to close when three men and three women entered the dining room. The bartender, whose name was variously reported as Mays and Mize, went in to serve them. Just then the robbers entered through a side door and ordered, "everybody stick 'em up." Two of the women had gone to a rear room and were not held up.

Some of the robbers went to the barroom and held up Julian, who was alone there. The loot reported taken was: $185 from the cash register, $200 from Julian's pocket, $85 from the waiter and $165 from one of the men customers, whose name was not learned, small sums from the other men and a wrist watch and pocketbook from that woman.

It was said at the roadhouse today that a diamond stud was taken from one of the men, but this was not reported to the authorities.

Julian's watch was taken from him by one robber, but he asked for its return and another of the intruders forced his companion to give it back. One customer was allowed to keep 26 cents—all he had.

The five men were locked in the icebox, which is small, and the woman was made to sit on a chair in the barroom. One of the robbers, it was said today, fired two shots to break the lock of a drawer behind the bar. The wires of the telephone receiver were jerked off, and the wiring of an automobile in which the customers had come was cut, stranding it there. The icebox prisoners let themselves out as soon as the robbers left.

BONUS ESTIMATES 'JUGGLED,' SAYS ALIEN CUSTODIAN

Miller Says That Treasury Gave Out Misleading Figures in Order to Defeat Compensation.

STATEMENTS DENIED BY SECRETARY MELLON

Former American Legion Commander Predicts Bonus Bill Will Be Passed Over President's Veto.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Charges that a "high treasury official" had admitted to him that Treasury Department estimates of the costs of a soldier bonus had been "juggled" to defeat the proposal, have been made by Col. Thomas W. Miller, Alien Property Custodian.

The charges were made yesterday at mass meetings in New York and Newark.

Col. Miller was formerly vice chairman, resident at Washington, of the American Legion's National Legislative Committee.

After the Newark meeting Col. Miller told a Post-Dispatch representative that an actuary of the Treasury Department had made the statement to him in the office of a United States Senator. Col. Miller refused to divulge names.

"It is well known," he said, "that the Treasury gave one set of figures as the cost of the bonus before the McCumber bonus bill was vetoed, another set after President Harding's veto, and still a third set when Secretary Mellon's tax reduction plan was announced.

Larger and Larger Estimates.

"As the prosperity of the country increases, the Treasury makes larger estimates of the cost of a bonus."

At the New York meeting Col. Miller declared the "high Treasury official" explained the "juggling" by saying the department felt it had to use stronger and stronger arguments against the bonus each time it came up in Congress.

"A drunken leader of the Veterans' Bureau gave a bonus to every grafter connected with him," Col. Miller continued." All the gold in the world wouldn't pay for the sacrifice of life in the last war. I, for one, stayed at home and got the gravy, while these men were getting $30 a month. Now I want them to be compensated for what they lost while those at home were getting it. Even now the disabled soldier has to be brought in on a stretcher before he gets what is com[illegible]."

[illegible] Civil Service Men.

[illegible] ment, Col. Miller said [illegible] ice employes draw a m[illegible] bonus of $20. So far, he added, this bonus has cost the Government $300,000,000. He pointed out that $746,000,000 was paid to railroads during the war, $600,000,000 to railroad employes, and $700,000,000 in compensation to various war contractors.

"We are mad because of the juggling of figures by the Treasury Department," Miller asserted, "and because of the broken promises by some Senators and representatives. At the next election, we should show by our votes those who have been our friends, and those who have been against us."

Alvin Owsley, former national commander of the Legion, said:

"I put 'distinguished' before Secretary Mellon's name every time I use it, because I don't believe you could find another like him in the United States. First he said we had a deficit of over $600,000,000, but later it developed that we had a longage of over $300,000,000."

Owsley said the bonus would pass the House of Representatives by a five to one vote and would receive more than half the votes in the Senate, "eventually passing over the veto of President Coolidge."

Secretary Mellon Amazed at Charge by Miller.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Secretary Mellon last night declared to be "absolutely unfounded and untrue" charges by Thomas A. Miller that the Treasury had "juggled" figures in the bonus fight to fool the public.

The Secretary said he was amazed at the statements of Miller and that his denial could not be made too emphatic.

Other Treasury officials were equally emphatic in denying any tampering with figures.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Secretary Mellon last night declared to be "absolutely unfounded and untrue" charges by Thomas A. Miller that the Treasury had "juggled" figures in the bonus fight to fool the public.

The Secretary said he was amazed at the statements of Miller and that his denial could not be made too emphatic.

Other Treasury officials were equally emphatic in denying any tampering with figures.

Miller was appointed alien property custodian by President Harding. His department is an independent one and is not under supervision of any Cabinet officer. He has been prominent in Republican politics in Delaware.

Miller said in a statement today that he was calling attention to "Discrepancies" in Treasury estimates so the people could decide the question for themselves.

"I am entering into no controversy with anyone," he said, adding that the "true facts" as he stated them in his New York speech were "that a number of conflicting statements had been made from time to time by the Treasury Department, touching on the figures given out by that department with regard to the estimated cost of the so-called adjusted compensation measure."

Comparing the various Treasury estimates of the compensation cost, Miller said that when President Harding vetoed the bonus bill in September, 1922, he stated that the country was face to face with a great emergency in that it was confronted with a deficit of $650,000,000. "Yet in the same fiscal year the Government paid $613,000,000 of the Government debt, and still the Treasury ended the fiscal year 1922-23 with a balance to its credit of $370,000,000.

"The figures given out by the Treasury Department from time to time," Miller continued, "vary as to the estimated cost of this meas-

A Million Children Who Slave!

Mississippi Protects Cattle, but Is Too Poor to Guard Children

Labor and School Laws Both Lax and Not Half Enforced, Such as They Are —One Factory Inspector for Whole State.

ONE child in every 12 between the ages of 10 and 15 in the United States has to work. Unknown thousands of others below the age of 10 are engaged in some "painful occupation." Since the last of the Federal enactments against this condition has been upset by the United States Supreme Court the number is steadily increasing.

What is the effect, mental, moral and physical, of this condition?

A correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World has just returned from a 6000-mile journey taking him from New York in the East to Colorado in the West, from Louisiana in the South to Michigan in the North, in search for the answer to this question. His conclusions are set forth in a series of articles, of which the following is the third. He tells a story that is of a peculiar importance at this time, when the proposal for an amendment to the Constitution that shall raise an effective bar against child labor is again being brought before Congress.

By Henry F. Pringle.

Mississippi, since she spent 10 times as much during 1923 for her cattle as for the enforcement of her child labor laws, must plead guilty to sanctioning such violations as may occur in the Gulf Coast canneries and elsewhere.

Her laws are bad enough and would hardly protect the children of the State even if adequate machinery to see that they are obeyed were in operation. But the two factors—nonenforcement and poor laws—are demanding their price. Mississippi leads all the States of the Union today, with 25.5 per cent of her children between 10 and 15 years old at work. She is far down on the illiteracy scale, with 9.3 per cent of her children of the same age group unable to read or write.

Mississippi, boastful of her natural resources, virtually encourages the exploitation of her future generation. Her compulsory school laws are as bad as her child labor laws. The cost of all this, speaking in terms other than that of dollars and cents considered by her Legislature, is a growing body of children who are being defrauded of education, bound to a particular industry as soon as they are able to earn a pittance, and suffering in health because of the intolerable living conditions in many of the industrial communities.

One Inspector for State.

A. B. Hobbs, who makes his headquarters at the State Capitol at Jackson, is the solitary factory inspector for the entire State. Hobbs said that with the present appropiration of only $5500 for his work it was impossible to enforce the child labor laws. He declared he was greatly in favor of the enactment of a Federal amendment so the children would be protected, despite the neglect of the State Legislature. A total of $5500 to protect the children in industry! Mississippi can afford $50,000 for the prevention of stock disease! Such was the sum appropriated for the protection of cattle in 1923.

Louisiana is almost as bad. Her law permits a 10-hour day for boys and girls over 14, but the loopholes in the law make it possible for unscrupulous manufacturers to employ children of almost any age. Frank E. Wood, Commissioner of Labor for the State, also declared he favored control by the Federal Government. Employing certificates, he said, were being falsified in increasing numbers. His own staff could not cope with the situation on an appropriation of $11,400. They were unable to visit canneries and isolated industrial centers more than once a year at the outside, said Wood.

Factory Inspector Hobbs of Mississippi unconsciously bore out the grinning boast of the idiot girl of Biloxi. He said he believed there was every possibility that the law was being violated down in the Gulf Coast section and that he had heard reports of a system whereby the children were warned to run and hide when he approached. Because of this, he said, he had never actually seen the children at work, although he had often seen them "hanging around the canneries."

State Law Is Remiss.

"Our State law is remiss because it does not make the presence of children prima facie evidence of violation of the law," said Hobbs. "I am inclined to think that more children work in the textile and knitting mills than in the canneries. There is a special clause in our law which makes it legal to employ boys between 12 and 14 and girls between 14 and 16 for 10 hours a day in the mills. This was not possible under the Federal law, of course. These children have gone to work—I think there are about 1200 of them in all—since the second Federal law was declared unconstitutional in 1922."

Mississippi's school law is liberal, to say the least. Children between seven and 14 only are required to attend and the whole system is at the mercy of lax enforcement on the part of the local authorities. The required term is but 80 days and the separate counties have the right to specify whether the 80 day term is to be completed at the beginning of the year or at the end.

The poverty of the average family employed in the canneries has made it necessary for them to withdraw their children for the periods in the fall when the oysters and shrimps are being canned. Prof. E. L. Leach, at present principal of the school at Gulfport, not far from Biloxi, said work at the canneries was causing great retardation among the boys and girls. He was formerly head of the school at Biloxi, which is in the heart of the canning district.

Quit School as Whistle Blows.

"It's horrible work," said Prof. Leach. "The cannery children come to school, when they come at all, very often with sore hands from the shrimp acid and have to be sent home. There's no one to enforce the laws and nobody seems to care very much. Why, when I was a principal at Biloxi the cannery whistle would blow when the boys and girls were playing in the yard at recess. When we were ready for the afternoon session we would find that most of them had hurried down to work."

"A great many of the oyster and shrimp children do not attend school at all," said Superintendent of Education Temming, in charge of Harrison County, where many of the canneries are located. "The law, you see, compels but 80 days of attendance, and even this provision is vaguely enforced."

In the face of unanimous statements by the residents of the cities where canneries are located, to the effect that work is started at any hour of the day or night when the catch comes in, the managers of the plants insist that they no longer begin operation before 6 o'clock in the morning. Many of them protested that they employed no children under 16 years of age.

The correspondent was assured by one of these officials at Biloxi that such was the case. His visit was made when few shrimp were being canned and before the oyster season was in full swing. But at the shed of one of the largest canneries he found about 20 children.

Foreman's Naive View.

"Don't it beat hell?" protested the foreman as he calmly watched the children from his office. "They jes' gets in despite all we can do. We chases 'em out, but they comes back and picks a pail or two. Ain't they little devils for work?"

The canners are indignant concerning a study made by the Children's bureau in 1919. This consisted of a painstaking survey of several months' duration in 22 communities along the Gulf Coast. More than 500 children, half of them between 6 and 14 years old, were at work. They started as early as 3 o'clock in the morning. Superintendent Temming of Harrison County told the correspondent that in a normal season, with shrimps and oysters being canned in the usual quantities, the figures of the Children's Bureau would be borne out by careful investigation.

A Looker-On In Washington

Taking of Stock of Oil Inquiry Reveals Some Bright Lights of Political World Have Gone Out Forever, While Others of Grand Oil Party Have Dimmed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.

LET us take an account of stock up to date.

We begin with Fall. Ruined, irretrievably ruined, for no matter what may be the outcome of the contemplated legal proceedings, he stands condemned. As a figure in public affairs, Fall passes into oblivion. Once a foremost character in the Senate, regarded by many as a great lawyer, an authority on Mexican politics, the close friend and trusted adviser of a President, respected by his associates, Fall disappears.

There is Secretary Denby, a well-meaning man. Denby was less culpable than careless. He was the type of man to whom America erects monuments, sometimes figuratively and at other times in stone or bronze. He was the successful business man, whom America worships. He was not the great captain of industry, to be admired for his courage and audacity and vision or to be vilified for his ruthlessness and disregard of those who stood in his way. He was a plodder and booster. He stood for respectability and a bigger and better and greater city. His admiring fellow citizens sent him to the Legislature, then they promoted him to the House of Representatives. Then he went into the Cabinet as Secretary of the Navy. Honest, well meaning, conscientious, according to his code, frankly, the job was too big for him. It was one of Mr. Harding's many curious appointments. So Denby flames for a brief moment and goes out in darkness.

As his light goes out, so is extinguished that of his old chief assistant, Theodore Roosevelt, the Assistant Secretary of the Navy. Mr. Roosevelt, being young, may later be able to blow the dead spark into life, but for the present it is lifeless. His great ambition to lead to an even greater ambition, to be nominated and elected Governor of New York, if not defeated is at least deferred. Roosevelt may have been simply careless, or too sure of himself, or too prone too slapdash methods too little apt to do his own thinking and too readily influenced by stronger minds—it is immaterial the causes, but he has rendered himself ineligible as a candidate this year or for a good many years to come. Even an assistant secretaryship is beyond his scope.

Harry M. Daugherty's Light Goes Out, Too.

THERE is Harry M. Daugherty of Columbus, O., by grace of Warren G. Harding Attorney-General of the United States. Spiritually and intellectually there could be no wider gulf between two men that that which separates the President and his Attorney-General; no two men to whom life means such different things; whose attitude is so unlike. When Mr. Coolidge came into the White House and announced it was his intention to carry out the Harding policies with the instruments Mr. Harding had provided, Mr. Coolidge could not make the one exception in the case of Mr. Daugherty; but if what we hear is true, Mr. Coolidge hoped that Mr. Daugherty would find a month or so later that the conditions of his health or the state of his private affairs reluctantly compelled him to retire from the Cabinet. He has hung on, but his star sinks below the horizon in the gloom of night.

There are other men's names at present only on the tongue of rumor. They may rest in their fancied security until their portraits done in oil decorate the Hall of Fame. How much Doheny and Sinclair have been injured it is not easy to tell, because what may wreck a political reputation may have no effect upon a business man. McAdoo is a victim, and there may be others. Towering above them all is the Republican Party.

The Grand Oil Party Mixed in Bad Mess.

THE Republican Party—the Grand Oil Party as it is now pleasantly and appropriately referred to—comes out very much battered by its adventures in the oil fields; but, say Republicans, if we are somewhat disfigured there is satisfaction in knowing that our opponent has not escaped entirely without scratches. The imminent leader of the Republican Party in the House, who always likes to exhibit his wit, which is as light and playful as the animal he bestrides, recalls the fact that four years ago Mr. Doheny was placed in nomination for the vice presidential candidate on the Democratic ticket, whereat we read in the veracious Congressional Record there was applause. This is supposed to be a Roland for an Oliver. Fall having been charged with accepting a bribe of $100,000, Doheny and the Democratic party are no less culpable—or that at least we assume is the drift of Longworth's Congressional logic.

It is an old trick this of drawing a red herring across a trail. "The Friar preached against thieving and had a goose in his sleeve." The cutpurse cries "Stop thief!" to send the Constable off on a false scent. Longworth may think it "vastly amusing, and his devoted followers who vote as he commands—except when they vote the other way—may think the Democratic pot is precluded from calling the Republican kettle black, because in San Francisco four years ago overzealous but foolish friends of Doheny mentioned his name as a vice presidential candidate, and the convention showed how kindly it took to the suggestion when not even a roll call was necessary to dispose of Doheny and his pretensions. Even if Doheny had been nominated, Longworth's logic—which we use as a polite term to avoid wounding Longworth's tender sensibilities—would still be at fault. Candidates do not appoint members of the Cabinet. Presidents do.

Red Herring Trick Will Fail This Time.

FALL was a Republican in good standing with his party. Fall was appointed Secretary of the Interior. It was Fall who made the leases for the Government's oil re-

PROPOSED CHANGES IN MISSOURI CONSTITUTION

Elective Board to Head State Department of Education Provided for in Amendment 15.

Following is the eleventh of a series of explanatory articles on the proposed amendments to the Missouri Constitution, to be voted on Feb. 26. These articles are appearing from day to day in the Post-Dispatch.

By VINCENT M. CARROLL,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 18.

DISPLACEMENT of the present ex-officio State Board of Education composed of the State Superintendent of Schools, Governor, Secretary of State and Attorney-General, by an elective board of six members, which would head the State Department of Education, is the principal aim of Amendment No. 15, which would revise Article XI of the Constitution.

The State public school system now is directed largely by an elective State Superintendent of Schools, chosen every four years, just as are other State officers, the ex-officio board being very largely the tail to the kite, as it has little authority and devotes only a few hours now and then to the department. Advocates of a State Board of Education strongly organized for the sole purpose of administering schools of the State, went to the Constitutional Convention urging creation of a board identical with that which administers the University of Missouri, appointive by the Governor. It was urged in behalf of such a plan that it made politics twice removed from the directing head, which with the university is the president.

A Governor, however much he played politics with other branches of the State government, would use more conscience with the schools, they argued, even as State executives for the most part have not injected politics into the university. By appointing high-type men to the board there would be reasonable assurance that a high class educator and executive would be chosen to direct the schools.

Opponets of this plan, headed by Mrs. W. W. Martin of Fayette, chairman of the convention's Committee on Education, were insistent, however, upon retaining the present system of electing a Superintendent through the regular political mills of selection—party primaries and general elections.

They asserted that as the schools of the State are that part of their public system nearest the hearts of the people, their management should be left as close to the voters as possible.

Elective Board Plan a Compromise.

After long and vigorous consideration, which at times became rather acrimonious, a compromise was reached—an elective board, members of which would appoint a Commissioner of Education corresponding in duties and authorities to the present State Superintendent.

This change has the approval of Charles A. Lee, the present State Superintendent, who is working for adoption of the amendment, and the State Teachers' Association, which likewise is conducting a fight for it.

The teachers advocate the change because it will enable choice of an educator-executive for active head of the schools, regardless of whether his name would appeal to the voters, whether he was a public speaker or had the money or political backing to make campaigns.

Terms of the members and their per diem compensation and method of election would be fixed by the Legislature.

At present only persons between 6 and 20 years of age are permitted to attend the public schools in this State. But this amendment would permit school districts to provide for the education of others, the thought behind this idea being the establishment of kindergarten for children and Americanization schools for persons who, because their childhood was spent in countries where education was inaccessible to them, or other reasons, had failed to obtain mental training in their youth. Attendance at such schools could not be made compulsory, however, it is believed.

Investment of School Funds.

Changes also are offered in the class of investments in which may be placed the school funds of the State and counties. At present the State school fund may be invested only in bonds of the State of Missouri and of the United States, while the amendment would permit it to go also in the bonds of Missouri counties. County school funds now may be loaned only on unencumbered real estate of double the value of the loan, with personal security in addition.

The amendment would permit them to be loaned on such real estate, without personal security, and would allow their investment also in bonds of the State of Missouri and of the United States.

Under the Constitution of 1875 money from the public school fund may be appropriated only for the public schools and the University of Missouri, whereas under the amendment, appropriations from that fund could be made "for establishing and maintaining the public school and State educational institutions." This would mean that needs of the State teachers' colleges and other educational institutions as well could be met from the money set aside for the schools, instead of from the general revenue, as at present.

The last proposition is receiving the bitter opposition of the State Federation of Labor as voiced by R. T. Wood of Springfield, president, who contends that money set aside for the schools ought to go to the common schools, and that the others should subsist, as at present, upon what they receive from the general revenue fund.

Amendment No. 16.

Corporations will be allowed to issue preferred stock upon the consent of holders of two-thirds of their stock and sell their securities at such discounts as might be permitted by the Legislature if Amendment No. 16 to Article XII of the Constitution, on "Corporations," is adopted.

At present corporations cannot issue preferred stock except by the consent of all of the holders of their stock. This provision, it is pointed out, frequently enables one or two stockholders to force their associates to buy at inflated prices, the stock of the one or two in order to complete transactions of considerable benefit to the corporation. The unanimous consent requirement "just provides unscrupulous individuals with the arms with which to commit holdups against their associates," one corporation attorney said. He argued that two-thirds is a sufficiently heavy margin of consent to require for the safety of minority stockholders, under most conditions.

The present Constitution forbids the sale of stock or bonds of any corporation at less than par, but the provision has been violated with impunity for years, modern conditions of financing practically forcing many large concerns to discount their bonds and stock to get money. The change would enable them legally to continue this practice within limits to be fixed by the Legislature.

Change in Railroad Regulation.

Then, too, it is sought to replace the long and short railroad haul regulation of the present Constitution with that included in the regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The present provision is that "It shall not be lawful in this State for any railroad company to charge for freight or passengers a greater amount for the transportation of the same for a less distance than the amount charged for any greater distance." The amendment would make it unlawful for a railroad to receive "any greater compensation in the aggregate for the transportation of passengers or like kind of property for a shorter than for a longer distance over the same line in the same direction, the shorter being included in the longer distance, or to charge any greater compensation as a through rate than the aggregate of the intermediate rates, but excursion and commutation tickets may be issued at special rates."

For example, the Missouri Pacific Railroad cannot make any cheaper freight rates to factories for a five-mile haul in the industrial districts surrounding St. Louis and Kansas City, than it makes, for instance, to a patron in Central Missouri with a seven or eight mile haul to Sedalia on the same kind of freight, although both the road and the State might be benefited by the upbuilding of the factory districts.

Under the change, the cheaper rates could be offered, except that longer hauls in the same direction, of which those cheaper-rate hauls were a part, would have to have the benefit of the cut.

The alteration was proposed by S. C. Bates of Springfield, a delegate, who is prominently connected with the traffic affairs of a number of large shippers.

This amendment is opposed by the State Federation of Labor on the ground that it discriminates in favor of big business.

Amendment No. 17—Military Affairs.

That section of Article XIII of the State Constitution which would permit conscientious objectors to pay the financial equivalent of service in the State militia in lieu of such service would be stricken out by proposed Amendment No. 17.

This amendment also would leave to the Legislature determination of whether the Adjutant-General and other general officers of the National Guard should be elected or appointed.

Further, it would permit the organization of "such other branches of the military service as may be provided by military regulations," which means that in addition to the infantry, cavalry and artillery provided for under the present Constitution, the State could have units of antiaircraft, engineers and other troops to meet the necessities of modern warfare.

Both of these changes are said to be acceptable to the friends of the National Guard, although some objection to the first change has been heard from persons who believe the right to exemption of persons with religious scruples against military service should be preserved in the same status as formerly. The convention decided, however, that the lessons of the recent war made the change advisable.

COMPROMISE IN HOUSE ON 40 PCT. SURTAX UNLIKELY

Administration Leaders Have Made It Known They Will Never Consent to More Than 35 Pct.

MUCH JOCKEYING FOR VOTES BACK HOME

Discussions Reveal Political Effect Overshadows Effort to Get a Good Revenue Measure.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Republican insurgents and organization leaders in the House again failed today to reach an agreement that would insure defeat of the Democratic tax program.

Resuming conferences which began Saturday in an effort to agree on a compromise surtax maximum, a dozen leaders discussed the proposition for two hours. The insurgents held out for their demand that normal income tax rates be cut in half, a suggestion which the organization group declined to accept.

It was agreed that another meeting would be held later in the day, but both factions were of the opinion that their differences would not be reconciled.

With a vote in the House probable tomorrow or Wednesday on the income tax provisions of the Mellon bill, the Republican organization has been attempting to win over enough insurgents to put through a surtax maximum below the 44 per cent by the Democrats.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Administration leaders in the House of Representatives have, the Post-Dispatch was authoritatively informed last night, decided to reject the Frear compromise tax offer under which the surtaxes would be cut to 40 per cent provided the normal taxes were also cut to one-half of what they are under the present law.

When the conferences in the House are resumed today the character of the bill which will come out will depend very largely on the success of Representative Frear in holding the insurgents together. The administration forces have made it known they will never consent to a surtax as high as 40 per cent. They will take 35 per cent.

Their very definite balking at any higher figure is the outgrowth of a general belief among the administration leaders that Representative Frear cannot enlist any considerable support for his 40 per cant ofer. If he does, it is pretty generally conceded that what will happen is that the bill eventually passed would be the Democratic substitute for the Mellon plan, drawn by Representative Garner, which carries surtaxes of 44 per cent.

Jockeying for Votes Back Home.

As the debate proceeds and the various groups meet for discussion in lobbies and committee rooms, the whole tax argument is coming to be more and more revealed, not so much as an effort to get a good revenue measure as a jockeying for votes back home.

The Democrats and the Republicans insurgents are anxious to get the credit for a big cut in the taxes of the low-salaried man, whom they regard as much more potential at the polls than those to whom the surtaxes apply.

Republican regulars, knowing that whatever bill is passed will have the effect of reducing taxes substantially, feel the bill should have a Republican label and the only way in which such a label can be fixed conclusively is by providing for a substantial reduction in surtaxes, even though they may not be able to get the 25 per cent demanded by Secretary Mellon.

Claims of Contending Forces.

Meanwhile, the administration forces are working hard to augment the 208 Republicans who have already indicated they will stand for a 35 per cent surtax. It was said today by those in a position to know, there was reason to believe the number had been increased. Only 10 more votes would be needed to make the necessary majority.

Meanwhile Frear, who with the insurgents, holds the balance of power, has let it be known that unless his compromise offer of 40 per cent is accepted, he will throw his strength behind the Garner bill, since the insurgents, originally for 50 per cent surtax, see much merit in a 44 per cent surtax.

The Democrats are bound to the Garner plan by caucus. This means that the eventual result depends largely on the success of insurgent cohesion.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Paroling Murderers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I READ in last Tuesday's issue of your paper of the signing of an order by Gov. Hyde—just before starting on his trip to Florida—commuting the sentence of Adolphus Fuller, a negro, 34 years old, who was serving a 25-year term in the State penitentiary for the murder of Patrolman Isaac Kidwell, May 10, 1917—his release to take effect immediately.

The question naturally arises: Did this negro murderer, sentenced to serve 25 years, have a powerful political pull to obtain his release after having served but a fraction of the original sentence imposed upon him (five years and 10 months, to be exact) by a court and jury—scarcely one-fourth of the intended punishment for his dastardly crime of killing a police officer, or were there other than political considerations at work in his case that prompted Gov. Hyde to free this negro criminal, thus undoing all the good work accomplished by a conscientious Judge and intelligent jury in inflicting the deserved punishment? Was this not another case of miscarried justice?

Your St. Louis Police Department expects and it demands results from its police officers in bringing in before the bars of justice such law-breakers and criminals as this negro, who, just like his other racial brother, saloon keeper at Jefferson and Lawton, Joe Kyle, who two years ago shot and killed Patrolman Buddy Stapleton, the memory of whose death is still fresh in the minds of your many regular readers, can now boast of having killed and put under the sod a St. Louis policeman while he, today, is walking the streets of your city a "free man" and with the added reputation of being an established "devil" or bravado among his racial brothers!

Do you think this act of our Governor in freeing this criminal is calculated to stimulate the vigilance and courage of our patrolmen and detectives when they see the results of their good and arduous work in bringing these scoundrels to justice is being undone and brought to naught by their superior officer, Gov. Hyde himself, with one stroke of his pen?

"A REGULAR READER."

"Other Free Educational Institutions."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I READ the editorial in your paper of Saturday explaining the education amendment. Will you give your readers your opinion of section eleven of the fifteenth amendment. "The General Assembly may retain, establish, maintain and prescribe the method of management of such other free educational institutions as it may deem for the best interest of the State."

It has been claimed that the above section gave the General Assembly the power to prescribe the method of management of all free educational institutions whether they be public or private. Is that claim correct?

Any school that the General Assembly establishes and maintains is a State school and it is only to these schools that the prescribing of management can apply.—Editor.

A Cheerless Prospect.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IT will not be long before the towns all around St. Louis will miss the weekly band concert in their parks. No less than six splendid organizations in this section have disbanded because the blight that has followed the adoption of the eighteenth amendment has operated to the extinguishment of music as well as morals. This city had a good band, which, at its organization, spent something like $3000 for instruments, uniforms and music. In addition to that, they also paid a good leader to come here; then a nice band stand was built in the center of the park for the Thursday evening concerts. Why should a lot of nice young men give their time and money playing requiems over the corpse of the chief community culture.

Now the weeds clamber through the rails of the band stand, the little children dance no more as the band plays, and no one now seems to care whether the weeds are even cut. To those of us who still preserve our better thoughts the future in music is very full of sadness; there seems to be no end to the withering of all things lovely since the Volstead act became a vice.

Flagless Staffs on Lincoln Day.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I DESIRE to protest the shameful and disgraceful lack of display of the United States flag in this city, on Lincoln's birthday this year. I counted 60 flagstaffs without the colors, including the Grant School. I rode for several miles through residence districts without seeing a flag.

I am wholly aware, that all patriotism is not expressed in a spectacular way, but the flag symbolizes and inspires all that makes for patriotism and its use is one of the best expressions of it. I am sure that Abraham Lincoln, than whom no better man ever lived or does live, would rather have the flag flown from every American home, than all the public gatherings where he is lauded throughout the nation.

ALLEN DWIGHT POMEROY.

THE DURKAN CASE.

The publication of the embezzlement of $25,130 from the City Trust Co. by William P. Durkan, acting manager and one of the vice presidents of the bank, was prompted by a sense of newspaper duty from several standpoints of sound public policy.

The bank directors made up the shortage, had the books thoroughly audited, and discharged Durkan, and thus put the institution in sound condition, under new and competent management, so that criticism cannot be directed against the present condition of the bank, in the light of expert testimony as to the methods adopted to assure soundness. But the directors concealed the shortage and the embezzlement, and let their former trusted manager and vice president go free without either exposure or prosecution.

We believe that the directorate of the bank failed of its duty to the public, its stockholders and depositors in concealing the embezzlement and failing to prosecute the embezzler. If bank embezzlers are to be dismissed without prosecution or exposure and their crimes covered in secrecy, encouragement will be given to bank officials to plunder their institutions, and the public will be kept in the dark both with regard to the character of the criminal officials and the condition of the banks. This policy is a menace both to the public and to the banks, which are public institutions and which should adhere rigidly to a line of conduct which will assure honesty in bank officials and protect the public.

There is another aspect to the case. The State, through its Finance Commissioner, is responsible for the condition of the State banks, and the Commissioner should have knowledge of the embezzlement of a bank official and act upon the information. Concealment of such crimes from the State authorities promotes the inefficiency in State supervision of banks, of which there has been well-deserved complaint, and results in further failure to protect the public from mismanagement or thievery on the part of State bank officials.

This case emphasizes the necessity for better supervision of State banks and of effective remedies, such as those suggested by Commissioner Millspaugh in the way of increased capital and surplus, and the further remedy of holding bank directors to stricter responsibility.

There is an evident duty of the State authorities to take action in the Durkan case.

BREAD PROFITEERING.

A report by the People's Legislative Service has been put into the hands of Senator La Follette and other Progressive Congressmen charging that a "colossal bread trust is impending" and that the American people are paying $1,000,000 a day too much for the staff of life.

Bread is one of those products which enjoyed the usual price inflation during the war and, like laundry service, has never been deflated. The farmer is getting less than half of war prices for his wheat, and flour has been reduced by approximately the same ratio. From 10 and 12 cents per pound loaf during the war bread has fallen only to 9 cents. The above mentioned report says that bread on the basis of present wheat prices should sell for 5 cents a pound and is actually selling in England, made from American flour, at 4 cents! It is said of the General Baking Co. that $1 invested in its common stock in 1916 is now worth $309.

Bakers in St. Louis claimed last summer that high bread prices were continued because wages had not been reduced. A little story on that point, printed some months ago in "Labor," organ of the railroad unions, is pertinent. Union bakers in Washington demanded an advance in wages of 10 per cent. The wholesale dealers immediately boosted the price of bread 1 cent a loaf, or 20 per cent. The retailers added 2 cents. A statistician figured that the wage increase raised the cost $1.25 for 1000 loaves. A drop in flour reduced the cost $1.07, leaving a net advance of 18 cents. On the strength of this increase $10 was added to the wholesale price of 1000 loaves and $20 to $30 to the retail price. The retailers and wholesalers then united in declaring that the cost of labor was entirely responsible for the increase in the price of bread!

WHEN COOLIDGE FUMBLED.

President Coolidge has badly fumbled a vitally important task in connection with the oil scandal—the selection of special prosecuting counsel. The two men first chosen for the work—Gregory and Strawn—were found to be persona non for reasons that seemingly might have been ascertained by reasonable inquiry before the announcement of their selection had been made. That initial blunder, which could and should have been avoided, has had a depressing effect on the public mind.

Nor do the later selections come up to public expectation. Former Senator Pomerene of Ohio, whose nomination the Senate has confirmed, is a man of national reputation, but the Senate's discussion of his appointment developed some serious objections. It was shown, for instance, that he does not possess the special legal knowledge which, in the opinion of several Senators, is almost indispensable to an adequate conduct of the Government's case. Objectionable professional relations were also cited. Finally, the opposition of Senator Walsh to Mr. Pomerene's confirmation is bound to weigh heavily with the public. Senator Walsh is the one man above all others whom the President should have consulted in selection of special oil counsel and whose approval should have been a prerequisite to choice. The President has failed to do this. His advisers, so far as the public knows, have been men of his own party, and, accordingly, a partisan flavor attaches to the proceeding which lofty disavowals cannot wholly remove.

The name of Mr. Pomerene's associate, Mr. Roberts, is to come before the Senate today. He is an unknown Philadelphia lawyer who, it was remarked in the Senate during the debate on Pomerene's confirmation, had been "wished on the President by Senator Pepper" of Pennsylvania. The man's obscurity, to be sure, cannot be offered as conclusive disqualification. Conceivably, Mr. Roberts may win his spurs in the oil scandal as a comparatively unknown New York attorney, named Charles Evans Hughes, did in the insurance scandal. Yet if that fortunate eventuation comes about, as all good citizens hope it will, it will have to be credited to "Coolidge luck" rather than to the high executive capacity which the great office of President demands.

Despite his unskilful methods and the disappointing results already in the record, it goes without saying that Mr. Coolidge's sole purpose has been to serve the public.

That Mr. Pomerene and Mr. Roberts, if the latter is confirmed, will meet the great obligation intrusted to them with fidelity, energy and their utmost ability cannot be doubted. The eyes of the nation will be on them. The circumstances, the whole atmosphere of their cause, will be an inspiration. But the fact remains, nevertheless, that Mr. Coolidge has not shown the measure of a first-class executive in this test.

SMOKE AND POLITICS.

The new but now aging smoke ordinance has been awaiting its fate in the city hall since last June. After weakening its enforcement provisions by acceding to the union labor demand that employes of furnace owners be held not liable for infractions the committee in charge recently reported the bill. Now its progress is tied up by a difference between the Aldermen and the Board of Estimate on an issue of administration.

The smoke nuisance is a growing evil. It is made doubly aggravating on raw winter and spring days, when to colds and coughing there is added the irritation of soot in the breathing passages of the head and throat. Meanwhile the constant, onerous tax of cleaning bills and of replacements and repairs due to smoke.

The city hall administration should realize its complete responsibility for relief. Its wrangles do not interest the public. What the city wants is results, and it wants them now. If the smoke evil cannot be cured by ordinance the Kiel administration has not shown it. That administration can have no defense until it has done everything that can be done to eliminate smoke. Some day the voters will lose patience with political dalliance with the worst physical evil which afflicts the city.

JUST A MINUTE

THE POET WAS RIGHT.

"ILL fares the land, to hastening ills a prey,
Where wealth accumulates and men decay."

Thus Goldsmith, knowing well the way of man,
Long ere our present sorry plight began.

Once we were happy and before the door
The wolf howled lustily, for we were poor.

We lived in cabins through the vales and hills;
And thieves in office weren't among our ills.

What people wanted from those picked to reign
Was freedom, something very far from gain.

There was no wealth except in being well
And happy, which no public servant had to sell.

This was the sort of raising that the young lad
In time to be the man Abe Lincoln had.

There were no Fords, no oil reserves, no fair,
Bold sirens then like Ed Dougheney and and Sinclair.

God loved us then and we were glad to hold
Our honor more to be desired than gold.

The times, as we esteem such things, were bad;
Business was bum—but God, what MEN we had!

Most of us think of the Olympic games as being athletic contests between runners, jumpers, wrestlers and boxers; and that is precisely what the original Olympic games were. It is the revival of them that is something different. You are perhaps occasionally amused to read in the dispatches that someone in a faraway part of the world has digged a cistern in seven hours and 10 minutes, thereby winning for Latvia a point in the ultimate Olympic score; or that Tu Chin Lu, the celebrated Chinese athlete, has made a score for the Celestial republic by combing his hair in one minute and 8 seconds; or that some agricultural Titan among us like Magnus Johnson has made two full points for us by putting a ring in a bull's nose in two days and a half, which is a new world's record. You have no doubt wondered what this has to do with the Greeks, and likely have laughed at thought of them in relation to ice skating, skiing, trapshooting, typewriting and the thousand and one things which, though no Greek ever heard of them, make up what we know as the Olympic games redivivus. Likely what we have in mind is that in all these things there is something Homeric, and that had the Greeks known of them they would have been on the program. Doubtless that is true, and the only thought we have in criticism of it is that it should overlook nobody who is doing something better than anybody else is doing it. For instance, why isn't our celebrated Schneider, the traffic cop, an Olympic champion? Is there another like him?

Oil's well on the Potomac.

From the caution observed of late by Senator Borah we make out that he has expectations of being identified at the Cleveland convention as the missing link between Republican conservatives and progressives. Why one becoming an aspirant for especial distinction is by that sign deprived of political judgment is something we could never understand. The Republicans are hopelessly split. There is not going to be any bridge for that breach, and only someone who has the cantilever feeling along his backbone believes that there will be.

How well Mr. Wilson knew history. The rest of us look at it in terms of great battles and picturesque victories, but Mr. Wilson thought of it as the molder of men's minds. He told Frank Cobb that for us to enter the World War would sweep away every vestige of that tolerance which had made America a refuge and a sanctuary—and so it did.

Our political conservatives at Washington, who were going to lead us back to safety and sanity from extreme things like the Adamson act, have only succeeded in making radicalism respectable.

WHEN you are gone, I take my broom,
And sweep your thought from out the room.
I cannot have my eyes distraught
By all those tattered bits of thought.

As if the butterflies of life
Lay dead beneath your mental knife.
And so I get me up and sweep
Your thoughts, while bitterly I weep.

Where

rhythmus of cuisine is to be found such, passionally different, veritable crisis of gourmand dramas?
Where
a counterpart, intense, integral, parading the contrapuntal magic instinct in languishing champignons

of forever exhilaratingly unpremeditated elusive ubiquitous oysters?

i say, nowhere!
i say, being i, poet
tragically tinselled
in the shreds of the esoteric to you, poet,
of corruscating aluminum,
crisco, baking powder, salt, spices,
oyster pie

the apotheosis culinary, the euphuistic climax of gullet-titillation!

I,
mere poet

ANALTTIKOS.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

EX-OFFICIALS AS LAWYERS OR LOBBYISTS.

From the New York World.

IT is impossible to draw a hard and fast rule in which officials of the Government on returning to private life shall be governed in their business relations. No lawyer, no trained administrator, no man educated in the routine of government should be barred for accepting employment merely because it would bring him into contact with government agencies.

But there is a vast difference between former Senators practicing before the Supreme Court and lobbying on the floor after their retirement for measures in which their private clients are interested. There was nothing in the least irregular in the appearance before the Supreme Court of an ex-President like Benjamin Harrison or an ex-Senator and ex-Secretary of the Treasury like John G. Carlisle.

What causes Mr. McAdoo embarrassment is less that he and his firm accepted retainers from Doheny to look after his Mexican interest than that, while on Doheny's payroll, he sought to persuade his party to choose him as its candidate for President. Of that particuar color-blindness evidently he is not cured. Whether or not Doheny employed him as his attorney because of his "influence" or for more creditable reasons, Mr. McAdoo should see that he has removed himself as an available candidate.

The decisive reply made by Woodrow Wilson when Sinclair planned to induce the law firm of Wilson & Colby to represent him in connection with the Senate oil investigation was exactly what was to be expected of Mr. Wilson. He held that it was improper for a former high government official to serve as the attorney of a private interest before a government department. It is unfortunate that there have not been more men in Washington of the same mind and strength of character.

BRAINS BEFORE BEAUTY.

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

DO MEN prefer women with brains? Does the average man like better to sit beside a dinner partner who converses intelligently on the tariff, Ibsen, tax reduction and spiritism than by one who thinks the Fortnightly Review is a military inspection, yet who has a bewitching dimple and a charming stray curl on her neck and "just loves to hear big men talk so wonderfully about running the world?" Would he rather dance with a sensible and clever girl who is capable of converting him by argument to the Brown plan of reorganizing the administrative branch of the Government, or with a "clinging vine" who chatters about lap dogs and jade bracelets, but always gives back that Peggy Wood answer, "Aren't you wonderfu-u-ul?" to any oracular remark? Miss Mary T. Messer of the extension department of the University of California thinks he wants brains. Says she: "Man at last has come to feel contempt for the brainless condition of the Eighteenth century type of feminine mind, a condition which he himself created by too much protection. Men no longer will run seven city blocks to escape a woman who knows as much or more than they do; instead they scorn that woman who cannot take an intelligent part in modern discussions."

A WHISPERED TALE OF "WHISPERING WIRES"

How Ruffian Gets —(Deleted) in His Library, and Villain Meets His —(Deleted).

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

ANOTHER of those mystery plays the denouement of which reviewers are implored not to betray is "Whispering Wires," which unfolded its more or less baffling secrets last night at the Shubert-Jefferson. This request may imply some scepticism as to the circulation claims of a weekly magazine, since a story by Henry Leverage, published therein, served as basis for the present melodrama. But a trust is a trust, and we are above tattling.

Anyhow, Montgomery Stockbridge, not only a hard-boiled but deviled old egg of a millionaire, sat by night in his mysteriously dim library, environed by suits of armor and other shuddersome fittings. The well-known wind was soughing tirelessly without, and the equally familiar lightning glimmered with admirable persistence through the windows.

After bragging that he had sent certain friends to Sing Sing in order to keep himself out, this degraded but prosperous ruffian proceeded with practiced skill to strip the hide from that impecunious and upright young Captain of the Irish Guards, Barry McGill, who had had the effrontery to fall in love with Doris, his daughter and heiress. The gallant Captain departed with such sinister and compromising threats that his innocence of anything which might happen was instantly established.

He Meets His (Deleted).

One must not forget the usual door with bolts, so constructed as to make a hollow sound when knocked upon. It was utilized as often as a kettledrum in an orchestra, and many of the most eerie raps were due to the millionaire's woman secretary, whose horn-rimmed glasses boded little good. Once she brought a special delivery letter. Respect for a confidence forbids our blabbing which specific old blackguard was informed, in this letter, that his (deleted) had been dug and was waiting for him in a nearby cemetery; and who later learned, through a whispered message over the telephone, that he had just two hours to (deleted).

Anyhow, detectives were promptly summoned. They could be recognized from their habit of keeping on their hats in the house; and from their crafty trick, when they had dismissed a witness by saying "That will do," of suddenly exclaiming "Oh, just a moment," when the witness was half way up the stairs.

These guardians cleverly stationed themselves at every strategic point except at the side of the prospective victim, who was left alone in the library. We must not even hint at the manner in which this unidentified personage, who gets (deleted) as he stands beside his desk, meets his (deleted). The secret is not revealed until the end of the third act. The mystery has nothing to do with the invention of a dramatist of a few seasons ago, who had a character killed by a revolver concealed in a phonograph. Still, we never did like telephones; did you?

Has Merit of Suspense.

Suspicion falls on nearly every one in turn—secretary, family attorney, servants and suitor; but there is a trouble-hunter who whistles artlessly and cracks guileless quips as he repairs the telephone. During the two acts after the (deleted) is committed, detectives hide behind curtains; young women prowl downstairs, are browbeaten and sent back to their rooms; a hand steals from behind a portiere and turns out the lights; there are shots, and Miss Doris discovers a paper has been thrust in her hand announcing her death before midnight.

Even the most innocent playgoer suspects that a pretty young heroine in love must find some way to escape, and there is little danger of violating a secret in revealing that the curtain finds Capt. McGill with heiress and fortune clasped indissolubly in his tenacious arms. Things are not so happy for the secretary, although Doris swears nobly that she will stand by the sweetheart of the wretch who murdered her—there, we almost told!

"Whispering Wires" is not another "The Bat," to say nothing of another "The Cat and the Canary." The first act, after a leisurely start, becomes exciting; afterwards the action rather runs down hill. The humor often seems out of place, and Ben Johnson, the only good actor in the cast, has nothing to do after about 9 o'clock.

The play does have, to some extent, the quality of suspense, which is the merit most desired in these puzzle pieces; and the solution of the mystery comes with a certain force and surprise. A large first night audience appeared more than a little interested.

For 27 years he was local manager for Morris & Co., severing that connection five months ago to start a wholesale meat business of his own. He is survived by his widow, Emma, and one child, Prof. Carl Thorwald Olsen.

MAE MURRAY'S BEST IS "FASHION ROW"

Pola Negri in "Shadows of Paris" Also an Outstanding Feature of Local Offerings.

MAE MURRAY'S wonderful gowns and her excellent acting in a dual role make "Fashion Row" a decidedly worth while picture. It is the week's feature at the Delmonte. The contrast of the two parts played by Miss Murray is striking and in each of these parts she rises to heights of emotionalism hitherto unrevealed in her long line of screen successes. The story is that of a Russian cabaret dancer who comes to America, goes on the stage and poses as a princess. Mainly by virtue of her spurious title she marries into a family of great wealth and high social standing. In Russia she has left a younger sister, a simple little peasant girl who in time comes to America, convoyed by a murderous Russian villain whom the older sister once slashed across the face in a cabaret brawl in Russia. The villain is played by Elmo Lincoln. The villain knows that the younger sister will try to find the older on her arrival in America and he uses this knowledge to carry out his project of vengeance.

There is a dramatic climax when he has the older sister summoned to the lodgings of the younger. It is a trap and the actress walks into it unsuspectingly. The actress' husband scents the plot and arrives just in time for a terrific fight and rescue. A mere outline of the plot is not adequate in the case of a Mae Murray picture. After all it is the star's cute ways, occasional intense emotionalism and wonderful faculty for wearing gorgeous gowns effectively that should be stressed. Miss Murray never had a better one than her current offering.

The Good and Bad Pola.

POLA NEGRI has a "Jekyll and Hyde" part in "Shadows of Paris," this week's feature film production at the Missouri Theater. By day she is a leader in one of the most exclusive social sets of the city and at night she is one of the most vicious characters of the underworld. How she carries on her deceit beneath the watchful eyes of her husband and the suspicious glare of the Prefect of Police forms one of the most interesting bits of screen acting seen here in a long time.

When her lover has been reported killed in the World War, Claire, an apache, reforms. By getting in with the right people she attains great social success. Her mansion is the scene of some of the most extravagant social functions. Here among her guests she sees hypocrisy that turns her against her new surroundings and makes her yearn for the old life.

Without the knowledge of the members of her household she slips back to her former associates, who do not know of the change that has taken place in her affairs. It develops that Fernand, her former lover, is still alive. He returns to Paris under an assumed name and also finds his way back to his old haunts. The big scenes in the picture follow Fernand's reunion with Claire.

There is an episode when Claire's husband and her lover accidentally meet under most unusual circumstances. It is up to Claire to choose one of the two lives she has been leading. The situation is tense. Then the lover is killed. Fernand, as played by Charles de Roche, does not quite come up to the popular conception of the type of man a brilliant woman would sacrifice her soul for.

A film novelty, creating the illusion of depth, is among the week's added attractions. With the aid of glasses distributed by ushers the characters in the film move toward the audience. It furnishes quite a thrill.

The Soviet in Melodrama.

LUCILLE RICKSEN, a rising young star of screendom gives an excellent account of herself in "The Rendezvous," a Marshall Neilan production on view at the Kings. The picture also has the added merit of some of the finest comedy touches seen in many a day. The comedian is Syd Chaplin, a brother of the more famous Charlie. Syd's first entrance with his feet so covered with Siberian mud that the mushrooms and daisies are growing on them, is a bit of fun making that will stick to the memory just as the mud stock to the comedian's shoes.

The story is all about the upheaval that followed Bolshevik control of Russia. The heroine, played by Miss Ricksen is in reality a Princess, but she doesn't know it, and those who told the secret are afraid to reveal it. Along comes a young American lieutenant, finely played by Conrad Nagel. He falls in love with the Russian girl and rescues her from the villain (Elmo Lincoln). The American is ordered home and after his departure the villain forces the girl to marry him. The brutal husband beats the young wife with such savage cruelty that he makes her permanently deaf. The American returns and, after the villain has been disposed of, takes the girl to America as his bride. Her incurable deafness puts a sad note into what otherwise would be a happy ending.

Weird Romance of the East.

ENTER Norman Kerry as a Sheik. And barring certain ineradicable Hibernian intimations he does it very well in "The Shadow of the East" at the Liberty. The film is based on a novel by E. M. Hull, author of "The Sheik." Other principals in the cast are Mildred Harris, Evelyn Brent and Frank Mayo.

The story is that of an Englishman in the Orient who falls in love with a native girl and wins her for his wife after stormy adventures with his rival, the Sheik. After a short period of matrimonial happiness the native bride dies. On his return home the hero marries an English girl, but he is still haunted by the memory of the Far East. Not only that. He is pursued by mysterious plotters and the vengeance of the Sheik seems to be hanging over him always. The British wife doesn't understand all this. She thinks his heart as well as his mind is elsewhere. There is an element of mystery running through the picture and a thrilling, if not convincing, climax in which he shakes off the spell, with resultant reconciliation with his English bride. The picture has much scenic beauty.

Marion Davies' Best.

THE week's feature at the Grand Central, West End Lyric and Capitol is Marion Davies in "Little Old New York." This fine picture was reviewed in this column when it was shown for an extended run at advanced prices at the Pershing. It is a comedy drama of the first rank, considered by many critics to be the season's best offering of the kind.

MIRTH AND MELODY DEFTLY COMBINED IN ORPHEUM BILL

Singing Bandmaster, Sneezing Elocutionist and Al K. Hall in "The Sap" Contribute Meritorious Acts.

Henry Santrey, singing bandmaster, and Anna Seymour, whose impersonation of a sneezing elocutionist is rare comedy, share honors with other well-known vaudeville entertainers at the Orpheum this week. The bill is one of the best combinations of mirth and melody presented here in a long time.

A condensed satire on modern drama, "Sadie—One of Those Girls," presented by De Lyle Alda, former musical comedy favorite, is in its second season, but that does not prevent it from scoring a hit. Miss Alda, in the dual role of a newsboy and stage star, displays such talent both as actress and singer that she and her supporting cast are called before the curtain time and again.

Then there is a comedian with a suggestive name—Al K. Hall—with his grotesque buffoonery and eccentric legs. He plays the part of "The Sap" in a skit called "At the Stage Door," and is ably assisted in spreading laughter by Stanley Mack, Fay Tempest and Nan Stuart. One of the young women is extremely funny in her characterization of a "dumbbell."

Other meritorious acts on the bill are those of Kenney and Hollis, in patter and song; the French clown, Noni, in an original musical absurdity, and the acrobatic Sinclair troup.

Mrs. John Ring Dies.

Mrs. John Ring, 74 years old, died at her residence, 3924 Westminster place, last evening, after an illness of five weeks from uremic poisoning. She is survived by her husband and three children —John Ring Jr., head of the advertising company of that name: Genevieve D. Ring and Mary Ring Padberg—and one brother, Henry O'Neill, all of St. Louis. Mrs. Ring was born in St. Louis, the daughter of the late Joseph O'Neil and Eliza Dwyer, and educated at Sacred Heart Convent. The funeral will be Wednesday at 10 a. m. from the residence to St. Francis Xavier's Church. Interment will be in Calvary Cemetery.

WOODWARD PLAYERS AT THEIR BEST IN "CAPTAIN APPLEJACK"

Adventure, Romance and Humor Well Combined in Urbane and Colorful Comedy.

It is a blustery evening on the Cornwall coast, and the most respectable Applejohn household has settled down to its most respectable routine of fireside domesticity. But there is clearly something amiss. The maidenly Ambrose, coddled and spoiled by a spinster aunt and pretty ward, has refused his coffee and port. He has even advertised his ancestral halls for sale. What can ail Ambrose?

The evening has not proceeded far before the reason for his disquietude is revealed. The bored English gentleman has felt the tug of pirate blood in his veins. He longs for adventure, for love at first sight, for an opportunity to match wits with some arch-villain. Tomorrow he will depart in quest of them. And so the stage is set for the laughs and thrills that, in the opinion of one spectator at least, distinguish "Captain Applejack" as the crowning performance seen so far this season at the Empress.

But those winds whistling in from the sea with weird suggestions of dark deeds on the Spanish Main were certain to bring adventure before the morrow arrived. They do. Several hours before the time set for gentle Ambrose's departure, prospective buyers of the place, each with sinister designs of his own, appear; and before the would-be hero is aware of it he is plunged in enough romance and adventure to satisfy a dozen heroes. Bolshevist plots, jewel thefts, holdups, captures and surprises follow each other with a "Seven Keys to Baldpate" rapidity.

Not even do they cease when tired Ambrose falls into a five-minute nap. A dream carries them on, but this time the quarterdeck of a pirate schooner is the scene and the people of his adventures become members of his motley corsair crew, which he quells with roaring blasphemies, murderous daggers and trick cards.

Alexis Luce, first as the respectable Ambrose and then the swashbuckling Captain Applejack, accomplishes his most spectacular and effective role of the year. Hazel Whitmore, also in the double role of "Russian spy" and captive Portuguese maid, seemed excellent, as did other members of the cast. The entire performance appeared to demonstrate what the Woodward Players are able to do with a medium so happily selected as this urbane and colorful comedy.

REUBEN DAVIES IMPRESSIVE AS SOLOIST AT POP CONCERT

Texas Pianist Enthusiastically Received—Orchestral Program Unusually Colorful.

Reuben Davies, a pianist of Dallas, Tex., was soloist at the popular concert of the Symphony Orchestra yesterday afternoon at the Odeon, and played the impressive and spectacular concerto of Grieg. The pianist proved to be one of the best that has appeared at the Sunday concerts in several seasons, and the large audience was enthusiastic in its appreciation. He had a splendid control of dynamics, speed and fire; and also delicacy of touch and interpretative skill. As an encore he gave one of his own compositions.

The orchestral program was colorful and tuneful. The central piece was the "Caucasienne" Suite of Ippolitoff-Ivanoff with its weird picture of life in an Asiatic camp, and its stirring martial music. The solos for the English horn and for the viola were noteworthy.

Another novelty on the program was Saint-Saens' "Tarantella," with a duet for flute and clarinet.

The concert began with Widor's "Spanish Overture," included the stirring first Slavonic Dance of Dvorak, and concluded with the "Voices of Spring" waltz of Johann Strauss. Encores were an orchestral transcription of Rachmaninoff's Prelude in C-sharp minor and Beethoven's "Turkish March."

Brown Cab

Policies dictated by public

The owners of this business have no more to say as to how it shall be run than the men and women who ride in BROWN CABS.

We are not engaged so much in trying to make you want the kind of service we give as in trying to give you the kind of service you want.

That is the reason we ask for and carefully consider your advice and criticisms. We don't mind an occasional "raking over the coals"—a scolding is sometimes good for any man—but we appreciate much more your constructive criticism.

We know the public want low rates of fare. We know you want safe, sanitary cabs, and courteous, dependable drivers. All of these things we have made available.

We also know still lower rates are wanted. All right, give us the volume and down will go our fares.

If there is anything else you think we ought to do, just write us a letter and you will have our sincere appreciation in advance.

BROWN CAB'S usefulness to this community lies in its ability to render the greatest good to the greatest number—and for the least money that will enable us to continue to serve.

JEWISH STATE IN THE CRIMEA PROPOSED

Trotzky and Other Soviet Leaders in Sympathy With the Plan.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Feb. 18.—A new solution of the Jewish problem in Russia is offered in a scheme for the establishment of a Jewish autonomous state in the Crimean Peninsula, details of which have just been made known.

Abraham Bragin, organizer of the All-Russian Agricultural Exhibition which recently closed in Moscow, proposes that the Government allocate to the Jews a special district to be colonized by Jewish farmers, thus, he says, solving the Jewish question, which has again become acute in Russia. The project suggests that Northern Crimea, together with adjoining portion of the Ukraine, including the Black Sea cities, he designated as the Jewish autonomous state.

With the development of Jewish colonization, M. Bragin proposes that the district be converted in 1927 into an autonomous, self-governing region, with a Jewish administration.

Tchitcherin, Trotzky, Kameneff and a number of other Soviet leaders have expressed themselves in sympathy with the plan.

ure, for instance, in Senate report 756, Sixty-seventh Congress, second session, before the Senate committee on finance, on this bill, the Treasury estimated that the bonus would cost $3,800,000,000 and later on President Harding in his veto message, using figures supplied him by the Treasury Department, stated that it would cost in excess of $4,000,000,000 and further on, Jan. 1, 1924, the Treasury gave out figures that the adjusted compensation measure would cost $5,100,000,000.

"It merely takes a comparison of these figures, if any one will read them, to show that there were wide discrepancies, with regard to the adjusted compensation measure, stretching over a period from the spring of 1922 until Jan. 1, 1924."

Miller sent a copy of his statement to the White House to be laid before the President, and it was said at the executive offices that no further explanation would be asked of him.

The whole subject was brought up in the House today by Representative Rainey, Democrat, Illinois, a member of the Ways and Means Committee, who said. "It is time to investigate the Secretary of the Treasury."

Rainey read statements of Joseph McCoy, Government actuary, that Mellon did not use his estimates in predicting the dificit in 1922. McCoy testified before the committee that in 1922 the internal revenue bureau insisted upon making estimates of receipts connected with the bureau and that their figures differed considerably from his own.

"The evidence is clear," Rainey said. "That the Secretary of the Treasury has two sets of figures so as to meet any emergency and that in 1922 to defeat the bonus deliberately used a set of figures which were wrong."

Calls on G. O. P. Chairman to Repudiate Publicity Bureau.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 18.—Charging that the Republican party's publicity organization in Washington is sending out news matter to country newspapers stating falsely that there can be no tax reduction if adjusted compensation is paid, John R. Quinn, National Commander of the American Legion, in a telegram to John T. Adams, Republican National chairman requested that the practice be discontinued and that the statements be repudiated.

A LOOKER-ON IN WASHINGTON

serves and got tangled up in these curious financial transactions that have been of such absorbing interest to the Senate Investigating Committee. Not even the logic or wit of Longworth can brush away that damning fact. A mere detail, as Denby would say, but still a detail to be borne steadily in mind. The attempt will be made to confuse the public, but the public ought not to permit itself to become confused. This mammoth plot ramifies in every direction, there are collateral issues not easy to follow, there are cowards deserting the sinking ship and hypocrites cloaking themselves in virtue to shield their infamy, but there is one salient fact everone with a modicum of intelligence can grasp. The affair began in the Department of the Interior, under a Republican administration. It was made possible and carried to conclusion because a Republican administration was either corrupt or inefficient. Those are the facts and are all that the public need know. A hundred oil millionaires posing as candidates would not save Fall and his Republican associates from their ignominy.

When Longworth pleads the baby act he insults the intelligence of the American people.

When Nature Warns Fight Acidosis!

Rid stomach and intestines of excess acid and waste poisons with Haley's Magnesia-Oil

Most serious illness starts in the stomach. Overeating and too little exercise bring on Acidosis, the scientific name for sour stomach.

Two Weapons Needed to Fight This Danger

1—Neutralize the stomach acids.
2—Rid the intestines of digestive waste.

Milk of magnesia is the finest known agent for counteracting stomach acids. But milk of magnesia alone is not enough. Now science has combined milk of magnesia with purest mineral oil in a wonderful, patented emulsion called Haley's Magnesia-Oil.

The milk of magnesia attacks the acids and sweetens the stomach while the oil lubricates the intestines and brings about natural elimination of all waste poisons.

Doctors and nurses everywhere are recommending Haley's Magnesia-Oil for young and old. Stop at your druggist's today and get a bottle. Take some before you go to bed tonight and get up in the morning feeling like a new person. Trial size, 35c; economical family size, $1.00. The Haley M-O Company, Indianapolis, Ind.

THERE ARE MANY MINERS

Yes, people in every calling—who are afflicted and should be cured. There are a great many who are nearly or entirely incapacitated because they have neglected themselves and who should have been cured a long time ago. In time and money they have lost several times the price of a positive and permanent cure. Read Mr. W. A. Murphy's letter in this advertisement—it will pay you to do as he did.

Stonefort, Illinois,
February 8th, 1924.

Dr. C. Matthew Coe,
501 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

My Dear Doctor:—

I came to your office on January 7th, 1924. I was suffering with an awful bad case of Bleeding Piles (Hemorrhoids). After examination you said that you could cure me in about three weeks' time; I was suffering untold misery—you treated me at 10 A. M., the treatment was mild. The next day I came down with the La Grippe, which weakened me, but I visited your office each day; after the fourth day I began to mend. I was treated until the 29th, and was pronounced cured.

Up to this time I had paid out over $500, trying to get cured; I can furnish a list of all parties I purchased medicine from. I thank the Lord for the day I went to Dr. C. Matthew Coe for treatment. He is a God-sent man for the cure of Piles and other rectal diseases.

I am now 52 years old—I feel better than I have in ten years, as I am free from pain; but before I went to Dr. Coe I couldn't rest. I am a coal miner; so many of my fellow-workers and friends are afflicted with this awful disease; I would advise any and all to go at once to Dr. Coe and get a complete cure.

In conclusion, will say that I never will forget the day I met the doctor. May he live long and be a blessing to thousands of sufferers. Doctor Coe, you may publish this letter, as it might be the cause of some suffering man or woman coming to you for treatment. I will further say, I have been Justice of the Peace for 23 years in succession.

With good wishes to Doctor Coe, and all his assistants, I am,

Yours respectfully,
W. A. Murphy

Injured by Attack on Train.

Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 18.—Two ons were injured by splintered glass and passengers were thrown into a panic last night when a Central of Georgia train, Columbus, Ga., to Atlanta, was made the target for rocks and pistol shots at a point about half way between College Park and East Point, Ga.

The injured were C. W. Phillips of Greenville, Ga., and Flagman Taggert of Atlanta.

A Reward

Awaits you in prettier teeth when you combat the film

Here is a test which brought to millions new beauty and new charm. The test is delightful, the result a revelation.

The benefits are whiter, cleaner, safer teeth. You will never go without them when you learn how much they mean. Ask us now for this new way of teeth cleaning.

That cloudy film

Teeth are clouded by a film—that viscous film you feel. In old-way brushing, much of it clings and stays.

Soon that film discolors, then forms dingy coats. That is how teeth lose luster.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Nearly all people, under old methods, suffered some film-caused trouble.

Now we fight film

Now you can fight that film. Dental science has discovered two effective methods. One disintegrates the film at all stages of formation. One removes it without harmful scouring.

These methods were proved by many careful tests. A new-type tooth paste has been created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

Dentists everywhere have urged it, until careful people of some 50 nations are employing it today.

Other new factors

Nature's great tooth protectors lie in saliva. One digests starch deposits on teeth, one neutralizes acids which attack the teeth.

We Offer
A Delightful Test
See Coupon

Pepsodent gives to both these agents multiplied effect. And that means a new dental era.

Old ways of teeth cleaning, as you know, have not been found efficient enough. Tooth troubles became almost universal. Then why not learn what this new way means to the people in your home?

Millions now show the results

You can see the results that Pepsodent brings in every circle now. Note how many teeth now glisten—teeth which once were dull.

Then why not combat that film? Why cling to ways which millions have discarded?

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

You will always be glad that you made this test. Cut out coupon now.

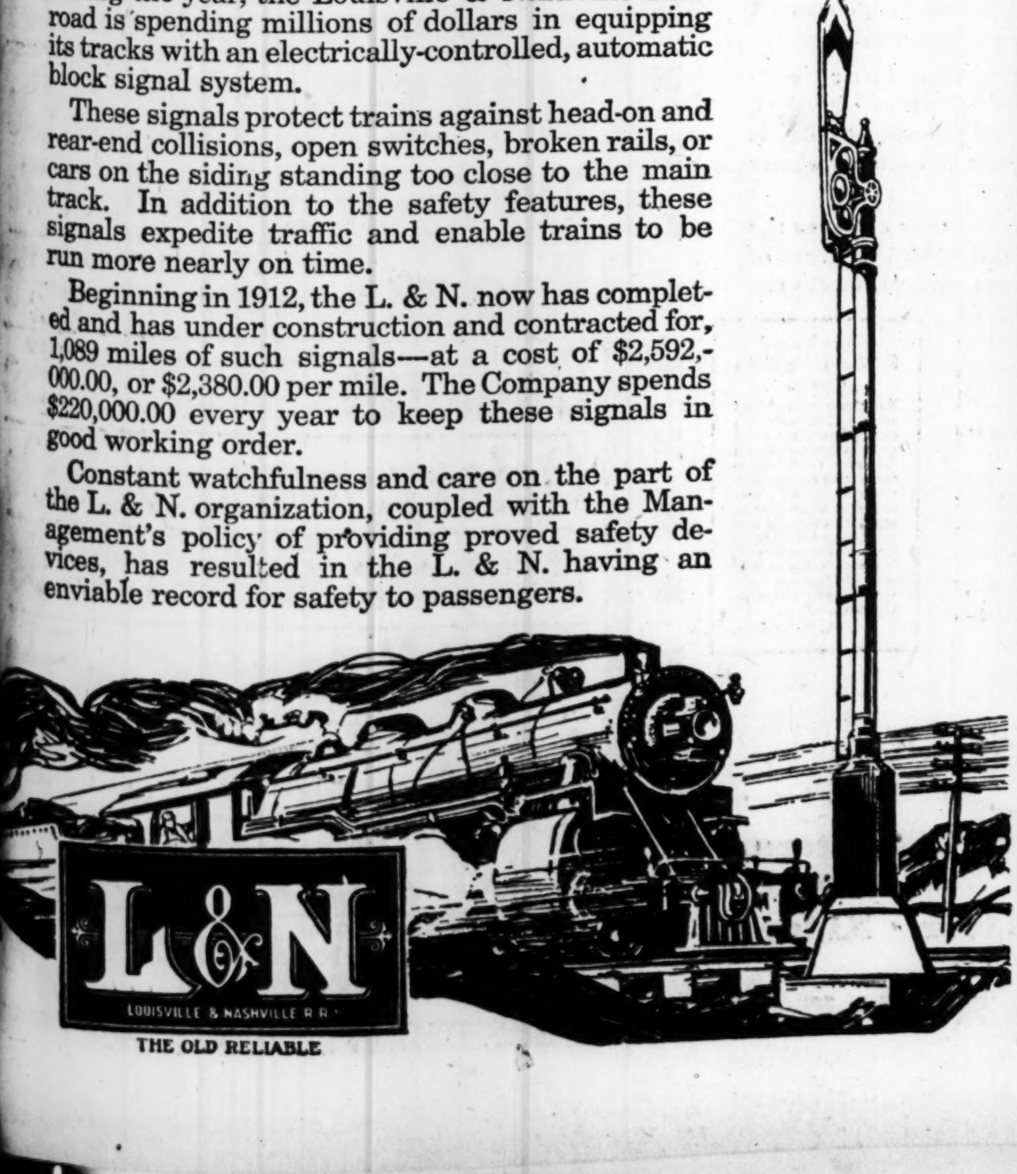
2,500,000 Dollars For Your SAFETY

In order to increase the factor of safety to the millions of passengers who move over its tracks during the year, the Louisville & Nashville Railroad is spending millions of dollars in equipping its tracks with an electrically-controlled, automatic block signal system.

These signals protect trains against head-on and rear-end collisions, open switches, broken rails, or cars on the siding standing too close to the main track. In addition to the safety features, these signals expedite traffic and enable trains to be run more nearly on time.

Beginning in 1912, the L. & N. now has completed and has under construction and contracted for, 1,089 miles of such signals—at a cost of $2,592,000.00, or $2,380.00 per mile. The Company spends $220,000.00 every year to keep these signals in good working order.

Constant watchfulness and care on the part of the L. & N. organization, coupled with the Management's policy of providing proved safety devices, has resulted in the L. & N. having an enviable record for safety to passengers.



12,500 VISITORS AT AUTO SHOW SUNDAY

Higher-Priced Models Prove of Special Interest—More Exhibits Arrive.

The third day of the seventeenth St. Louis Automobile Show opened at 11 o'clock, today, in the Columbia Can Co.'s building on Natural Bridge avenue, east of Union boulevard. The show will be open daily from 11 a. m. to 11 p. m., until the closing, Saturday night.

About 12,500 persons visited the show yesterday, to view the exhibits which fill all available space in the large building. The interest is regarded as a barometer to the prosperity of St. Louis and its trade territory, and to the continued and growing popularity of the automobile. Keen interest is displayed in the new types of brakes, changes in body types, refinements in finish and other embellishments which manufacturers have stressed in the new models.

Of special interest are the high-priced cars, which include a Rolls-Royce cabriolet at $13,800; a Locomobile cabriolet at $11,785; a Mercedes sport phaeton at $10,300; a Pierce-Arrow limousine at $7385; a Lincoln limousine at $6240; a Packard sedan-limousine at $5300; and a Cadillac two-passenger coupe at $4995.

A special train from Kansas City arrived last night, bringing a number of exhibits from the Kansas City Automobile Show, which closed Saturday night. These, with seven cars, which arrived yesterday morning, were placed on exhibit today.

AUTO SHOW NOTES

That the 1924 Automobile Show will be productive of the most business and attract the largest attendance at any Automobile Show ever held here, is the prediction of Robert E. Lee, show manager. The attendance Saturday and Sunday broke all records for first and second days crowds. The number of sales reported also passed any previous mark.

Among those who saw the new models yesterday were many dealers from the Southwest. Some of these are here to attend the dinners being given by factories and distributor for dealers during the week. The first of these affairs was a luncheon today for Oldsmobile dealers given by P. H. Brockman, president of the De Luxe Automobile Co., at Hotel Coronado. One hundred dealers were present and heard addresses by Brockman; Guy H. Peasley, general sales manager of the Olds Motor Works, and R. M. Hatfield, service manager of the Olds plant. At 6:30 p. m. at Hotel Statler, the Chevrolet branch factory will give a dinner to dealers in this zone. The speakers will include J. F. Knudsen, president and general manager of the Chevrolet Motor Co.; C. E. Dawson, acting general sales manager of the Chevrolet factory, and George Frank Lord, advertising manager.

In addition to the dinners, there will be meetings during the week. Among them will be one held by the Newell Motor Car Co. for its dealers at which Henry Krohn, sales manager of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co., manufacturers of Paige and Jewett cars, and Walter K. Towers, advertising manager, will speak.

The Weber Motor Car Co., distributer of the Studebaker; the Weber Implement and Automobile Co., Hupmobile distributer; the Hudson-Frampton company, Hudson and Essex distributor, and the Tate Motor Co., Inc., Dodge Brothers' representatives, also plan affairs.

A banquet will be given for Case dealers in the territory by the Wilson Motor Car Co., and the J. I. Case T. M. Co. branch. D. Underhill Smith, president of the Smith-Sauers Motor Co. of Chicago, Case distributor for 10 Mississippi Valley states, and Fred L. Good, wholesale manager of the company, will be speakers.

The crowd Saturday and Sunday was much interested in the new models, particularly in cut out chasses shown in many exhibit spaces. Nash showed two of these. Paige-Jewett, Chrysler, Rollin, Moon and many others had chasses which were widely commented on.

Only 3 New Men Will Go South With the Reds

Moran Apparently Figures Club Is Strong Enough to Give Giants a Fight

No. 9—CINCINNATI REDS.

By Herman Wecke.

Pat Moran, manager of the Cincinnati Reds, second placers in the National League last season, evidently figures that his club, with the exception of pitchers, is strong enough to give the Giants a real fight for the 1924 pennant.

The list of recruits of the Cincinnati club, show only three newcomers. And these three athletes are pitchers. They are Tom Sheehan, the leader in the American Association in 1923; Jakie May, the former Cardinal, who was purchased from the Vernon club, and Priesmuth, who won 20 games and lost 11 with Muskogee in the Southwestern circuit.

In addition, Pat Moran will have Carl Mays, the submarine right hander, who was obtained from the New York Yankees.

In the minor leagues, the three new pitchers won a total of 70 games, while losing but 42. Sheehan topped the list with 31 victories against but nine defeats. May won 19 and lost 22 in the Coast circuit.

Sisler Praises Youthful Battery

Brownie Manager Expects Payne and Rego to Show Big League Stuff.

George Sisler, manager of the Browns, in a letter received today by Business Manager Bill Friel, has words of praise for a youthful battery which will strive at the Mobile training camp to land regular positions with the Browns.

"I've heard baseball men call Catcher Rego a third string catcher," George writes, "but many great stars have been third stringers. I am confident that the fans will be calling for Rego after they see him work just once. He has a world of pepper and aggressiveness, can throw beautifuly and I think he is a coming star.

"I talked to Pitcher Perry Payne today and he tells me his arm, which he injured when with Danville last season, has recovered. I understand Fohl thought highly of Payne and I certainly am hopeful that he will show us something at Mobile. Rudy Hullswitt (former big leaguer whose word is valued by baseball men), also has recommended him highly and has advised us not to let Payne get away from us."

Friel said Bob Connery, Yankee scout, had spoken highly of Catcher Rego and had predicted that he would become a fixture with the Browns.

Sisler stated in his letter that he would depart Thursday for Mobile, with Jim Austin, Rego, Payne, Cutting, Tyrrell and Blaeholder and would arrive in Mobile Sunday night. The first squad of Browns will leave St. Louis next Sunday morning, reaching Mobile the following morning.

Kaley Gets 680 Total.

Firpo May Pass Up Dempsey and Go Barnstorming

Argentine Has Been Offered Matches With Thirty American Opponents.

By Fair Play.

(Copyright, 1924.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Tex Rickard's indecision, manifested at a conference between him and Jack Kearns and John Ringling, Rickard's associate, as to the Dempsey-Firpo bout, lends color to a bit of Jersey gossip which the writer reported a fortnight ago.

This gossip related to alleged plans being made by Firpo's advisers in this country to steer the wild bull clear of Dempsey for a year, during which time Luis would meet some score of heavyweights and pick up much more money than he could make out of a single bout with the champion.

Firpo May Ditch Rickard.

Money is the big thing that appeals to Fripo and if so, as understood, those back of him have made him see the financial advantages of this course. Tex Rickard may whistle for a fight in 1924 and Kearns may whistle twice.

Hughey Gartland, when he went to Buenos Aires, took 30 challenges with him and most of them meant real money. Since Firpo would run more than an even chance of getting dumped by Dempsey and thus suffer as a drawing card, why should he not reap all the advantage he can reap out of the thrilling fight he put up—while it lasted—against the world's champion last September?

It is as clear as a crystal ball that just now Rickard is floundering. Firpo has not included him in his plans at all. And since just now Rickard needs him more than he needs Rickard, don't be surprised if Kearns, Dempsey and Company have to look elsewhere for a bout to follow the June battle in New York with Tommy Gibbons.

In the meantime Farmer Lodge is the unlucky guy. If it hadn't been for that torrential rainstorm in Buenos Aires his troubles would be all over now and he would be homeward bound with his little roll.

OESTEREICHER AND FISCHER TOTAL 1227

S. Oestereicher and G. Fischer starred in yesterday's rolling of the city scratch tournament on the Congress alleys with a total of 1227. This placed the team in fourth position. Oestereicher counted 650, while Fischer counted 577. Hefton and Roth totaled 1203 for the only other 1200 score for the day.

In the singles, Fischer was high with 634, which included games of 216, 211 and 207. Otto Stein Jr. had 610, Ruedy 608 and Hicks 602.

The Missouri Pacific General Accounts rolled 2791 in the five-man event. Only one more five is scheduled to bowl in the team competition.

PADDOCK'S CASE TO BE DECIDED THIS WEEK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18. — Charlie Paddock's amateur status will be determined this week after receipt of a formal statement from him by special committee of A. A. U. empowered to investigate the details of the controversy in which he is involved.

Paddock is now preparing an elaborate statement embodying all of the details of the whole affair and this is expected to be in the hands of the committee this week. The California runner was in Boston last week in conference with William C. Prout, president of the A. A. U., and the statement will be the result of this conference.

Tavenner-Whitehead Win.

C. W. Tavenner and Oscar Whitehead, with a total of 1199, won the two-man tournament on the Washington alleys last night. Otto Friendly and C. F. Kaley were next with 1195, while Cliff Burtt and Ed Schaefer counted 1159.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity, when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

IGNORANT.—Charles III is the answer to your question.

B. H. of M.—White and black are both defined as colors.

P. M.—See answers to "Subscriber" for the information regarding the fern.

H. H.—Write to the insurance companies for the statistical matter on accidents, etc.

J. K.—There has been no announcement regarding the baby show so far this year.

E. L.—Write the house in question at Albuquerque, N. M., regarding their rates, etc.

P. T. F.—Write to the "Democrat" at Fort Madison, Iowa, for the information regarding the banks there.

C. E.—The commission paid to agents of the different automobile concerns is a matter of private negotiation.

THOS. K. — Address Rupert Hughes, in care of the Goldwyn Co., Culver City, Cal., regarding the article on "Kleig" eyes.

A STRANGER—Address Sophie Irene Loeb, care of the New York Evening World, New York City, N. Y.

MRS. G. W. B.—The Dispatch was first published in 1864 and was consolidated with the St. Louis Post in 1878.

LUCY—Consult any of your local newspapers; they will give you the information you desire regarding newspaper work, etc.

MRS. H. D.—Consult the various books on flowers at the Public Library for the information you desire regarding the care of the rose bushes, plants, etc.

CURIOUS.—Write to the Public Ledger, Philadelphia, Pa., for the information regarding the work for the World's Fair to take place there.

BENJ. W.—Write the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Commerce Dept., Washington, D. C., for the information regarding the position in question.

L. S. L.—The Constitution of the United States says: No person except a natural born citizen, or a citizen of the United States at the time of the adoption of this Constitution, shall be eligible to the office of President; neither shall any person be eligible to that office who shall not have attained to the age of 35 years and been 14 years a resident within the United States.

SUBSCRIBER.—To keep ferns in a healthy and growing condition, to prevent and to kill insects and diseases, a proper condition of atmosphere should be carefully maintained at all times. Extremes in moisture, heat or dryness should never be allowed. In potting ferns after they pass the 4-inch pots a potting stick should always be used, as the potter can not very well firm them with his fingers and it secures evenness in potting. Ferns should be potted tight, especially old plants. They should be shifted into larger pots whenever necessary. Once a day is often enough to water a fern.

PAULA.—Mrs. Doxey after her acquittal at Clayton in 1911 for the murder of her former husband, William Erder, left Missouri and later after Dr. Doxey's death married several times. The last heard of her was when she was tried for bigamy and sentenced to jail. After serving sentence she returned to her husband's ranch in Wyoming. (2) Mrs. Bell A. Gunness who admitted to killing several men whom she enticed to her home at La Porte, Indiana through matrimonial advertisements was burned to death with her children in 1907 when Ray Lamphere, farm hand set fire to the farmhouse. He died while serving a term in the Indiana penitentiary.

CHARLES—The climate of Virginia generally is temperate, with only moderate extremes of temperature in the lowlands and the lower mountain valleys. The average January temperature varies from 32 degree to 37 dagrees; the mean of July is 72 degrees to 78 degrees. The mountain counties have a short but somewhat severe winter, with long and delightfully cool summers. The tidewater country has many swampy tracts, which render it unhealthy during the summer and autumn, except on salt-water channels and high grounds. But this region has a very mild winter climate. The annual rainfall varies from about 35 to 48 inches. (2) The climate of the State of Kentucky is salubrious and not marked by accentuated extremes of temperature. The summer heat rises to about 100 degrees, while the cold of winter descends but rarely to zero. The average January temperature is about 35 degrees and the July temperature 78 degrees. Over almost the entire State there is a generous rainfall, which averages for the year about 40 inches.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

A READER.—If it is a division fence, you have no right to move it over on his property.

M. H.—Consult a lawyer and have him draw a will in accordance with your desires. You can create a trust fund for your son.

P. T. J.—His brothers and sisters could not claim any part of his estate, even though they were not mentioned in his will.

D. V.—Report the facts to the police, and also to the Health Department, in the Municipal Courts Bldg., 14th and Market streets.

M. X. R.—Your last marriage was not void, but is voidable at your option, that is, you can sue to have it annulled, if you desire.

ILL.—The rate is a great deal higher than the legal rate of interest in Illinois. If they sue you or try to foreclose under the mortgage, consult a lawyer.

BILLY H.—When the case is disposed of, he can collect a witness fee, provided that he made a claim with the clerk of the court at the time.

IGNORANCE. — The penalty for desertion from the United States army anywhere in time of peace is any punishment, excepting death, that a courtmartial may direct.

WORRIED MOTHER.—If you obtained a divorce, you could probably obtain alimony from him, but you could not intercept his payments from the Government, nor could these be garnished.

MAUDE.—The mother, "head of a family," is allowed exemption on her income tax return. The payment you refer to is not income, as it was merely the payment of a debt.

MRS. M. W. L.—In our opinion you are right. Your children are third cousins of your first cousins' children. However, these terms are used loosely and with different meanings.

DOROTHY.—They had no right to break your lock and take the trunk, under the circumstances. You can ask the Police Dept. to make an investigation, or you can consult a lawyer regarding a suit for damages, if you prefer.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—For an hour or more today the market showed considerable irregularity. Then it turned definitely downward and the decline became very sharp in the late afternoon. There was practically no rally at the close. In many instances the entire amount of the gain since the first of the year was canceled.

The majority opinion was that the campaign for higher prices had been definitely checked and that on rallies plenty of stocks would be found for sale.

The price of the copper metal, continuing its advance, reached 13½ cents a pound. This, however, failed to evoke much response in the copper group. Partly this was due to the unpropitious conditions in the general market, and partly to the showing in the porphyry copper statements for the fourth quarter of 1923. Increases were shown over the same period of the previous year, but there was a falling off as compared with the third quarter. Utah earned $1.33 a share as against $2.48 in the three months ended Sept. 30, while Nevada Consolidated's net income was almost exactly cut in two.

Among the specialties Davison Chemical fell away sharply and American Water Works common sold 40 as against its last previous sale of 43.

The Bond Market.

It was stated in responsible banking quarters today that allotments on the $150,000,000 30-year, 6½-per-cent Japanese reconstruction loan average in the neighborhood of 60 per cent. The allotment percentage is truly significant of the success which attended the largest foreign loan brought out in this country since the war. Of course, some allowance must be made for the probability that some bankers entering subscriptions for their customers applied for more bonds than they actually expected to take up. It is reported, however, that industrial companies which expect to benefit either directly or indirectly by the business which will accrue to this country from the new financing subscribed liberally to the bonds, taking an estimated amount of $50,000,000.

The new Japanese bonds were quoted on the Stock Exchange today on a "when issued" basis at 92⅝, or a fraction above the subscription price. The premium the bonds command is due probably to buying by bankers to fill out quotas of customers.

A severe break in both French and Belgian exchanges to new low record levels for all time was not reflected in the market for bonds of those countries. French Government bonds were only a small fraction under their previous close. Belgians also were steady.

In domestic bonds the market was fairly active but irregular. Low-priced rails were in good demand, especially Seaboard Air Line issues. St. Louis-San Francisco also were active. Intednational-Great Northern adjustments reacted. Copper bonds were steady. Liberties were about unchanged.

SHARP LOSSES FOLLOW EARLY UPTURN IN COTTON PRICES

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Unexpectedly firm Liverpool cables were followed by active buying in the cotton market at the opening today. First prices were firm at an advance of 43 to 60 points, except for November, which was 73 points higher and May contracts sold at 32.15c on the call, or 70 points above Saturday's closing. Liverpool was an active buyer here, but houses with Southern and Western connections were sellers at the opening advance, and prices soon eased off under renewed liquidation, with May selling down to 31.60c and July to 30.45c before the end of the first half hour, or within 35 points of the previous close. Private cables said that rumors that the British dockers' strike had been settled, were not confirmed, but Liverpool was an active buyer here.

Continental buying was reported in the Liverpool market.

Liverpool showed continued firmness and was a considerable buyer here, but the local market failed to hold the opening advance, and fluctuations were nervous and irregular later. Traders seemed to be waiting for news as to the action of Manchester spinners on short-time proposals, and the late forenoon selling here was accompanied by reports of a poor demand for cotton goods. May contracts eased off to 31.50c, or about 65 points from the high price of the morning and within five points of Saturday's closing. The market was a few points up from the lowest at midday, with trading less active and the tone uncertain.

The buying movement promoted by the purchase of Liverpool appeared to have run its course and the market turned weak during the early afternoon under a renewal of liquidation and general selling. May broke to 30.75 or 140 points from the high level of the morning and 70 points net lower. Prices were within a point or two of the lowest around 2 o'clock with old crop months showing net losses of 50 to 60 points.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Feb. 18.—Grain futures ranged lower on the local market. The ⅛c to ⅜c higher close at Liverpool was credited to the dock worker labor problem. Some saw in the labor situation a bearish factor for wheat. Corn was influenced, too, by movement.

The visible supply of American grain shows the following changes, in bushels, for the week: Wheat decreased 1,160,000; corn increased 1,666,000; oats decreased 295,000; rye increased 411,000; barley decreased 395,000.

While the early range of prices was not wide, both wheat and corn showed tendency to sag. Liverpool wheat in afternoon cable was ¼d to ⅜d higher. Enlarged wheat receipts at some points exerted influence.

May wheat opened at $1.11 to $1.10⅞, July wheat $1.09⅝, September wheat $1.09½. May corn 80c, July corn 80⅜c, September corn 80⅜c.

The three northwestern markets combined had 820 cars of wheat, compared with 1106 a week ago and 624 last year, Minneapolis receiving 391 cars, Duluth 56 and Winnipeg 373.

Local wheat receipts, which were 191,100 bushels, compared with 191,100 a week ago and 147,600 last year, included 128 cars local and 19 through. Corn receipts, which were 316,400 bushels, compared with 394,800 a week ago, included 193 cars local and 89 through. Oats receipts, which were 186,000 bushels, compared with 204,000 a week ago and 122,000 last year, included 67 cars local and 26 through. Hay receipts were 47 cars local and 27 through.

Stocks in St. Louis public elevators were 1,154,978 bushels of wheat, 952,221 bushels of corn, 373,273 bushels of oats. Grain stocks comprised 123,305 bushels of No. 1 red winter wheat, 462,507 bushels of No. 2 red winter wheat, 123,539 bushels of No. 1 hard winter wheat, 244,993 bushels of No. 2 hard winter wheat, 102,336 bushels of No. 2 corn, 59,461 bushels of No. 2 yellow corn, 64,177 bushels of No. 2 white corn, 5606 bushels of No. 2 oats, 189,871 bushels of No. 2 white oats, 87,159 bushels of No. 3 white oats, 9343 bushels of No. 2 rye.

Private elevator stocks consisted of 104,182 bushels of wheat, 29,000 bushels of corn and 18,000 bushels of oats.

Primary receipts of wheat were heavier than a week ago, and heavier than a year ago, being 1,517,000 bu. Corn receipts were heavier than a week ago and heavier than a year ago, being 3,012,000 bu. Oats receipts were lighter than a week ago and heavier than a year ago, being 1,005,000 bu.

Primary shipments of wheat were lighter than a week ago and heavier than a year ago, being 450,000 bu. Corn shipments were heavier than a week ago and lighter than a year ago, being 85,300 bu. Oats shipments were heavier than a week ago and heavier than a year ago, being 591,000 bu.

Clearances were 100,000 bu of corn, 27,000 bbls of flour and 127,000 bu of wheat and flour.

The market closed generally lower.

In the local cash grain market wheat dragged, soft grades being easy to 1c lower and hard 1c lower, with considerable part of the offerings carried over. Corn was steady to 1c lower. Demand was good. Oats were steady to ½c lower. Demand was good.

LOWER RANGE TO GRAIN PRICES ON CHICAGO MARKET

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—Wheat developed a heavy tone about mid-session today. The opening was fairly steady with little wheat for sale and a fair sprinkling of buying orders. A minute or two later there was an increase in commission house selling and the market worked downward until local bull leaders came to the rescue. Spreaders, who sold in Winnipeg also took wheat out of the pit. About mid-session the pit heard a report to effect that a local mill reported that they were shutting down partly because of the lack of business and this increased the pressure. Liverpool strength was due to the dock workers strike. The dock workers strike caused a halt in the demand for wheat from that country and the seaboard expects some re-selling by Liverpool merchants of wheat that they will be unable to handle. Domestic milling demand was quiet.

Corn also had a heavy tone today, the depressing influence being the heavy receipts. Arrivals were estimated at 799 cars and the hedging pressure against these receipts did much to cause the decline. Cash corn was off 1@2c with discounts ½@1c wider. Receivers reported that there is no noticeable letup in consignment notices. Shipping demand is slow. Sales of 100,000 bushels of contract corn were made to go to store.

Oats were easier with other grain. A little hedging pressure was noted.

Buying by houses with foreign account caused a steady tone in provisions.

Wheat closed ⅛c to 1c lower, May $1.09½ to $1.10; July, $1.09⅝ to $1.09¾; September, $1.09⅝. Corn closed ⅛c to ⅜c lower, May 79⅜c to 79½c; July, 79⅞c to 80c; September, 80⅛c. Oats closed unchanged to ⅛c lower, May 47⅞c; July, 45⅝c; September, 43c.

Lard closed unchanged to 2½c lower and ribs 2½c to 5c lower. Local cash sales were 32,000 bushels wheat, 67,000 bushels corn, including 25,000 bushels for export, and 18,000 bushels oats.

ANOTHER SELLING MOVEMENT ON THE STOCK EXCHANGE

Net Losses of 1 to 3 Points Frequent in Late Session — Fresh Demoralization in French Franc.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"After a firm start the markets again gave way under selling pressure. The bear party renewed its activity both in the matter of propaganda and selling and made much of the fact that it was able to break Friday's lows in the case of many of the leading stocks. There was considerable talk in the street of further disclosures of a scandalous nature. The opening on the Stock Exchange revealed a preponderance of fractional gains. A mild reaction and a renewed firming up followed. Before noon, however, selling definitely had the upper hand, prices and closes near the lows of the day with net losses of from one to three points frequent. The volume, however, was smaller than on Friday, amounting to about 1,300,000 shares. Bonds were slightly easier and the rate on call money held at 4½ per cent throughout.

French Franc Weak.

"Fresh demoralization in French francs, which have been sagging moderately of late, added a touch of excitement to the day's trading. The decline in francs started at London, where offerings were heavy; it did not seem to be related to anything fresh in the news. Budgetary troubles still were discussed, but the selling seemed to be merely of a panicky nature and to have been provoked by recent declines. In any event, French francs lost 21 at a new low of 4.16 cents and Belgian francs were off 18 points at 3.56 cents. Italian lire lost 3½ points at 4.33½ cents. Sterling, on the other hand, was firm, probably because of the selling of other currencies at London. The British pound rose to $4.29⅝ despite the docker's strike, and after sagging back to $4.29 was still up ⅛ of a cent on the day. The other Europeans were irregular. Business on this side of the water was not particularly active.

How Much Should Married People Endure In Order to Keep the Home Intact?

"It Should Be a Criminal Offense for a Man to Marry Without a Steady Job and $2000 in Bank."

"Training for Marriage as Impotant and Necessary as for the Professions, Business or Politics."

BY GERTRUDE ATHERTON

EVER so often sociologists come to life and fire these questions: How much should men and women condone in order to keep the home together? Is the good of the children of primary importance? Should neglect or even infidelity be an excuse for divorce when there are children?

To how many of these ardent sociologists, (the amateurs, at least, who generally make the most noise) has it occurred that these questions do not argue imperfections in mere human nature or even in current laws, but in the whole process of civilization, which seems to have grown, especially as regards the sexes, with the haphazardness of a lunatic running amuck.

Nothing in man is as casual as nature. Her one desire is to populate the earth; and if man were governed by his instincts alone, nothing would please her better. For man himself she would seem to have no other use whatever, and instead of rewarding him for his complaisance she has, from the time when he first stood on his hind legs, some 500,000 years ago, treated him with ruthless indifference. Whether he was devoured by the monstrous wild beasts whose patched remains are exhibited in our museums of natural history, or failed to snatch substance from the inhospitable soil of the ice ages, was a matter of profound indifference to her so long as he reproduced himself; to starve and be annihilated again.

History and Barn Yard Talk.

The imagination reels when it tries to invoke a vision of the billions of men since the first Neanderthal that have lived and died, lived and died, nothing more. Stone battle-axes, flints, spears, pottery and a few megaliths—that is their record for 500,000 years. Even the names of great artists of the Cro-Magnon era are unknown, probably were in their own time.

Emerging from pre-history into the classic era, once more the masses merely reproduced themselves, ate and drank, fought and died. What is history? A few great names and a vague picture of masses that have left no more trace of themselves than the beasts of the forest or the barnyard fowls.

We have now had nineteen centuries of what we call Christian civilization. Leaving aside the question of the lingering barbarity of war as foreign to the subject in hand, no thoughtful person but is amazed at the little man has done to get ahead of nature. That is to say in his personal life. He has chopped down forests and built great cities, he has given us the arts and sciences, luxuries and refinements and many beneficent laws which for long periods, at least, permit whole peoples to live not only at peace with their neighbors but with all nations within the pale of international law. But in his sex life he is still the slave of nature, in spite of his numberous laws for the protection of society against his more ungovernable impulses.

Diseases of Social Order.

Mann laws and divorce laws, houses of refuge for girls and institutions for dangerous boys are manifestations of disease in the social order that wise people are trying to correct in a measure by enforcing laws providing for the sterilization of morons, for eugenics, and birth-control.

The worst diseases of the social order may in time be eradicated by the passage of such laws, but those reforms have less to do with human happiness than the foresight of man in his own individual life, and divorce must continue to be a beneficent institution until marriage, instead of being the climax of romance, is regarded as a state for which as much training is necessary as for any of the professions or arts.

The most important step a man takes in his life is the choosing of his mate. Not only happiness but often success is dependent upon it, and yet so far man has not passed a single law to insure its good fortune; his best achievement has been to pass a law which enables the discontented to try it again—the makeshift divorce.

What civil engineer ever yet built a bridge without a severe course of training? A medical course covers six years if a doctor would win a diploma and the right to practice. Who, unless poverty-stricken or hopelessly credulous, but prides himself on going to the best dentist? Instructors of youth must pass the most grilling examinations, and every art, to say nothing of the sciences, demands years of study, practice, and hard work. Even a cook cannot command an adequate wage without adequate training, although the training often falls to the lot of some unfortunate housewife compelled to employ green hands.

Anglo-Saxon and Latin.

For marriage alone, the event upon which the destinies of the contracting parties turn as definitely as alliances between nations, there is no preparation, no training, no examinations to be passed. I am speaking, of course, of the Anglo-Saxon races; this is not the place to discuss the possible superiority of the Latin method of allotting to the parents placing the marital fate of the children. We have a large enough order at home.

In the Anglo-Saxon world young people fall in love and marry. In exceptional cases they are influenced by consideration of fortune and ambition. But the general run are the mere slaves of the race, the sheepish tools of nature. Here man, for all his vast achievements, his numerous and truly magnificent conquests of nature, deliberately slips the blinders on his eyes and murmurs: "Do your worst."

Romance is beautiful and all life as all art would be the poorer without it, but unbridled and undirected, it is the curse of modern civilization. Romance, in fact, is merely a fancy name for the violent determination of the race to survive. Arguments are wasted on young people of legal age who have fallen in love. Nothing will save them from their folly but what I have already suggested: an unwritten social law which makes it infra dig for girls to marry before they are 22, men before they are 25.

Eating Habits and Romance.

All young people, no matter how independent they may think they are, are conventional au fond, and dislike extremely being out of the fashion. Moreover a fashion, like a habit, becomes a fixed idea, and if they look forward automatically to marrying at a certain age they are the less likely to let themselves go too soon. When people have formed the habit of eating at regular hours they rarely feel hungry except at the approach of the hour. Moreover, one of the most beneficent gifts bestowed upon mortals is resignation to the inevitable—especially when the future is full of hope!

But any age limit for the youthful excursion into matrimony is but one factor toward making a success of it. Nothing will insure success in matrimony but as deliberate a training as is necessary in any of the arts and professions, in business and in politics. Even then it will not be a universal specific, for human nature is still imponderable! But if reduced to a science, so to speak, it will stand as fair a chance for healing the greatest of social ills as wise laws have done for the State.

GERTRUDE ATHERTON.

Should Learn to Cook.

The first course for the adventure of matrimony must naturally be in prosaic and material things, for psychology is founded upon physiology, inasmuch as the greatest philosopher that ever lived needs a body to work with. If the machinery of the body be imperfect, as in the case of Darwin and Nietzsche, the brain may still accomplish great things, but at what a cost! Had endocrinology reached its present stage in their day how much more might they not have accomplished?

Every girl should learn how to cook. Servants in these days are more a curse than a blessing and are growing almost as rare as the dodo. Bright girls do not want to enter service, not only on account of the exacting hours and the loneliness, but because it is the American instinct to rise in the social scale. No working girl is going to do general housework if she can find a place in a factory or shop, much less if she be equal to stenography. By and by there will be no servants who are not morons, and as morons have the brains of 12 in an otherwise mature and perfectly functioning body, it will be like training a husky child with a child's memory and no sense of responsibility.

Rich people can employ chefs, but the very rich are a handful. Moreover, the daughters of the rich sometimes marry men both poor and proud. Also, even fashionable society is padded out with many who are not wealthy enough to dower their daughters when they marry. And, leaving fashionable society aside, there are in small towns and great, other social circles, any number of them whose girls have little thought of earning their own living, little thought of anything—unless they are ambitious for independence, or gifted in one of the arts—but marrying at the earliest opportunity.

Woman Who Is Always Tired.

Therefore, girls of every class should be forced to learn how to cook, as well as to become proficient in all forms of housekeeping. Many a marriage has gone down to disaster because the meals are indigestible and the house untidy. Children, moreover, cannot grow up to a healthy maturity unless properly fed, and any natural good taste they may have is blunted if they grow up in a disorderly household, just as their psychology is warped in an atmosphere of constant bickerings over daily grievances.

Young married women, obliged to do their own work—for which they have no scientific preparation—often complain of feeling tired. They are probably suffering from temporary poverty of endocrine secretions, particularly of the thyroid gland. A visit to an intelligent physician would result in a renewal of these all-important secretions; and there is nothing that so discourages a young husband, working like a dog himself, as a woman who is always tired. In these advanced days there is no excuse for it.

Of course this training of girls must begin in the home. Every child should be compelled to take care of her own room, and, as she grows older, help a little in the kitchen and about the house generally. But this is merely by way of contracting one of the many good habits that all intelligent and conscientious mothers inculcate. Studies must not be interfered with, nor, what is equally important, the hours for play. But the curriculum of the last year of High School should embrace a course in general housekeeping on the most scientific lines.

Diet and Decoration.

Good restaurant cooks should come at least once a week and criticise the culinary attempts of scholars, who meanwhile are studying under graduate teachers of the art. And there should be lectures at least twice a month on the scientific values of foods and the proper admixture of calories and proteins, acids and starches, in the daily diet.

Then there would be no more heaviness after meals, one of the contributing causes to the dullness of domestic life, and no more dyspepsia, which has broken up as many homes as infidelity. If it is impossible to extend the curriculum of the High School any farther, then the State should build and endow such schools, and all girls of every class be compelled to attend by law.

One of the most important studies included in this course should be the art of decoration. Nothing conduces more to love of the home, both in the husband and children, than harmony of line and color. Houses that are a mess of color and inappropriate furniture cause a subtle discontent, for the sense of beauty is existent in the most inarticulate, and men are often drawn to some predatory female as much by the charming room in which she receives him as by his own predatory instincts.

Value of Money and Health.

Children, still more inarticulate, haunt the houses of playmates whose homes are more attractive than their own. For those who have married without education in this important branch of domestic science, I know of no book upon which they can rely, not only in decoration but in all matters of taste, more surely than on Emily Post's "Etiquette."

There is little that can be taught boys by way of preparing them for the practical part of domestic life beyond teaching them the value of money and preserving their health. But there should be a law which would make it a criminal offense for a man to marry a girl unless he has a steady job and at least $2000 in the bank. One way to abolish poverty is to forbid it.

The psychological and intellectual preparation for matrimony must be left for later discussion.

Children's Bedtime Story

Reddy and Old Man Coyote Divide a Dinner

Half enough is better than None at all for Fox or Man
—Reddy Fox

REDDY FOX was scared! Yes, sir, Reddy was scared! He wished now that he hadn't waited to see the disappointment of Old Man Coyote when he discovered the empty pan in Farmer Brown's barnyard. Reddy had himself been so disappointed the night before when he had discovered the empty pan, and his nose told him that it had been emptied by Old Man Coyote, that he wanted to see Old Man Coyote equally disappointed. With all his cleverness he hadn't thought that Old Man Coyote might pick up his trail and try to catch him.

But this is just what Old Man Coyote had done, and now Reddy was running as only a badly scared Fox can run. A fight with Old Man Coyote was the last thing in the world that Reddy wanted.

"It is of no use for me to try to play tricks on that fellow the way I do on Bowser the Hound," thought Reddy. "He is altogether too smart to be fooled by tricks. I've got to trust to my legs to get me to my home before he can catch me."

So Reddy made straight for his home by the shortest way. He was none too soon getting there. Hardly was he inside when Old Man Coyote came panting up to the entrance. He was in a great rage. He accused Reddy of having stolen his dinner. He told Reddy of the dreadful things he would do to him the first chance he got. Finally he went away, grumbling and growling and still making dreadful threats.

He darted away without even looking behind him.

All that day Reddy remained in his house. He slept a good part of the day. When he wasn't sleeping he was making plans to visit Farmer Brown's barnyard again, in the hope of finding another good meal there. "Old Man Coyote will come early tonight," said Reddy to himself. "I'll have to get there earlier than he does. He is so suspicious that I don't believe he will dare go up to Farmer Brown's until it is too dark for him to run any risk of being seen. I'll be there in time to grab that food as soon as it is put out." You see, Reddy felt very sure there would be food put out.

So the first of the Black Shadows found Reddy in his old hiding place behind Farmer Brown's barn. Patiently he waited, but all the time he was waiting he nervously watched for Old Man Coyote. The same thing happened that had happened the night before. Just before the last light in Farmer Brown's house went out Farmer Brown's Boy brought out a pan of food. Reddy waited only long enough for Farmer Brown's Boy to get back to the house. Then he ran swiftly to that pan and began to gobble that food just as fast as he could. But all the time he was gobbling it he was watching for Old Man Coyote.

Reddy had eaten just about half that dinner when he saw a dark form coming swiftly from behind the barn. He didn't wait to get another mouthful. He darted away without even looking behind him. Of course, Old Man Coyote saw him. But Old Man Coyote also saw that there was still food in that pan. He merely growled in Reddy's direction and kept on straight to that pan. He gobbled up his half of the dinner even faster than Reddy had eaten his. He stopped to polish the pan with his tongue. By the time he was through Reddy was half way home. So Reddy and Old Man Coyote divided a dinner. Neither had enough, but half a dinner was better than none.

THE REVELATIONS OF A PAID COMPANION

By JANE PHELPS

Author of "My Husband and I," "A Wife's Story," etc.

Chapter XI.

I AM KINDLY RECEIVED BY THE FAMILY.

"HOME at last!"

Mrs. Ellwood rose with the words as the train came to a grating standstill. We had been ready to debark for 10 minutes, 10 minutes of anxious waiting for me, of happy anticipation for her. In the days we had passed together I had learned something of how Mrs. Ellwood loved her home, the trial it had been to her to be banished from it even for a short time because of her health.

Then, with porters carrying our bags, we hurried along with the rushing throng, through the gates—then:

"Oh, Mother, but it's good to have you back!" and a tall, rather handsome, young man bent over to kiss her, only to be pushed aside by the loveliest girl I ever had seen, while a gay voice cried:

"It's time you came back. I should have fetched you myself if you had stayed another day."

"Would you, Mollie? I almost wish I had remained to see if you really mean that." Mrs. Ellwood replied as gayly, yet with an understanding of meaning I failed to understand. Then a serious looking man spoke.

"We are all glad to have you back, Kate," and kissed her tenderly.

A sense of unreality possessed me as I looked on. The dignified man who received me so kindly, the lovely daughter, Molly, so carelessly gay, the tall son, who now standing in the background looked somehow less attractive, a bit almost—sullen. It was a tremendous relief when the formal strain of introductions were over, and I could escape notice in the general conversation of the family. But I stood on the threshold of a new world, moved in a magical dream.

I was to be one of them, live with them.

I still moved as in a dream as we entered the stately, beautiful home that was to be also my home.

"Mollie will show you your room, Rita," Mrs. Ellwood said, "the same my former companion occupied. I'll ring when I want you."

I followed the lovely, graceful Mollie upstairs to a small but beautifully furnished room, which she informed me was near her mother's.

"There's a door between you which Mother likes open when she is ill enough to need attention," she told me.

I was delighted with my room, the private bath, a luxury I never had possessed, and hastily removed my hat, wondering if I would have time to freshen up before I was needed. Mollie stood looking curiously at me.

"Mother says you are going to stay on with her," she said after a little. "I am glad—glad of anything that makes Mother comfortable; but how can you stand it? Such a drab life, you aren't much older than I am. I was 18 my last birthday, and Mother wrote me you were only 19." She brushed back her bobbed hair with her hand, her eyes brilliant with a sort of suppressed fire. "I'd go mad, stark, staring mad if I had to live such a life."

"I am very happy to be here," I said, trying to hide my amazement at her frank speech. At the same time I was so attracted by her beauty, her vibrant personality that I could scarcely keep from staring at her.

"Well, it's a good thing you don't care for gaiety. A companion to an invalid has little chance for any, although Mother is very kind, very thoughtful." Then turning she left me, stopping in the doorway to say: "There's the servant's bell. Ring if you want anything."

So I was not to be classed as a servant. She would not have told me to ring for them if I were. It was evident they were expected to wait upon me.

I examined my room while I waited. It was so comfortable as to be almost luxurious, yet I was to learn, very simple compared to other rooms in the house.

Presently the bell rang, and I hastened to the room Mollie pointed out as her mother's.

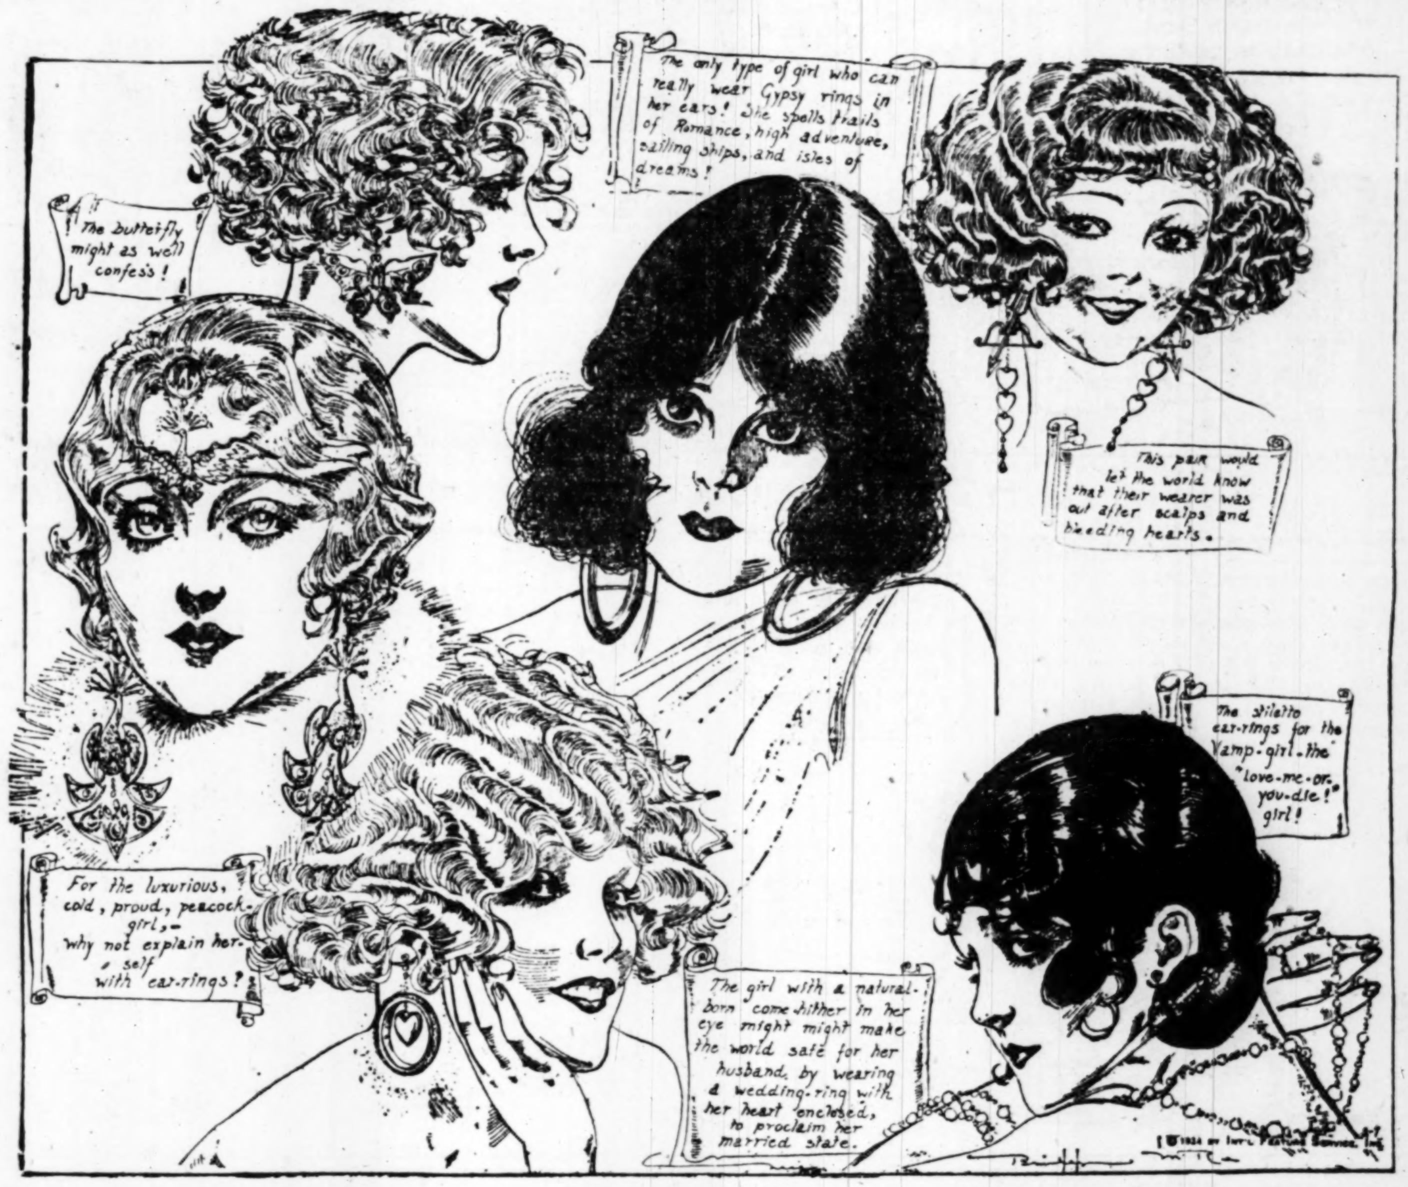
Mrs. Ellwood required a few little services from me, then said:

"Your dinner will be served in your room. You will want to unpack, and I shall need you no more tonight. I'll ring when I wake in the morning.'"

I wasn't to eat with the servants. That I also was not to sit with the family gave me no disturbance. It would be delightful to have my meals in my room. (Continued Tomorrow.)

Say It With Earrings

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY



The only type of girl who can really wear Gypsy rings in her ears! She spells trails of Romance, high adventure, sailing ships, and isles of dreams!
The butterfly might as well confess!
This pair would let the world know that their wearer was out after scalps and bleeding hearts.
The stiletto ear-rings for the Vamp-girl—the "love-me-or-you-die!" girl!
For the luxurious, cold, proud, peacock-girl,—why not explain herself with ear-rings?
The girl with a natural-born come-hither in her eye might might make the world safe for her husband, by wearing a wedding-ring with her heart enclosed, to proclaim her married state.
©1924 by Int'l Feature Service, Inc.

IN some far countries of the world, over the rim of the horizon, where we can only hear about and not see them, folks wear a caste-mark on the foreheads just above their noses, so, looking, you may know just who and what they are.

Regiments going to battle carry bravely before them a banner, a flag, so all the world may know who it is that so boldly treads behind, going to the wars. Folks tie blue ribbons on their boy babies, and pink ones on their girls—or is it just the other way around?—so that you may know which is which while their tiny faces are too much alike in their babiness, pinkness and softness, for you to tell by THEM.

Famous houses carry coats-of-arms. Engaged girls flaunt the drop of flaming dew imprisoned in a stone on their third finger to let the whole world know that, "I'm engaged!" A wedding ring labels the stranger lady with the lovely face for you.

Now, there used to be a language of flowers. Why wouldn't it be a great idea—seeing that earrings are so promiscuous anyway—every lady has earrings, just as she has a nose—to have a language of earrings, to let your earrings tell it to you? To be known by the earrings you wear?

You read a person's character by the aid of her nose. How much easier if she just told you herself—with her earrings! Jeweled peacocks for the cold, haughty lady of luxurious tastes and gleaming beauty. And why shouldn't the butterfly confess! Golden bow-and-arrow with a string of hearts, with rubies for drops of blood, pendant, for the girl who's out for scalps.

A dagger inside a half-moon for the vamp—"Love me or I kill you"—for the vamp—and she doesn't care who knows it!

Even the uncertain, expectant lover might read his lady's answer in her earrings at the dance. NELL BRINKLEY.

Household Hints

Meat should not be washed. It can be cleaned by wiping with a wet cloth.

Melted butter is a good substitute for olive oil in a salad dressing.

To keep potatoes a good color add a few drops of lemon juice to the water in which they stand after being peeled.

If a cloth is placed over a basin of freshly-made starch, no skin will form on the top.

• • •

A few drops of lemon juice rubbed briskly on black or brown shoes give a brilliant polish.

• • •

Add raisins to the cranberries when cooking them and you will not require so much sugar for sweetening.

The Housewife's Scrapbook

TO cleanse white or light colored window shades rub lightly with the very finest sandpaper. Then rub very gently with a soft cloth wrung out of a mixture of one pint hot water containing three tablespoonfuls of benzine. Dry by wiping with a clean soft cloth.

When cleaning a garment it is often difficult to find the spot after the article is wet. This may be obviated by running a thread around each spot before starting the cleansing process.

You can keep cranberries indefinitely if you keep them in a crock and covered with water. A weighted plate placed over the berries will keep them under water. Change the water once a month. Before putting them into the water look over cranberries and discard the soft ones.

• • •

One housewife wraps cheese in waxed paper and puts it in a corn popper, which she hangs up in the pantry. She says it thus gets sufficient air to keep it from moulding, it will not affect other foods and it is where mice cannot reach it—three very good reasons for keeping it there.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

Living Costs.

I DO not know the reason why, but living costs are pretty high in this, my native land. In China, on 10 cents a day, one keeps a cook and a valet, and lives with style and dash. Or with the savage Congo brood, folks do not pay in gold for food, but give them big glass beads; if one is keen to store away some kopecks for a rainy day, it's there that one succeeds. But though I have to plan with care, and save a ruble here and there to pay my butcher's bills, I feel that life among the Slavs, with chestnut pies and onion crops, would hold few pleasant thrills. And in the land of Rising Sun I'd get but little laughing done; I'd hear those Chinese chat, and, Gosh! I'd get so lonely then among those foreign yellow men I'd chatter to the cat! I pay too much for bread and tea, but living by the Yang-te-se, I would not be content; so here in Goshen I remain, although sometimes it's quite a strain to pay for grub and rent. I might save cash for rainy days among strange folks with stranger ways; but, say, it's just this way: I might get rich in Valuki, but I would 10 times rather be hard up in U. S. A.!

Faulty Elimination

Every physician will tell you that serious diseases are due to faulty elimination. Too many people are miserable and ill from this cause alone.

It means lack of internal cleanliness. Today a bathtub is a necessity, and external cleanliness is insisted upon. But, with all that, thousands are neglecting internal cleanliness, which is much more important and necessary to health.

Our kidneys drain more impurities from our bodies than any other organ. Mountain Valley Water from Hot Springs, Ark., assists kidney action. Its daily use will improve your internal cleanliness. St. Louis physicians prescribe it in the treatment of kidney troubles.

Ask your physician about Mountain Valley Water.

A SACK OF SATISFACTION

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH
DAILY MAGAZINE

Dear Editor:

ONE of the saddest things about life is that so few people is satisfied with themselfs and don't wish they was some one else and etc., and you can't get on intimate turns with no family without finding out that the wife is too fat and trying to get thin like Irene Casle or the husband is too skinny and trying to be a big man like Jack Dempsey or vice versa.

Some men are so short that you keep triping over them on the street and on the other hand a good many gals is tall enough so as they always got to be on their guard for the fear that linemen will come along and string wires on them. In either and all cases the situation is embarrassing to the parties and their relatives, and Congress don't seem to take no interest in it.

Of the people that ain't right in one way or another, the big majority belongs to the class that is overweight. In spite of the fact that prices of food is double and treble what they was 10 and 20 years ago, why it seems like they's twice as many cases now as they was then of people that is too fat or afraid they will get too fat, and when you go to a dinner party where the guests is supposed to be having a good time, why 80 or 90 per cent of them, men and women alike, wishes they could eat more or realize they are eating too much and they look so miserable that neither of them or their friends can't enjoy themselfs. The ailment has become so widespread that a person can't tell a story about a fat man or mention the word fat without two-thirds of the audience thinks you are taking a dig at them.

Well the magazines and newspaper is full of ads in regards to how to get thin which reads a whole lot better than they work, so I don't want nobody to think that in this article I am trying to sell systems of diet or pills or belts that will bring you back to normalcy.

But what I am trying to do is to set forth what I believe is the only common sense solution of the problem and as I am making the suggestion free and without no personal interest only to be of benefit to red-blooded fat people and mankind in general, why you can either take it or leave it alone.

Like radio and airships and all other great inventions, my idear may at first sound kind of silly but when you think it over, it turns out to be worse than simple. In a word the scheme calls for a general redistribution of citizens or a segregation of same so that people of one shape would all live together in one place. That is, they would be town in every state set aside for the exclusive use of fat folks only, where it would be vs. the law for a skiny person to set their ft.

The idear being of course that what makes fat people unhappy is the sight of thin people around them and that if a fat person was just one fat person amongst a population of fat persons, why they wouldn't be no hardship about being fat. Further and more, matters could be so arranged that the fatter a person was, why all the better as I will exclaim in a few moments together with a few other details of the plan which I have only space to state them briefly—

1. It would not be necessary to build new towns but it would be necessary to make alterations in the town which exists. Like for inst. we will suppose that Cincinnati is one of the towns that has been picked out for a fat colony

Well, the present population of Cincinnati is around 450,000, which we will presume it all the town has got room for. Well, this means that if all the people was fat, they wouldn't only be room for about one-third of 450,000, or 150,000. But to offset this we would select some city about the size of Cincinnati, say for inst. Milwaukee, and make it a colony for skinny folks only and whereas Milwaukee now houses about 450,000, why if they was all thin, they would be accommodations for three times 450,000, or 1,350,000.

In addition, the doors, sidewalks, streets, beds, chairs, and etc. in Cincinnati could all be widened so as to take care of the fats while the the same articles could be shrank in Milwaukee to fit the leans.

2. A fat town would be equipped with a public hay scales where everybody would half to report once a wk. and get weighed. The citizen gaining the most weight in a wk. would be given a coupon and the one receiving the most coupons in a year would be awarded the championship emblem, a 100 lb. box of candy.

A citizen who showed a loss of weight would be warned the first wk. and if he or she showed another loss the following wk. they would be rode out of town on a truck. This scheme would make it worth your while to fatten up and therefore the fatter you got the happier you would be instead of going around with a long face the way like now.

3. Suffrage would be granted to all male citizens over 21 that tipped the beam at 200 lbs. or better and all adult females weighing over 179.

4. Grocery stores and markets would be prohibited from selling any foods except starches, fats and sweets.

Those is just a few of the details of the scheme and the rest of them could be worked out as need arose and might state in conclusion how I come to think of the idear.

Well I happened to be setting in a card game the other night with 5 others of whom 2 beside myself was gents and at first I kept wondering to myself why was it I felt so happy as I am generally always miserable in a card game on acct. of not having no luck. Well my luck wasn't no better than usual so I had to look for another reason and it finely come to me like a flash. The other 2 gents in the game was also loosing their hair.

DEMOCRATIC PROPOSAL APP
BY HOUSE, 22

Garner Plan for 44 Per Ce
50 Per Cent Cut in N
Is Indorsed After Carrying Mellon Fi
jected.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The Democr
Mellon normal income tax and surtax rat nue bill was approved today by the House

The Democratic proposal advanced by Democrat, Texas, fixes the surtax maxim incomes in exsess of $92,000 and cuts norm

Action on the Democratic proposal came after the House had voted down in quick order, a plan offered by Chairman Madden, of the Appropriations Committee, which paralleled the Mellon rates, and the substitute of Representative Frear, the Wisconsin Republican insurgent.

The Democrats voted solidly behind their leaders and on each vote they were joined by a large contingent of Republicans. Chairman Green of the Ways and Means Committee, voted against his party leaders on the Madden amendment.

The vote o nthe Democratic substitute was 222 to 196.

Approval was given the Democratic plan, while Representative Longworth, the Republican leader, was waiting an opportunity to offer a compromise to unite the Republican ranks.

16 Republicans for Garner Plan.

Democrats voted solidly for their substitute. Sixteen Republicans, most of them insurgents, also voted for it.

A teller's vote, requiring members to file through the center aisle, to be counted, was taken, rules preventing a roll call. Before a final vote on the bill is taken, however, a roll call on the Democratic substitute can be demanded.

The substitute woud cut normal tax rates to 2 per cent on incomes under $5000; to 4 per cent on incomes between $5000 and $8000, and to 6 per cent on incomes above $8000.

The present rate is 4 per cent on incomes under $4000 and 8 per cent on incomes above that amount.

Tax exemptions, under the substitute approved, would be increased from $1000 to $2000 for single persons, and from $2500 to $3000 for heads of families. The Mellon bill proposed no such increase.

Unable to get a straight vote on the Mellon rates, Representative Madden, Republican, Illinois, offered an amendment to fix the surtax maximum at 26 per cent, as against 25 per cent in the Treasury bill, and providing for a 25 per cent reduction in normal rates, as proposed by Mellon. It was defeated.

The Madden amendment was rejected, 224 to 152, on a teller's vote, rules preventing a rol lcall.

Democrats, opposing the amendment to a man, had the support of about 40 Republicans, among them Chairman Green of the Ways and Means Committee.

The House voted down, 254 to 46, the amendment by Representative Frear, a Republican insurgent, from Wisconsin, to cut normal rates 50 per cent without disturbing the present surtaxes, which reach a maximum of 50 per cent on incomes exceeding $200,000.

An eleventh-hour appeal by the White House today to House Republican insurgent leaders urging agreement with the organization Republicans on the Mellon income tax rate schedule failed to break the deadlock between the groups.

C. Bascom Slemp, secretary to the President, informed some members of the insurgent group today that the President desired that the party stand as a unit in the tax fight.

This move followed failure of two meetings yesterday between the Republican organization and insurgent members to reach an agreement on a compromise, the latter group holding out for a 40 per cent maximum surtax with a 50 per cent cut in normal rates, while the Republicans would go no higher than 37½ per cent on the surtax and a 25 per cent cut in normal rates.

Representative Treadway of Massachusetts, one of the Republicans of the Ways and Means Committee who voted the Mellon income rates into the bill, gave notice that if the rates were defeated now he would move their adoption as an amendment after the bill is completed. This, he be-
